Registration Adding 22,000 Names

Last Chance to Sign for Voting

Doors close on voter registration at midnight today with a forecast of approximately 22,000 new voters eligible in the four Greater Victoria ridings for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

The main office at 910 Gordon closes at midnight and the other offices stop registering voters at 9 p.m.

The recent enumeration recorded about 20,000 new voters. Another 2,000 should be added when individuals missed by the enumeration register on their own, area registrar John Smallwood said Monday.

The number of registered voters in the four ridings will be more than 110,000, compared with 92,742 at the 1966 election, he said.

Esquimalt's total will be about 23,500, an increase of approximately 6,000 over the 1966 figure of 17,401 and the highest increase in the area.

Victoria will rise to about 40,000 from 35,598. Saanich and The Islands will have 25,000 eligible, compared with the last count of 20,107. Oak Bay's registered voters will number about 23,500, compared with 19,636 in 1966.

An eligible voter is a Canadian or British Subject, at least 19 years old before Aug. 27, who has lived in Canada for at least the last year and in B.C. for the past six months. The voters' list will include 99 per cent of people entitled to vote.

Victoria riding registration centres are open at

Island Man Missing Wife, Boys Drown

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—The bodies of a Campbell River mother, her son and the son of a neighbor were recovered Monday by RCMP after a boating accident off this Vancouver Island fishing resort.

The search continued for the woman's husband, who was presumed drowned.

Dead are Doreen Jenson, her 10-year-old son Randy and Ronald Brownson, 9. Still missing was F. P. Jenson, 34.

Police said the four left Squirrel Cove, 20 miles east of here, Sunday night for Campbell River and, when they failed to arrive, a search was started Monday morning.

Peterson Reaction:

No Politics In Crux Case

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Monday denied the claim by lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux that charges brought against him in connection with the Commonwealth affair were politically motivated.

Mr. Crux made the statement during a hearing in Nassau in which Canada is seeking to have him extradited to face trial on a total of 21 theft and fraud charges in B.C. He did not elaborate but said he would argue political motivation later in the hearing.

Mr. Peterson, asked to comment, said: "It's obvious on the face of it that there is no political motivation in this process nor in any other matter involving the administration of justice by me as the chief law enforcement officer for the province.

"Beyond that, I have no comment on a matter before the courts, as the result of many months of investigation. I'm satisfied the court action is in competent hands."

NASSAU (CP) — Magistrate John Baily ruled Monday afternoon that he would hear no witnesses and receive no new exhibits in the extradition hearing of A. G. Duncan Crux of Vancouver.

The magistrate said he would accept submissions and arguments on the five sets of depositions, including some 379 exhibits, forwarded to Nassau from a hearing in Vancouver in June.

NIGHT SESSION

Canada has asked that Crux, former head of the Commonwealth Group of companies, be sent back to British Columbia to face 21 charges of fraud and theft.

The magistrate, who in the absence of any stenographic clerks in Bahamas' courts keeps a running account of the arguments and law citations as the case proceeds, warned that a night session may be needed this week. He has promised to

Campbells In Soup

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — It took a Campbell to sort out the mess when Campbell met Campbell Monday.

A car driven by Richard H. Campbell, 18, collided with one driven by William H. Campbell, 62, and Constable William H. Campbell investigated the accident. None of them was related.

William Campbell's car had $400 damage and Richard's was a total wreck but no one was hurt.

Sentiment Takes Beating

Sentimental favorite Sam Snead, 57, drops putter and leans over in disappointment Monday after missing putt on 17th green during playoff for Canadian open golf title. He and Tommy Aaron, who had never won PGA title, tied Sunday with 275s but Aaron shot two-under-par 70 in playoff and Snead had even par 72. See story, Page 12.

U.S. Subcommittee

Congress Hits at Brass In Pueblo Case Probe

From UPI, AP

WASHINGTON — A U.S. House armed services subcommittee has unanimously approved a report which puts much of the blame for loss of the spy ship Pueblo not on the crew but on military brass, it was learned Monday.

The special investigating subcommittee reached its verdict after a four-month study of the events before, during and after capture of the U.S. intelligence ship by North Korean patrol boats and aircraft Jan. 23, 1968.

* * *

Unlike the court of inquiry, the Congressional panel headed by Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) did not take testimony from the crew. Instead, it concentrated on what the military calls the "command and control" aspects of the case.

It zeroed in on the top commanders, such as retired Adm. Ulysses S. Grant Sharp, at the time commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

* * *

According to those who have seen the report, the lawmakers hammered away at what they felt were the poor lines of communication within the military intelligence community and a lack of precautionary steps taken before the lightly armed and unescorted Pueblo sailed on her last mission.

Meanwhile, the defence department announced U.S. spy ships have been ordered to fight back in the future if they are threatened while on electronic intelligence missions. The announcement was made by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Brothers All Alone

Sommers Walks Out

Sommers

Brothers

TRAIL (CP) — Education Minister Donald Brothers was nominated by acclamation in the Rossland-Trail riding Monday night after deposed forest minister Robert Sommers led 50 supporters out of a Social Credit constituency association meeting.

"I wanted an honest contest — I didn't get it," said Mr. Sommers, 58, who claimed a ruling by meeting chairman George Driediger left him with no supporters. "If I'd lost this dispute you would not have heard me cry. If I'd won you would not have heard me crow."

See also Pages 6, 17, 27

Mr. Sommers, who served almost 2½ years in jail on bribery and conspiracy charges laid while he held the lands and forests portfolio, was not present when nominations opened and Mr. Brothers' name was the only one put forward.

Mr. Sommers said he hasn't decided if he will contest Rossland-Trail as an independent in the Aug. 27 provincial election.

ASSOCIATION CARDS

The dispute involved Sommers supporters who showed up waving $1 constituency association cards they claimed entitled them to vote on the nomination.

Mr. Driediger said the only persons eligible to vote were those possessing $5 membership cards — which apparently most of the Sommers supporters didn't have.

A hot debate ensued. It ended abruptly when a Sommers man suggested to the former cabinet minister that they leave the meeting in protest. Fifty of the 350 persons present followed them out the door.

COST MONEY

"I will not go to the courts," said the former cabinet minister. "I've had a lot of experience in court. They cost an awful lot of money and I haven't got it."

Mr. Brothers, who took over in Rossland-Trail after Mr. Sommers went to jail, did not mention Mr. Sommers' aborted candidacy in his acceptance speech.

However, he said in an interview later he didn't believe Mr. Sommers would run as an independent "and even if he did, he would have a minimal effect."

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Mr. Sommers said he still believes in Social Credit principles "when they are practised," and the Rossland-Trail meeting "in no way reflects on Premier Bennett, because he is a man of integrity."

Earlier in the day, Premier Bennett said in Victoria that Social Credit candidates are selected by "the people in the riding" and the premier doesn't interfere. But he supported Mr. Brothers because he is "a member of the government's inner team."

He said Mr. Sommers had every right to seek the nomination but there was no Rossland-Trail movement to draft him.

'Lustrous Glass' In Moon Dust

● Dust cloud didn't impede touchdown.—Page 10

HOUSTON (AP) — The mysterious black moon dust gathered by the Apollo 11 astronauts contains "wonderfully lustrous" bits of glass that may have rained down on the moon after a meteor impact, a lunar mineralogist reported Monday.

Dr. Cliff Frondell of Harvard University disclosed at a news conference that perhaps one-third or one-fourth of each particle of dust is composed "of minute spheres of glass ranging in size from misroscopic to a few tenths of a millimetre.

"The color," he said, "ranged from dark brown to yellow to yellow-brown."

"The particles are wonderfully lustrous and reflecting."

Dr. Frondell speculated that the spheres of glass probably resulted from "condensation of a gas or vapor created by the impact of a meteor."

"The gas turned into droplets, condensed and rained down on the lunar surface."

Dr. Frondell also said the dust, which has excited scientists since it arrived at the Manned Spacecraft Centre Lunar Receiving Laboratory Saturday, contained a crystalline compound similar to many rock-forming compounds on Earth. He said the dust also was made up of an unnamed opaque material.

Other scientists who have been examining the first box of Apollo 11 rocks in vacuum chambers in the lab, reported some had characteristics of Nine Ministers Involved?

Major Cabinet Switch Due

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—As many as seven to nine ministers may be affected in a federal cabinet shuffle predicted for August, and speculation Monday centred on the future of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

It was considered likely Sharp would be shifted to another ministry if he does not leave the government altogether. A possible successor in external affaris is Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

* * *

Such a shift could open up the possibility of a major redistribution of portfolios. Prime Minister Trudeau is said to want to make any changes in time to give shifted ministers a chance to learn their new jobs before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 22.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald is expected to be relieved of his duty as government House leader, especially after the acrimonious windup in the Commons last week, including government imposition of closure to end a rules debate.

The cabinet Monday began an intensive series of meetings designed to reach some major decisions on government policies before present ministers depart for August vacations.

The full cabinet or cabinet committees will be meeting all this week. Some 8 a.m. and evening meetings have been called, fairly rare except during crises.

* * *

Decisions facing the cabinet include tax reform, wheat prices, further expenditure cuts, and the contents of a government white paper on tax reform to be presented this fall.

Mars Coming Into Focus For First-Ever Closeups

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner VI closed in on Mars Monday night with its high-powered television camera poised to provide the most detailed pictures ever seen of the mysterious red planet.

The camera was to go into operation at 6:19 p.m. PDT from a distance of 771,500 miles, although the first pictures will not be received on Earth until almost 24 hours later.

The first 33 photographs are expected to show the full disc of the planet with much more detail than can be achieved by Earth telescopes.

Pictures snapped as the spacecraft swings within 2,000 miles of Mars Wednesday night should be the sharpest ever made of Mars, showing details as small as 900 feet across, and possibly answering the ancient question: Was there ever any intelligent, structure-building life on the now desert-like planet?

Flight controllers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory gave this schedule of events for Monday and early today.

● 6:19 p.m. PDT—A radio signal from a tracking station at Goldstone, Calif., was to turn on scientific instruments and start the television camera clicking. This was just to see if the camera was working. What the camera lens "saw" at this point was not to be recorded.

● 8:49 p.m. — The camera platform of the 850-pound spacecraft was to be aimed at Mars.

● 10:26 p.m.—Mariner VI was to snap the first of 33 long-range pictures stored on tape and televised to Earth. The first are to be received at 6:35 p.m. PDT today, with the rest at five-minute intervals during the next three hours.

NBC said it expects to broadcast the pictures as they come in. ABC said it will broadcast the pictures for a couple of minutes, depending on the quality.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory spokesmen said the spacecraft has "worked like a clock."

Shiny Glass in Moon Dust

earth rocks that are volcanically formed.

Dr. Don Morrison of the Manned Spacecraft Centre reported many of the rocks appear to contain minerals "similar to minerals common to the Earth's crust."

He emphasized that the examination is not far enough along to make a definite determination.

LIKE BUBBLES

Morrison noted some rocks appeared vesicular—"like bubbles that escaped from volcanic molten material."

Dr. Eugene Shoemaker of California Institute of Technology said finding the glass spheres in the dust was the biggest surprise so far in the investigation.

"Normally," he said, "a meteorite ejection of this sort that could melt rock would eject particles at such a speed many would escape the moon's gravitational field."

LESS BOMBARDMENT

He also said that the abundance also indicates there is less bombardment of the moon by miniscule objects from interplanetary space—objects like micrometeorites which would break up these small particles.

Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California said that based on initial examination of the samples "it looks as if there could be lava flow."

"But I'm still puzzled about it."

LONG DEBATE

Scientists have argued for years over whether the moon's craters were formed by volcanic action, by meteor impact or by both.

Dr. Shoemaker said that examination of a core sample which astronaut Edwin Aldrin collected near the surface is lumpy.

He said the material in the tube was "rather coarse grained," like soft material that had been pounded into lumps by meteor impact.

The panelists agreed that weeks and months of examination will be necessary to arrive at any definite conclusions.

Earlier, scientists poking through the soil cores from beneath the surface turned up a shiny pebble that looked something like a pearl.

A professor reporting on the finding described it as "a small, sub-rounded, roughly peanut-shaped fragment a few millimetres across" with a "lustre which glistened very brightly under the microscope lamp."

Meanwhile, rips in gloves used to handle moon rocks inside the vacuum chamber threatened a 2½-day delay in examination of much of the other lunar material brought to earth by the Apollo 11 men.

Prof. Roald Fryxell, assistant professor of anthropology at Washington State University, made the report on the pebble, saying it was "mostly covered with the fine grey material that comprised the rest of the core tube."

He said the glass-like lustre was found on one surface of the pebble that was clear of the dust.

The gloves, which permit technicians outside the vacuum cabinet to handle items inside, cracked around the outside of three layers at the knuckles and fingers while being used to remove some 16 to 18 pounds of rocks that were inside the first of two boxes the astronauts returned from the moon.

A second box was to be opened today or Wednesday.

Meanwhile, a few grains of moon dirt taken from various depths of a core collector jammed five inches into the moon were taken to a laboratory in quarantined chambers here to be injected into germ-free mice and other living specimens.

If the mice develop a disease, the quarantine period for the Apollo 11 astronauts and 14 other people living with them could be extended until officials are certain other lives on earth would not be endangered. It is now scheduled to end Aug. 11.

decide the case before going on holidays Aug. 14.

Nassau lawyer Patrick Toothe, representing Canada, argued unsuccessfully that witnesses could be heard at the extradition hearings under provisions of the Bahamas' Fugitive Offenders Act of 1967. He had planned to have Vancouver lawyer E. A. Alexander present expert testimony on each set of depositions.

10 COUNTS

The court spent Monday afternoon studying exhibits in a deposition charging Crux, 63, and various associates, on 10 separate counts of publishing a prospectus of Diversified Income Securities Ltd., a mutual fund, that contained statements known by Crux to be false. The years covered were 1960-68.

Toothe cited the pertinent Bahamian laws applying to the charges from Canada. Crux can only be extradited if it is proved the offences alleged in Canada are also offences under Bahamian law.

NAMES LISTED

Tracing the Canadian exhibits, Toothe said that most of the 10 prospectuses under attack had listed the names of members of an advisory board to guide Diversified Income Securities Ltd. In most cases, payment to such advisers was listed.

Toothe said he had an hour or two more of evidence to present on this set of charges when court resumes this morning.

In the Monday morning session, devoted to debate on procedural matters, Crux twice declared that the British Columbia proceedings against him were politically motivated.

Crux said he would later argue political motivation but did not elaborate during the Monday session.

"In British Columbia, we have a hot political situation," Crux said at one point.

NO GUARANTEES

The magistrate later rejected a Crux request for a ruling he may be subject to prosecution in Canada only on specific charges on which any deportation order might be issued here.

Toothe had told the court that to expedite the hearing, he proposed to deal Monday with only 10 of the more than 20 charges facing Crux.

Crux unsuccessfully asked assurances that in the event he is extradited on a specific list of charges, Canada would be unable to apply to the governor for permission to prosecute on any number of related charges.

BOOKS AVAILABLE

Crux received assurances, however, that he and his accountant could examine the books of three to five Bahamas-based firms of the financially-troubled Commonwealth Group, which Crux once headed.

Crux said since he is alleged to have transferred funds from Canada to the firms here, he wished to check pertinent dates and figures for his defence.

Esquimalt voters can register at Esquimalt Plaza Pharmacy, 1153 Esquimalt; Colwood Pharmacy, 1910 Sooke; and the Legion Hall at Sooke.

Oak Bay centres are Davenport Pharmacy, 2020 Oak Bay; Newport Pharmacy, 1210 Newport; and Dalby's Pharmacy, 3828 Cadboro Bay.

In Saanich and the Islands, centres are in The Review office, 9825 Third, Sidney; Brentwood Bay Pharmacy, 7181 West Saanich; Royal Oak Pharmacy, 4772 West Saanich; Salt Spring Island government building, Ganges.

On North and South Pender Islands, voters can register at The Glade, Hope Bay Road; on Saturna Island at the home of Mrs. J. E. Mooney; on Mayne Island at the Bennett Motel, and on Galiano Island at the Galiano General Store and the Spanish Hills store in North Galiano.

Changes in polling divisions within all but 14 of the 55 provincial ridings for the Aug. 27 general election were approved Monday by the cabinet.

The changes mean only that some voters will cast their ballots at different polls, in the same ridings. The new arrangement represents changes in population within ridings since redistribution in 1956. No riding boundaries are altered.

Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are unaffected. Only the polling stations at Resthaven and at Retreat Cove on Galiano Island are rearranged in Saanich and the Islands.

Walking Beats Rocking

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told by my doctor to walk a lot to help my circulation and keep my weight down. But I have arthritis in my legs and find it tiring to walk very far. I like to rock on the porch. Would hard rocking do the same job? — Mrs. K.T.

No, the rocking chair won't take the place of exercise. Rocking is restful, you need muscle action to perk up circulation.

As to weight, walking will use up three times the calories you use up while sitting.

With your arthritis, you'd best figure on reducing by curtailing your diet; it takes a good deal of excercise to shed many pounds. Losing weight, however, will take some of the stress off your painful joints and make them feel better.

So walk as much as you can — as your doctor suggested — for more reasons than one. A little asprin or kindred pain killer taken shortly before you take a walk may make things more tolerable.

□

Dear Sir: Can cancer of the stomach and colon be detected by x-rays?—Mrs. S.H.

Many cases are detected that way, but not necessarily in very early stages.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I found out I had high blood pressure at age 24, and have been treated for it for 2½ years. Now it is normal. I also stopped smoking. Do you think smoking had anything to do with it?—J.P.

Yes, because smoking is one of the things known to have an effect on blood pressure. It may not have been the whole cause in your case. Probably not. But it quite likely was part.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For some time now whenever I have a bowel movement it is almost black. I have not been to a doctor because I am feeling quite well.—K.A.K.

Maybe you feel good, but that black color, while it could be from some other cause, usually indicates bleeding fairly high in the intestinal tract. Therefore no more delay in getting to your doctor! It may or may not indicate serious trouble starting, but better to correct such troubles before you feel ill rather than after they have done too much damage.

Israeli Plane Lost In Attack On Canal Posts

By REUTERS

An Israeli Skyhawk plane was shot down Monday when formations of Israeli planes attacked Egyptian positions on the Suez canal, Cairo radio reported.

Waves of Israeli planes raided Egyptian positions at Port Tewfik, Deversoir and Altinah along the waterway, the broadcast said, and the Skyhawk was downed by anti-aircraft guns.

CANAL DOGFIGHT

Israeli planes also clashed with Egyptian MiG jets in a dogfight over the northern part of the canal, an Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said. Neither side lost planes in the encounter.

An Israeli counterblow against the Egyptian front lines had been expected after a brief hit-and-run strike Monday by Egyptian fighter-bombers against Israeli positions in northwestern Sinai, the desert area Israel captured in the 1967 war.

Three Jordanian soldiers, including a captain, were killed Sunday night when several formations of Israeli fighter planes attacked a military post at Irbid, Jordan, a Jordanian military spokesman in Amman said Monday.

He said 12 other soldiers were wounded—four seriously—and six army vehicles damaged in the 25-minute strike on the town, about 53 miles north of Amman.

United Nations political officers in New York scheduled urgent talks Monday with representatives of seven countries which have provided military observers in the Suez canal area.

The call came following the death Sunday of a Swedish UN observer caught in Israeli artillery fire.

Maj. Bo Roland Plane was the first UN observer killed in the Suez canal sector since fighting became a daily occurrence in March.

THAT CONCERNED

A spokesman said UN Secretary-General U Thant "was considering the matter most seriously." The Burmese chief has twice told the UN Security Council he may recommend withdrawal of the UN observers if their safety cannot be guaranteed by Israel and Egypt.

The state department in Washington has called for greater protection for the 92 servers on both sides of the waterway and another 92 in the Golan Heights, which Israel captured from Syria. A department spokesman added that Washington is "watching with concern" the continued clashes between Israel and Egypt.

Bus Plunges Kill 21

Martial Law Eased Off For Pakistani Politics

KARACHI (AP) — President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan announced Monday he is easing restrictions in his martial-law administration to permit limited political activity in Pakistan.

The move comes in advance of a visit by President Nixon, due here Friday.

Yahya, an army general, took over the government four months ago after a long period of unrest arising from opposition to former president Mohammed Ayub Khan.

Declaring that his goal is "smooth transfer of power to the elected representatives of the people," Yahya said in a broadcast that political parties could again hold conventions and executive meetings, but not public rallies.

To prepare for return to constitutional government, Yahya announced:

- ● His intention to create a civilian "council of ministers," to supplement the present all-military regime.
- ● The appointment of a chief election commissioner—Justice Abdul Sattra—to prepare fresh electoral rolls, a task Yahya predicted would take a year to 18 months.
- ● The doubling of recruitment of East Pakistanis in the armed forces in an attempt to help remove what Yahya described as "fully justified" grievances among the Easterners who said they are not represented adequately in the government and military. Yahya earlier appointed a large number of East Pakistanis to top civil service posts.

Some Progress Seen In Salvador Impasse

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Diplomatic sources Monday reported some progress at private talks among Hemisphere foreign ministers aimed at reaching agreement on withdrawal of Salvadorean troops from Honduran territory.

The ministers, meeting here under the inter-American security treaty, were continuing private discussions at the Colombian Embassy in an effort to find what sources called "some kind of formula acceptable to both sides."

Talks among the foreign ministers of the Organization of American States began last week, but they reached a deadlock because El Salvador refused to withdraw its troops from Honduras until the OAS sets up a mechanism to guarantee the right of about 100,000 Salvadoreans living in Honduras.

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — El Salvador claims Honduran planes bombed five towns on the Salvadorean border Sunday, and Hinduras says Salvadorean troops have routed more than 25,000 Honduran civilians from their homes.

Police Smash Juvenile Ring

MONTREAL (CP) — Police reported the smashing of a juvenile car theft ring they said had been operating in the city's north end since the begining of this year. Thirty-one young people have been arrested and nearly 200 automobiles recovered.

But Nixon Stresses Self-Help

U.S. Calms Thailand

BANGKOK (Reuters) — President Nixon arrived here Monday, reassuring Thais in a statement released from Washington that the United States will honor its commitments but warning that they must rely on their own security forces to combat internal subversion.

Nixon received a warm greeting from King Bhumibol and Queen Sirikit on his arrival in a monsoon downpour a few hours after guerrillas attacked an American air base at Ubon, 435 miles northeast of Bangkok.

TWO PLANES

The guerrillas, using explosives, damaged two American C-47 aircraft and a mobile radar unit, and slightly wounded a U.S. Air Force guard.

Two suspects were arrested after the attack which Thai authorities said they believe was an anti-American gesture and part of a Communist guerrilla plan to embarrass the Thai government while Nixon is in Thailand.

The attack on Ubon, close to the Laotian border and a base from which F-4C and F-4D Phantom jet aircraft fly on missions over South Vietnam, was the first on an American military installation in Thailand in more than a year.

FIRST DAY

The first day of Nixon's visit here was filled with protocol engagements, and his talks with Thai leaders on the Vietnam war and Asian collective security will not start until today.

But the president, in a special statement issued through the White House in Washington soon after he arrived from Jakarta, Indonesia, bluntly told the Thais that to depend on others to protect them from internal subversion is almost as damaging to a country as an armed attack.

Nixon said the American commitment to aid Asian allies is consistent with a feeling that these countries must accept responsibility for achieving peace and prosperity in the area.

His statement was an attempt to explain his new "Asian doctrine" aimed at reducing direct U.S. military involvement in Asian problems, taking American troops from the Asian mainland, but leaving powerful naval and air forces in the Pacific to deter China.

Nixon was believed facing pressure here to adopt a more hawkish line in Asia to counter what the Thais consider a serious threat posed by reported Chinese penetration of Laos.

The talk in Thai political circles was that an American withdrawal from Vietnam, on which Nixon has made a start, would increase pressure on Thailand and make it the next victim for the Communists.

SPACE CALLING

The Thais, who burned their bridges by aligning themselves solidly with the U.S. through the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and giving the Americans six bases for air raids against Communist positions in Vietnam, were reported to feel that their ally must protect their interests. Thailand also has 12,500 troops in the anti-Communist effort in South Vietnam.

In Jakarta, Sunday, Nixon said he believes Asian nations should have a role in the exploration of space. He said he noticed in the Philippines that space and the U.S. moon landing were principal topics of conversation.

As he left Jakarta, Nixon was confident Indonesia's future is in "good hands."

TWO FLYING

Meanwhile, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Creighton Abrams, top U.S. officials in Vietnam, were flying to Bangkok today for talks with Nixon.

There was no confirmation that Nixon would make a quick trip to Vietnam shortly after meeting with Bunker and Abrams.

Tanks and Copters Back U.S. Attack

SAIGON (AP) — United States troops backed by tanks and helicopters smashed through hedgerows and bunkers in an area called the Citadel near Saigon on Monday and hit the Viet Cong guerrillas in one of the sharpest clashes since the summer lull in ground fighting in South Vietnam began six weeks ago.

In a series of nine clashes Sunday, U.S. and allied infantry backed by rocket-firing helicopters and heavy artillery killed 102 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers while losing one slain and two wounded, spokesmen reported.

Though skirmishes did not indicate a break in the lull, American analysts said, intelligence reports indicate. Communist-led forces are gearing for further assaults with the high point expected in the last half of August.

Man on a Mission

PRESIDENT RICHARD NEXON is embarked on an exploration adventure of his own, and it is surmised that the triumph of the United States' moon landing will give him additional prestige in his diplomatic dealings with the seven nations on his itinerary.

Possibly greatest interest will be generated by Mr. Nixon's visit to Bucharest, where he goes at the invitation of Romania's Nicholae Caeusescu. This is territory almost as unfamiliar to United States leaders as was the Sea of Tranquility to the astronauts.

No U.S. chief executive has visited any Communist country since the Second World War. The late John F. Kennedy came closest to the Iron Curtain when he made his dramatic appearance in West Berlin.

Whether Mr. Nixon goes with the concurrence of the Kremlin is a matter of conjecture; but it is not necessarily so. Mr. Caeusescu has shown before, during and since the Communist Party conference in Moscow an intrepid independence, in spite of the experiences of Hungarians and Czechoslovakians who attempted to follow that road.

On this point a Stockholm newspaper has an interesting observation. "Mr. Caeusescu," says the Svenka Dagbladet, "could not have made his criticism (of Soviet attitudes) more explicit than to invite the chief executive of a country which, more than any other, evokes associations of imperialism in the Communist mind. Not only that, but Mr. Nixon will be coming to Bucharest after a tour of five Asian countries, of which at least two are often described in Soviet propaganda as hotbeds of disreputable American activity. How much cold Romanian steel can Moscow stand?"

There is the other view, of course. An indulgent Kremlin may believe the president's visit will serve a useful purpose to the Soviet. Bucharest, in a sense, represents a bridge between the two halves of the Communist world: the Moscow leadership on the one hand, the Peking dognatists on the other. It could be that the Soviet hopes Mr. Nixon's visit will be interpreted as a signal of strict neutrality in the event of further deterioration of the relationship between the two Communist schools, or, at least will be conducive to an easier climate as far as the United States and the Warsaw Pact countries are concerned.

The president has been careful to explain that his visit to Bucharest must not be construed as a discourtesy to Russia or as an attempt to break the diplomatic deadlock with the Chinese.

And yet it seems a long way to go simply for a social call on Mr. Caeusescu. Events may disclose the real purpose in the president's mind.

But at the moment the best guess would be that he intends to try to prevail on the Romanian leader to use his good offices to dissuade Communist China from its aggressive aims in Asia and the possibly disastrous consequences.

If he succeeds his mission will be a diplomatic success on a parity with his astronauts' scientific achievement.

No Time to Waste

THE APPARENTLY PONDEROUS and cautious approach of peace-seekers of the Organization of American States to the problem presented by the Honduras-El Salvador collision will cause some misgiving as to the effectiveness of the international group in meeting such crises.

When two such small states are concerned it should be a relatively simple matter to find a formula for settlement of their dispute and to exert the necessary pressures for observance of a ceasefire.

This has not been the case.

Neither side is observing the ceasefire agreed to on July 18. And in the meantime it is the unfortunate peasants caught in the cross-fire between of two dominantly military regimes who are the chief victims.

The conflict is essentially between two dictatorships: Honduras is a United Fruit "banana-republic", and San Salvador is an oligarchy dominated by its noted "fourteen families". And neither has had an impressive record of blue ribbon accomplishments in democratic progress.

Honduras, of course, has instituted a system of land reforms—which the Salvadoreans equate with Castroism. And it's the job opportunities there which have attracted Salvadorean immigrants. But at least a part of the onus for war lies with the Hondurans, who failed to protect the rights and persons of Salvadoreans who came in search of a livelihood.

El Salvador, by last report, has agreed to an OAS demand that it relinquish Honduras territory it has occupied—but on condition. The condition is simple enough. Salvadoreans allowed to enter Honduras must be guaranteed protection.

Until some means is found for the implementation of such a plan it seems the stalemate will continue, unless the OAS is prepared to use intervention clauses in its charter to put an end to hostilities which have the murderous potential of the Gran Chaco war of the 1930s when Bolivians and Paraguayans decimated each other or the bloody conflict between Peru and Ecuador fought in the shadow of the Second World War.

The longer the situation is allowed to deteriorate, as it must, the greater will be the difficulty in quenching the hostility of the belligerents.

Air Fares

IN A WAY it is disappointing that fares on the new giant jetliners will not be as low as once anticipated. The president of Pan-American World Airways, Najeeb Halaby, says it was originally believed that the size of these aircraft would permit cost reductions of up to 30 per cent. But now, with galloping inflation, any substantial reduction is ruled out.

The reduction of fares over the past years, however, has been a remarkable achievement of the industry, placing air travel within the reach of more and more millions of people, so that—as was reported on this page the other day—this year the 104 member airlines of the International Air Transport Association reckon they will be carrying 240,000,000 passengers. And though it may be true of aircraft that everything that goes up must come down, the rule seems not to apply to costs.

If the airlines can even hold the line on fares at this time of exceptional inflation, they will be in effect reducing them.

Ready, set, go! . . . for the round-the-world handshake derby

Wanted: A Single Canada—II

A Source of Discord and Dissension

This article, in two instalments, comprises excerpts from an address to a public meeting in Edmonton by the author, a former president of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

By HON. J. T. THORSON

I NOW come to the entry of Pierre Elliott Trudeau on the Canadian scene. He was a welcome newcomer to the Liberal party. He was a brilliant and courageous minister of justice. His campaign for the leadership of the party was spectacular. The election of the party, under his leadership, with a substantial majority, was the most exciting election in Canadian history. His belief in Canada, his rejection of the two-nation theory and his espousal of a just society captured the imagination of the Canadian people, particularly the youth. And there is no doubt that thousands of Canadians believed that he would confront the leaders of Quebec in respect of their intolerable demands. His plea to the people of Quebec that they should rely on their federal members rather than on their provincal ones made a substantial impact on the Quebec electorate.

* * *

Thus far, Prime Minister Trudeau has not seriously confronted the Quebec leaders. In one respect he has followed in the footsteps of his predecessor in forcing official bilingualism on the people of Canada. Indeed, he has gone a step further, as he said he would do, in introducing the Official Languages Act and he has insisted on its enactment.

In so doing, he has stirred up a controversy, not yet fully vocal, of such dangerous proportions that Canada is now in the most critical period of her history so far as the relationship of French Canadians to the other components of the Canadian nation is concerned. This is as true in Quebec as in the rest of Canada, even in the West.

The Official Languages Act is seriously objectionable on many grounds. On November 12, 1968, I wrote to Prime Minister Trudeau expressing the opinion that the proposed act was not within the legislative competence of Parliament. I put forward certain reasons for my opinion and suggested that before the act was allowed to go into effect it should be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada for adjudication of the question whether it was constitutionally valid or not. I received a courteous reply from the prime minister setting forth reasons for differing from the opinion that I had expressed.

* * *

This is not the forum for discussing in detail the question whether Parliament has the necessary legislative competence to enact the measure, but it is permissible to express the opinion that its provisions making French an official language in areas where it does not now have such a status and compelling the use of French in cases where its use is not now required are in conflict with the provisions of Section 133 of the British North America Act and that, consequently, the enactment of the act would be a breach of an essential condition of Confederation.

At the recent federal provincial conference, the premiers of the three Prairie provinces requested a reference of the proposed act to the Supreme Court of Canada for an adjudication of the question of its validity.

* * *

Thus far, the indications are that the government will not make the reference. Criticism of its unwillingness to do so is in order. The people of Canada have the right to know whether it is constitutionally valid or not. This question cannot be settled in the political arena. It can be settled only by a decision of the highest judicial tribunal in the land, the Supreme Court of Canada. It is improper that a question of such vital importance to the future of Canada should be left in doubt. If it is an unwarranted attempt to extend the ambit of Section 133 of the British North America Act, without a constitutional amendment of it, which would require the consent of the provinces, it should not be imposed on the people of Canada.

The political difficulty in which the prime minister would find himself if he made the reference and it should be adjudicated that the act is invalid is not a justification for his unwillingness to have the disputed question settled.

Apart from the constitutional question there are grave objections to the act.

Its enforcement would be a retrogressive step. The attempt to make Canada a French language country as well as an English language one is contrary to the trend in North America towards English as the league of communication.

The act will put French Canadians in a preferred position over all other Canadians of non-British, non-French descent. They are not entitled to such preference on any ground, historical, constitutional, or on merit. The act contains provisions that are grossly discriminatory against the Canadians of foreign descent, of whom there are more than five million, almost as many as the French Canadians themselves. They should not tolerate this discrimination. Their fathers and mothers came to Canada and found that in this land, regardless of their foreign origin, they had the right of equality with everyone else.

This right is inherent in the principles of the British constitution which Canada has inherited from Great Britain. They treasured this right and their sons and daughters fought in two wars for the country which gave this right to them. The Canadians of foreign descent must resist the attempt to put them in the position of inferiority to the French Canadians that is implied in the act. They are an integral part of the Canadian nation and must assert their right to be so regarded.

The imposition of compulsory bilingualism in the public service across Canada and the establishment of federal bilingual districts will impose a heavy financial burden on the Canadian taxpayer. Recently Mr. Trudeau stated that there were two costly programs ahead of Canada, one bilingualism and the other regional disparity. He also issued a stern warning that the costs of government must come down. What are the public expenditures that must be cut? Must the Canadian expenditures in the field of social welfare be reduced in order to help pay for the cost of official bilingualism? The question is fairly put.

* * *

The enforcement of the act will not make for national unity in Canada. On the contrary, it will be a source of constant discord. This will be particularly true in the case of federal bilingual districts, which may be established in areas where 10 per cent of the people are French Canadians, and in which their number is smaller than that of Canadians of foreign descent. In these areas there will inevitably be discord and dissension of a nature similar to that which has been so disturbing in Quebec . . .

Let us not allow another attempt to create a dual nation in Canada to succeed. Here I sound a note of warning. Unless we unite in opposition to the attempt to establish a dual French-English nation in Canada, it will come upon us with its inevitable discord and dissension before we realize its dangers. We must not allow our country to become another Belgium.

* * *

Let us, therefore, even at this date, make a drive for the mobilization of the public opinion of Canada that, deep down in the hearts of her people, is opposed to the attempt that is in the course of being made to change the basic character of our country by establishing a dual French-English nation in our country and foisting a dual French-English Canadian nationality on our people. We should set this mobilization on foot by organizing a Canadian association for the purpose of preventing the threatened attempt from succeeding and safeguarding the single Canada that we have been building. I suggest that we call this organization "The Single Canada League." Let us establish it now.

We must not allow ourselves to be diverted from this duty by charges of extremism or be frightened by the threat that Canada is faced with the alternative of either the Official Languages Act or the disintegration of the nation. There is only one disintegration that we need fear, the disintegration of the Single Canada of our dreams.

Opium Curb Planned

By JOHN S. DAVID from London

TURKEY is to stop the legal growing of opium. An agreement has been reached by which the United States is to contribute $2,500,000 a year in a five-year plan to stop opium growing and curb illegal drug trafficking. The Turkish government will contribute a similar amount each year, mainly to compensate Turkish opium growers.

Under the plan, American and Turkish police will co-operate in enforcing the ban on opium growing and drug trafficking.

* * *

The agreement has not yet been made public in Turkey. This is partly because of the American role in the anti-opium campaign. The Turks are very sensitive at hints of American interference in Turkey's internal affairs, particularly in the present period before the general elections due in October.

Under the 1961 "Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs" Turkey is one of the seven countries which grows opium with the knowledge of the United Nations. Over the past years opium growing has already been restricted and is now grown predominantly in the provinces of Afyon, Izmir, Amasya and Malatya. It is not one of Turkey's main sources of income as most of the opium grown is sold for treatment abroad.

* * *

Illegal smuggling and peddling of opium has become a constant source of embarrassment to foreign consulates in Turkey, particularly in Istanbul, the crossroads of Asia and Europe. The consulates become involved when citizens of their countries are given prison sentences, as penalties are severe (2½ years for possession of drugs alone), and Turkish prisons are brutal by European standards. Last year a Danish boy was given a sentence of 30 years. There are at present some seven Englishmen serving sentences and four Americans.

American trafficking is said to be greater than these figures would suggest, but few pedlars have been caught. Eight per cent of the illegal opium in America comes from Turkey. American experts maintain that opium is no longer a medical necessity.

Implementation of the agreed five-year plan will not, of course, eradicate opium growing completely. This will take years. One of the reasons is that the short opium plant is often grown together with corn or some other crop and without intensive search, the opium plant is difficult to see.

Farmers who have been growing opium officially will in future receive assistance to enable them to change over to another crop.

Under the agreement there are to be special drug police, who will be to some extent separate from local police and will report only direct to the capital, Ankara. Already there has been some police activity to reduce the number of peddlers and Turkish customs are particularly strict.

* * *

A hotel in the old part of Istanbul which was notorious for drug peddling was recently cleaned up. Two American policemen have been based in the city for the past two years. They pose as buyers of opium, and carry arms which they may use in self-defence. Their job forces them to lead double lives but they say they find it fun. One hundred and eighteen drug offenders have been arrested during their time in Istanbul.

Partly because of easy access to drugs, Turkey is on the "hippie" route to Afghanistan and Nepal and it may be many years before it loses this reputation. The Western consulates in Istanbul have just had a meeting to discuss the problem, as they are expecting more trouble with their nationals during the coming months.

Washington Calling

U.S. Tobacco Lobby In Strenuous Fight

By MARQUIS CHILDS

ON the power chart of the American pressure lobbies the Tobacco Institute rates not far behind the gun lobby, which is the untouchable top. The institute, a dressed-up name for lobby, has been fighting a rear-guard action to prevent or at least delay any check on the incessant flow of cigarette advertising pouring out over television aimed, despite all the pious protestations, at the young.

Those trying to cut off this flow or compel the advertisers to include a warning of the danger from cigarette smoking estimate that 4,000 young each day take the first step toward addiction. A recent study by St. Louis University, financed incidentally by the Tobacco Institute, shows that it is an addiction with physiological and phychological consequences comparable to other addictive drugs.

In the debate in the House over a proposal to give the Federal Trade Commission the right to impose restraints, the double-talk was of a mind-curdling variety rare even for that body. For one who witnessed the ordeal of lung cancer in the beloved partner of a lifetime the record of that debate is nauseating. Of course, as the Tobacco Institute repeatedly says, science has not established beyond any doubt the conclusive cause and effect.

Yet, the incidence of cancer, along with heart trouble, emphysema and related diseases, is so much greater in the man or woman who smokes one to three packs a day that the pro-cigarette case can be made only by double-talk.

* * *

A hearing before the Federal Trade Commission showed the authority of the lobby. With H. Thomas Austern, counsel for the Tobacco Institute, as the witness this exchange occurred:

Commissioner Philip Elman: You say everybody knows that cigarette smoking is dangerous to health?

Austern: Yes: I will take it on that issue, sir.

When the transcript of the hearing was released that exchange had been stricken out. Substituted was a formal statement by Austern simply repeating the institute's case against any health warning other than the small print on each pack of cigarettes.

That was the essential issue in the fight in the House. Leading the effort to damp down the cigarette propaganda, Rep. John E. Moss, (D.—Calif.) insisted that the small-print warning served the tobacco manufacturers and had almost no impact on the smoker who was already an addict. Putting the warning on each pack at the instigation of the FTC, the cigarette makers can escape legal liability in the lawsuits filed by smokers or their families charging that death and disease resulted from the addiction.

Repeated attempts were made to modify the bill curbing the FTC so that it would be acceptable to a majority. Rep. Brock Adams, (D.—Wash.) pointed out that 48 of the 50 states have laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors. With a bow to states-righters he proposed that states with such laws require advertisements to specify the health hazards for the young. The Adams amendment was shouted down.

* * *

Moss, with something close to despair, eyed two potent tobacco lobbyists, former Sen. Earl Clements of Kentucky and former Rep. Horace Kornegay of North Carolina, in the presidential box conferring with cigarette lieutenants from the floor of the House. We have reached, he finally said, a point where we had better say, "The public be damned—we are not concerned with your welfare." The final vote was 252 to 137, a stunning triumph for the cigarette lobby.

But while the farce went on in the House public pressures were building that neither the cigarette nor the broadcasting industries could ignore. The code board of the National Association of Broadcasters announced that cigarette advertisements would be phased out among its subscribers over the next four years. Loud protest followed. If the clever cigarette commercials showing the young and the beautiful lighting up were inducing a whole new generation to smoke, why wait four years to stop?

The climax came last week. A spokesman for the Tobacco Institute, Joseph F. Cullman, offered at a hearing of the Senate consumer subcommittee to stop all radio and television advertising by September of 1970 or at any time after Dec. 31 of this year if advertising contracts with the broadcasters could be terminated. As a quid pro quo Cullman asked that the tobacco industry not be required to put health warnings in their ads in the printed media.

* * *

The cynical may say that the institute was bowing to the inevitable. Nevertheless, it is a big step. And it would never have come about if Moss of the House and Sen. Frank E. Moss (D—Utah) had not pushed tirelessly for stronger restraints.

As with so much in contemporary life there is a great ambivalence in this whole tobacco business. The federal government gets from $3.5 to $4 billion in cigarette taxes. And the government spends $28 million a year to promote tobacco sales abroad while handing out big subsidies to tobacco growers.

How much advertising is responsible for making the young believe that cigarette smoking is a badge of maturity and sophistication is debatable. One can only say they are doing their best and it is no mean best.

Use a Road Map

From The Albertan

ACCORDING to news reports over the weekend, record numbers of Canadians and Americans are hitting the open road — more than 100 million of them in all parts of the continent before the summer vacation season is finished. They'll set records in the mileage run up by the family car and the amount of money spent at holiday resorts and cities that are visited — and it is to be hoped, too, that they'll set records in driving safety.

In the latter field, there is a factor that is changing as a result of the vast improvement in highways, particularly in the United States. In the past, it has generally been considered to be a good holiday practice to limit driving to 350 miles per day. That figure, officially approved by automobile associations, still holds true for non-freeway driving in the United States.

However, because of the rapid development of the interstate system of freeways below the border, it is now being recommended that 500 miles per day be the maximum for freeway driving. In Canada, where there are not too many long stretches of highway which meet the U.S. interstate standards, a figure of 400 miles per day maximum would probably be reasonable although, in the mountains west of Calgary, perhaps 300 would be even better.

In any case, it is now being recognized that a motorist who hopes to make maximum safe mileage to and from vacation areas should know where he is going, should know the best route to take to get there, and should know as much as possible about the roads he is to use before he drives over them. And that means, before any trip is undertaken, that a little time should be devoted to the old Boy Scout skill of map reading.

* * *

Where should you stop for meals? Where will you change from one road to another? Is the road paved, gravelled, dirt? All these things, and many more, can be learned from a road map — and will contribute to the first rule of safe auto travel, "Plan your trip in advance."

Best of all, it costs nothing. With road maps readily available to all customers at service stations, and to members at automobile association offices, there is no need for anyone to use guesswork in getting from here to there during vacation time.

The modern road map, used intelligently to plan a trip and decide the maximum amount of driving that should be done in a day, can be a tremendous help in making this summer's holiday driving not only a record in terms of miles covered and money spent, but also in safety.

Dread of Computer Error in Nuclear Age Causes Soviet Policy Shift?

Reds Fear 'Doomsday Machine'

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
From New York

The Kremlin has give voice to a fear which has haunted many persons. This fear may be behind a reluctant shift in Soviet policy.

Moscow suggests that men are in danger of losing control over their weapons, that life or death for millions depends upon machines.

The long and carefully elaborate July 10 policy statement by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko suggested that only the Soviet Union and the United States, by concerted effort, could ensure the world against a catastrophic accident.

There was an added hint that perhaps the two super powers had common interest in imposing order on a disorderly world, an echo of a notion once attributed to Nikita Khrushchev.

Perhaps much of the motivation was propaganda, but the Gromyko statement also may have been prompted by genuine dread among some elements in the Kremlin of where the arms race may lead Russia, militarily and ecnomically. Perhaps, they may be saying, the Americans and Russians should be more friendly enemies, before it is too late.

* * *

"The weapons systems are becoming, so to speak, ever more autonomous of the people who create them," said Gromyko. "Human hearing and eyesight are incapable of reacting precisely to modern speeds. The human brain is not always capable of assessing swiftly enough the readings of a multitude of instruments, and the decision taken by man depends in the final analysis, on conclusions furnished by computers."

And if the computers, lacking the element of human reason, should make a mistake? Gromyko's words evoke chilling memories of the Doomsday Machine projected in the movie Dr. Strangelove.

* * *

Every once in a while, Khrushchev dropped a hint that since there were only two powers which really mattered, it might make sense for them to divide the world between them. Khrushchev was dismissed by his successors in 1964 as a "harebrained schemer."

Now see what the Kremlin says: "The world situation is determined in large measure upon relations between the big powers. The Soviet Union is devoting steady attention also to this aspect of foreign policy."

* * *

Then it adds: "It is quite obvious that our two countries are divided by class distinctions. But the Soviet Union has always proceeded from the view that the USSR and the USA can always find a common language on questions of preserving peace."

What seems to be weighing most on the Kremlin mind is the arms race, the vast expenditures associated with it and what to do about it within the bounds of Soviet security.

Gromyko prefaced his remarks by saying that the arms race has "long become sheer madness" and by deploring the expenditure in 1968 alone by the world's nations of more than $200,000,000,000 on military needs.

* * *

"Governments must do everything possible to be able to determine the development of events and not find themselves in the role of captives of events," said the policy statement, again hinting at dread of a nuclear accident.

This was the preface to a bid to the United States to enter into talks on limitation of strategic arms.

* * *

"We are for the development of good relations with the United States and would like these relations to be turned into friendly ones," the statement went on, "because we are convinced that this would be in line with the interests on both the Soviet and American people."

Israel and Egypt Playing with Fire

By GEOFFREY SUMNER
From Cairo

The explosion of air fighting in the Suez Canal zone appears to mark the beginning of a sustained trial of strength between the Israeli and Egyptian air forces.

Both nations seem determined to continue hurling their warplanes into the ominously intensfying conflict on the Middle East's most inflammable battlefront.

The Israelis show no sign of backing down from their new ironfisted policy of sending aircraft west of the canal to retaliate for commando crossings by attacking Egyptian gun batteries. And far from deterring Egypt, the Israeli air raids seem to have made President Nasser more determined than ever to keep the canal "ceasefire" burning.

* * *

Nasser's speeches last week—marking the arrival of his revolution at the bittersweet age of 17—suggest that the Egyptian artillery and rocket bombardments across the canal will not only continue but indeed intensify. So will the raids by Egyptian commandos against Israeli positions on the canals east bank.

Nasser's air strategy, as it has so far emerged, is to wait for Israeli air strikes. The Egyptian air force will not immediately engage the attacking formations. Instead the Egyptians' massive array of anti-aircraft guns and ground-to-air missiles will open up.

If Israeli aircraft are hit the Egyptians will normally not continue the fighting. But if no planes are brought down, or if Egyptian positions are substantially strafled, Egyptian fighters already aloft will be ordered to streak east of the canal as they did last week.

* * *

Nasser's decision to commit his air force to the twilight war across the canal marks a strategical shift—previously he was holding back the air force for the "battle of destiny." His decision is, however, essentially one of necessity.

To permit Israeli aircraft to cross the canal is unthinkable in the context of the bellicose mood prevailing in the Egyptian forces and of Nasser's continued desire to demonstrate that his country remains at the head of the Arab struggle.

The resident, who is Egypt's dominant military stragegist, is apparently still debating the new strategy with his service chiefs. Well informed Egyptians say, however, that Nasser is beginning to believe that his air force is now strong enough to meet Israel's on something like equal terms.

* * *

The theory runs that in a chain of air battles some Israeli aircraft can be brought down, others subjected to severe mechanical wear and the Israeli pilots' confidence in their supremacy severely shaken.

There is, however, the danger of escalation. Many Cairo intellectuals are, in fact, arguing that regular air sorties would enable the Egyptians to mount an all-out air strike without the Israelis being immediately able to distinguish this from a routine skirmish. But equally there is a risk for Egypt that the Israelis might choose to interpret a minor Egyptian sortie as a full-scale attack.

The most debated question in Cairo at the moment was posed by Mohammed Haesanein Heykal, editor of the newspaper Al Ahram, when he wrote in a comment on the air fighting: "Can we conclude that Israel might find that the right time for the deadly blow is approaching?"

Nixon's 'New-Old' Policy In Asia May Just Succeed

By ROD CURRIE, from Washington

The outline of President Nixon's new Adian policy bears a striking resemblance to the Asian policies of presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

Speaking to a group of accompanying reporters in Guam, one of the early stops on his current round-the-world tour, the president used the increasingly familiar Nixon device of speaking freely but forbidding direct quotation.

* * *

Thus the world receives the word through a process of paraphrasing that gives the president a measure of protective ambiguity before delivering his message directly to the Asian leaders he will be visiting.

It gives them a forewarning of what is to come but does not commit him in advance to anything he has said, or, more accurately, what he is reported to have said.

What he is pretty generally reported to have said is that after Vietnam, the U.S. hopes to become actively engaged in defence of an Asian country only if that country is threatened by nuclear attack.

* * *

He said the U.S. has the right to expect Asian countries over the long haul to provide, individually or through regional collective security arrangements, for their own defence.

In a nutshell, U.S. policy will be geared to avoid creeping involvement in such situations as Vietnam. It will continue to offer economic support, will live up to present specific treaty commitments but in the future the Asians will have to show more self-reliance.

In general the plan has already won pretty wide support in Congress fru both the lef and the right. For the doves there is the emphasis on not interfering in the internal affairs of other countries; for the hawks there is the appealing emphasis on self-reliance and self-help in developing countries.

* * *

But historians are quick to point out that President Eisenhower set out a similar aim years ago in cautiously offering the South Vietnamese government economic support on the condition the South Vietnamese do more to help themselves.

President Kennedy's policy was almost identical to that outlined by Nixon and Lyndon Johnson ran for president on the theme that American boys shouldn't fight wars that Asians ought to fight for themselves.

Despite all these words, the U.S. gradually slid into the Vietnamese trap, which eventually forced Johnson out of the White House and helped elect Nixon as his successor.

* * *

The only difference now is that Nixon, who admits it might be difficult to follow such a policy, is reviving it at a point in time when, some observers say, it just might work.

Nixon's policy is enhanced by the fact that the U.S. now is beginning the process of disengaging militarily from Vietnam. When other presidents were talking about Asian regionalism and self-reliance, the American military was moving in, not out.

Special Significance

Thailand Testing Ground For Disengagement Move

By MARK FRANKLAND
From Bangkok

The three nights that President Nixon is scheduled to spend in Thailand this week are by no means out of proportion to the importance of this small country for Washington's policy-makers.

In the long run, Thailand will probably matter less to America than either Indonesia or The Philippines, and the efficient haste which Nixon is making through these two countries — less than a full day in each — is considered by traditional-minded diplomats to stop only just this side of the indecent.

* * *

The president's program in Thailand may very well have been stretched to give him time for a secret dash to South Vietman. But Thailand's very special significance for America right now has also counted.

For it is here that the Nixon policy of disengagement from Vietnam and of a cooler approach to America's Asian commitments will have its first serious test.

* * *

If Nixon is wrong and there really is no safe way out of Vietnam except for the old one of military victory and no way to protect the non-communist Asian nations except by committing American troops...it is in Thailand that the first signs of danger will be seen.

Similarly, if Nixon is right, the good news that will encourage the many other Asian countries now asking "After Vietnam what?" will very likely come earliest from Bangkok.

President Nixon will find that the Thais have to cope with three main problems, separate but interlocking, over only one of which Washington has any direct control.

* * *

Problem one is the psychological effect of a compromise Vietnam settlement on a Thai government which has stuck its neck out to support the American war effort.

Moreover the end of the Vietnam war means an almost complete if gradual cutback in American military spending in Thailand, which some economists put as high as eight per cent of Thailand's gross national product last year.

Problem two is the future intentions of China and North Vietnam towards Thailand. At present, the communist-led insurgency in the north, northeast and south of Thailand receives some direction and aid from both Peking and Hanoi, but it is in no way a large scale operation for them yet.

* * *

Senior Thai officials believe that the insurgents are now trying to build up their political base. If— and it is still a sizable if — the insurgents are successful in this, they will be able to absorb far greater amounts of outside help in the future.

Problem three is the ability of the Thai government itself to cope with the political and economic consequences of the new American policy and a possibly more energetic communist strategy, while at the same time surviving the confusing and very likely disruptive stage of social and economic development which has now gone too far to be stopped.

* * *

Almost everyone agrees that a bad settlement in Vietnam with repercussions on the already serious situation in neighboring Laos could dangerously encourage the Communists in Thailand and put the Bangkok government off its present reasonably steady stride.

Six Arrested Following Marine Brawl

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI)—Six Marines were in the brig Monday and the investigation continued in a brawl with "racial overtones" that left one man dead and two others beaten.

Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., has called for a congressional investigation into what he called "infiltration on some military installations by militants, both black and white, who engage in acts of subversion I regard as detrimental to national security."

Biaggi visited the post when marine reservists from New York state, on summer active duty here, complained they feared for their lives.

AUTOPSY

Cpl. Edward Bankston, 20, a marine from Picayune, Miss., died of head injuries Sunday at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Portsmouth, Va. An autopsy was to be performed on his body Monday, but a hospital spokesman said the results would be released only to the naval investigation services.

Capt. Lawrence Lepage, post information officer, said a gang of about 30 marines, most of them Negroes, roamed the main area of the post for about an hour Sunday, July 20, following a beer party at a service club. Lepage said the affair was a "going away" party for the 1st Battalion, 6th Marines, which shipped out to the Mediterranean Wednesday, July 23. He said as far as is known all the men involved were in the 1st Battalion.

Lepage said the large group of marines "seemed to be the aggressive group. They were assaulting small groups of two and three whites in a one-hour period. There didn't seem to be any concrete reason."

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Lepage said of the five men in the base brig, three were Negroes and two Puerto Rican. Lepage said all the men beaten were white. He said the affair had "racial overtones," but added that the exact cause of the fracas was unknown.

"That's what puzzles us the most," he said. "We feel there were racial overtones. I think probably too many people were drinking too much and a big party got out of hand."

Lepage said the fight appeared to be a one-time affair with no further implications.

TALES EXAGGERATED

Some of the fighting took place near the barracks of the 650-man 6th Communications Battalion from the Bronx, N.Y. Lepage said none of the reservists were involved but "they did take in some of the victims."

Legape said a number of reservists telephoned and wrote home exaggerated account of the incident. He said one reservist telephoned his mother that three men had been killed and the commanding officer had committed suicide.

He said another rumor reported to New York was that marines were going around the post armed with chains for protection. Lepage said this was untrue. He said the members of the 1st Battalion, 6th Marines, were issued chains which are used to lock their weapons to their bunks aboard ship, but the said none were used in the fight.

Prostitutes Were 'So Tired'

LONDON (AP) — A Polish-born doctor admitted Monday that he prescribed huge quantities of pep pills to prostitutes because "they were so tired."

The British General Medical Council found Dr. Karol Zawisza, 64, guilty of prescribing addictive drugs "otherwise than for the purpose of bona fide treatment."

The amount of drugs involved was described to the council's disciplinary committee as "mammoth."

Asked whether he issued the prescriptions to help prostitutes work more efficiently, Zawisza said: "They were down, they were absolutely down. They had no power. They were so tired."

The day's proceedings were adjourned before the committee reached agreement on Zawisza's punishment.

Edmonton Counts Up Klondike Days Profit

EDMONTON (CP) — An estimated 270,000 visitors to the city during Klondike Days this year spent about $5,400,000 city officials said Monday.

The 10-day festivities commemorating Edmonton's history as a way station for miners en route to the Klondike gold fields in the Yukon in the late 1800s ended Saturday night.

Art Clough, superintendent of visitors' services, said the city's four tourist bureaus handled about 13,500 inquiries, compared with 12,200 last year.

The total number of visitors was 11 per cent more than in 1968 and liquor sales in many hotels were doubled as thirsty revellers flocked to their favorite watering holes. Average beer consumption was 1,200 quarts a day at the pubs and liquor sales were 65 per cent higher than in June.

But, said police, arrests for impaired and drunken driving were also up.

The fair held in connection drew a record 525,203 persons.

Windsor Council Draws a Mayor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — City council shuffled a pack of cards Monday and drew a mayor.

The council fell back on the unorthodox method of appointing an interim mayor until scheduled municipal elections in December after four aldermen, Albert Weeks, William Riggs, Frank Wansbrough and Anthony Soda each got two votes for the post.

Riggs drew the queen of hearts, beating Soda with a five, Wansborough with a seven and Weeks with a jack.

The position fell vacant after Mayor John Wheelton resigned to acept an appointment as a provincial judge.

Viola Kills 20, Lashes China

HONG KONG (AP) — Typhoon Viola, which killed at least 20 persons in the Philippines and two in Formosa, slammed into the south China coast near Swatow Monday after bypassing Hong Kong, the Royal Observatory reported.

An observatory spokesman said the typhoon would "weaken quickly" once its centre was overland. It hit the coast with 135-mile-an-hour centre winds.

The deaths in the Phillippines were due to drownings and landslides. Floods were widespread and heavy property damage was reported. Many sections of Manila and its suburbs were under water after a heavy downpour Sunday.

Fringe winds from the storm struck Manila Saturday morning and a rain shower delayed President Nixon's departure for Indonesia by half an hour.

After the storm hit northern and central Luzon, the Philippines' main island, it moved through the Luzon Straits Sunday 100 miles south of Hengchun, the southernmost tip of Formosa, causing torrential rains. Two persons on the Naionalist Chinese island were killed and six injured.

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Anna blew in the 1969 hurricane season Monday and whirled westward with 60 mile an hour winds, following the path of the ill-fated Egyptian reed boat Ra across the distant central Atlantic.

The national hurricane centre at Miami predicted Anna would intensify into a full-blown hurricane with 75 mph winds by early today. A late advisory estimated the storm centre about 1,700 miles east-southeast of Puerto Rico.

New Indian Policy Promised

Berger Pledges Tax Relief

PENTICTON (CP) — Tom Berger, provincial New Democratic party leader, said here Monday property taxes should pay for property services not people services.

Mr. Berger told a press conference the costs of services for people should come out of general revenue and none of it should be borne by the local taxpayer.

He said that, as a first step in this direction, an NDP government would assume the total cost for the construction and operation of regional colleges.

He said that residents in the North and Interior must pay double taxation for post-secondary education.

"The present Social Credit government makes the local property owner pay 40 per cent of the cost of regional colleges." Mr. Berger said. "Besides that, Northern and Interior residents must pay to support universities in the Lower Mainland out of their general taxation."

In Merritt, Mr. Berger said Sunday an NDP government would include Indians in any review of provincial aid to native people.

Mr. Berger told a meeting of Indian chiefs at the Shulman reserve that both Ottawa and the Social Credit government have failed to help Indians.

Most of the blame lies with legislators who don't consult Indians about their problems, Mr. Berger said.

He said Premier Bennett announced a $25,000,000 First Citizens Fund last year to help Indians "but he never bothered consulting with Indians first to find out where they thought the $1,750,000 annual grant should be spent. It was presented to them as a completed action."

Mr. Berger said the federal government is guilty of the same offence in its treatment of Indians through the federal Indian Act.

Giant Cleanup McGeer Promise

100 MILE HOUSE (CP)—Liberal leader Pat McGeer Sunday pledged a clean-up campaign for British Columbia and declared war on all pollution ranging from picnic litter to automobile graveyards.

"We're going to clean up B.C. and protect its lakes, rivers, shores and land," he told 40 Cariboo constituency workers in his bid for a Liberal government in the Aug. 27 provincial election.

TORUIST HAVEN

"B.C. will be a tourist haven in the future and we will see that this potential is protected and enhanced," he said. "We must expand our campsites, cut down litter and eliminate automobile graveyards—every automobile carcass in this province must go."

He then introduced candidate Dave Zirnhelt, former Student Council president of the University of B.C. who said he is "optimistic and determined to win" in Cariboo.

NOT EASY

Mr. Zirnhelt admitted in an interview that the victory won't be easy because the government is wooing the Cariboo voters.

"Just recently they've announced that half the road between Williams Lake and Quesnel will be blacktopped," he said. "And the day after the election was called the expansion of Williams Lake Hospital was approved—something that has been only talked about for years."

Germ-Warfare Stock Explained by Laird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said Monday the U.S. must maintain stock of chemical and biological warfare agents as a deterrent against that type of attack by other countries against the U.S.

Shipyard Death

Lowering Order 'Seconds Before'

It was a matter of seconds between the time of an order to a crane operator and the time the lifting gear came crashing down, a coroner's jury was told Monday.

Department of public works crane operator Alvin Farrell, 883 Lampson, was describing the circumstances in the death of Yarrows plater William Ligget. He died when lifting rigging snapped as a 63-ton crane cab was being set in place on a platform of a self-loading barge July 22 at Esquimalt Graving Dock.

IN POSITION

The cab was in position and the crane was maintaining tension on the load, Mr. Farrell said.

Mr. Ligget and three other men were working on top of the crane cab when the rigging let go.

Victoria police identification Constable Patrick Braiden introduced photographs showing a bend in a lifting bar used to hoist the crane cab into position.

Mr. Farrell said it was a "matter of seconds," between the time he was directed to lower the boom and raise the hook on the crane and the time the rigging broke.

SHOUTED INSTRUCTIONS

Yarrows rigger Joseph Woolcock of 1125 Esquimalt Road told the jury he had shouted instructions to the crane operator to raise the crane hook and lower the crane boom. He said he had been working on top of the barge crane cab with Mr. Ligget.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre asked, "Were you injured?"

"No, I was lucky," replied Mr. Woolcock.

The inquest is to resume at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Victoria Law Courts.

Miniature Poodle Wins Summer Kennel Show

Belle, a silver miniature poodle owned by Irene Copus of Sidney, was judged best in show of 107 dogs Sunday at the Victoria City Kennel Club's summer sanction show.

Missy, an American cocker spaniel owned by Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Vandermolen of Port Alberni, was best puppy and Mary Rose Fraser of Cobble Hill was named best junior handler.

Best in the sporting group was an English cocker spaniel named Taffy, owned by Mrs. I. S. C. Edwards of Saanich. Best in the hound group was Portland, a Basenji owned by Mrs. Margaret Robertson of Victoria.

San Cloud, a Samoyed owned by Wendy Bishop of Port Alberni, was named best in the working group, and Lonie, a West Highland white terrier owned by Eric Cox of Victoria, was best in the terrier group.

Blue Bear, a silky toy terrier owned by Dr. and Mrs. Henry McHemer of Chemainus, was best toy, and Belle, winner of best in show, also was best in the non-sporting group.

When the rock concert ended, the Parrott Serenade began.

It lasted all weekend and contained such lines as: "You dirty, yellow coward."

The target of this and numerous other telephone insults was a bewildered Ald. Parrott, who said late Monday he wanted to set the record straight.

* * *

First of all, he said, he was not the one who ordered an end to Friday night's rock concert in Royal Athletic Park.

Secondly, he was really fond of young people and hoped they would have other rock concerts —but indoors.

The alderman was reported to have ordered a halt to the event because it was running overtime and there had been numerous complaints of noise.

* * *

Ald. Parrott said Monday he went to the park after receiving complaints, and told promoter Paul Watson the contract with the city called for a minimum of noise.

"He told me this was the minimum," he said.

Beyond this, he did nothing and gave no orders, he said.

A city employee made the decision to douse the lights and end the show.

* * *

There had been a breach of contract on two points, city officials said.

The crowd was to have stayed off the grass because of new sod, but this was disregarded at the invitation of one of the bands.

The show was to have ended at 11 p.m., but an extra 15 minutes was granted because the feature band hadn't been on stage long enough. However, when the 15 minutes was up, the music continued. The power was turned off 12 minutes later.

* * *

Ald. Parrott said his phone rang all day Saturday and Sunday. There were many calls from persons siding with him, but a great many anonymous others who hurled insults.

Another up-shot has been a complaint that there isn't enough organized activity for Victoria's young people.

Kathleen Thompson, 27, of 297 Arnold, plans to get a petition going in hope of forcing the city to increase its avenues of recreation.

* * *

"I grew up in this city, and I know what it is like for a young person," she said.

"I got on the phone right after reading about what happened, and I could get at least 300 names before starting to canvass."

Cleric Grateful Death Date Set

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Rev. Wyburn Skidmore said he was grateful he knew he was going to die within six months.

"Some doctors seem to think some people would just give up," he told reporters recently. "But in former days I learned people could make much more out of their remaining days if they knew what was coming."

So when a doctor told the Methodist minister in February that he was suffering from terminal cancer, he asked himself what to do.

"The answer came like a voice from God," he said. "You have all the time to do the things you have to do, but not an hour to spare. Love the family. Serve the church. Write the book. The next morning I pulled a table over to my bed and started writing."

He continued preaching in his church, St. Paul's Methodist, until forced to enter hospital.

He finished a draft of Steps of a Good Man, a book about his view of life that he said he had wanted to write for 20 years.

He died Sunday at 51.

Peace Time Urged For Pope

LAGOS (AP)—Biafran leader Gen. Odemegwu Ojukwu Monday proposed a truce in the Nigerian civil war during the visit of Pope Paul to Africa, beginning Thursday.

A Biafran government statement heard over Radio Biafra and monitored here, said: ". . . If Africa cannot have a permanent peace it should ensure that peace reigns during the visit of His Holiness."

CASTEL GONDOLFO, Italy (Reuters)—The Pope said Sunday he will be seeking peace in Africa when he flies to Uganda for a three-day visit.

In a clear reference to the Nigerian civil war, the Pope said:

"Our journey has an aim which we must describe as ardent and grievous — that of peace."

Golds Plunge As Markets Turn Weaker

TORONTO (CP) — Golds posted their sharpest one-day loss on record as the market dropped to its lowest level since last August.

It was the third successive daily loss for the market.

The gold index plunged 25.1 to 178.25, its lowest level of the year.

Dome Mines lost 9⅝ to 55, Campbell Red Lake 2½ to 22½, Giant Yellowknife 1⅜ to 10⅜, Upper Canada 65 cents to $3.00 and Camflo 45 cents to $5.10.

Western oils continued their decline that started in June.

The western oil index dropped 11.8 to 216.31 after touching 215.43, its low for the year.

Thirteen of the 17 industrial components were lower. Bank, chemical, communication and trust and loan stocks were slightly higher.

Losses Run High

VANCOUVER — Losses were heavy particularly in oils and mining issues. United Bata was off .75 and Syracuse .80 among oils, and Bison was a lone winner, up .15.

Leading the losers in mines were Churchill off .95 at 5.55; Buttle off .75 at 4.00 and Utica off .20 at 2.00. Valley Copper was off 1.25 at a new low of 14.

Industrials were also under attack. Among the heavier losers were Whonnock off 2½ at 10, House of Stein, Block and PWA.

Banks Strengthen

MONTREAL (CP) — With industrials battered by heavy losses, the market closed weaker. Only banks were stronger.

In banks, Royal advanced ⅛ to 20 and Montreal ⅛ to 14. Toronto-Dominion declined ⅝ to 18⅝.

Among industrials, Radio Engineering 4⅞ to 21⅝, Sherwin-Williams 3⅞ to 18⅛, Canada and Dominion Sugar 3½ to 34.

In senior mines and oils, Hudson Bay Mining fell 2⅛ to 72, Pacific Pete 2½ to 28, Aquitaine 1⅛ to 18½, Denison 1⅝ to 42 and Shell 1 to 25.

Lowest Since 1967

NEW YORK (AP) — It was another gloomy day as the stock market beat a sharp retreat, declines finished ahead of advances by better than 1,100 issues and the Dow Jones industrial average closing at its lowest level since early 1967.

The index was off from the start and continued to decline throughout. Losing 11.83, the index closed at 806.23, the lowest it has closed since the 805.51 of Jan. 5, 1967.

Some of the oil issues were hard-hit in the declining market, with Natomas off 9⅝ to 71⅛ and Atlantic Richfield off 3 at 103 and all of the 20-most-active issues on the Big Board showed declines.

Benson Succeeds With New Bonds

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Finance Minister Benson found no difficulty Monday in disposing of the new government of Canada bonds. The fairly small $150,000,000 issue, if which only $75,000,000 was for sale to the public, is reported to have gone well and to have been quoted at a modest premium in secondary trading.

The terms offered, however, were attractive. The longer issue due to mature Feb. 1, 1973, carried a coupon of 8 per cent and was offered at par. The shorter term due Oct. 1, 1970, was at 7¾ per cent and offered at 99.85 to yield 7.88 per cent.

This was slightly above the open market price for short Canadas.

GOING RATE

Now that 8 per cent has been established as the going government rate for new financing, there is growing speculation as to what terms will be offered later this year on the 1969 series of Canada Saving Bonds.

If present conditions hold, some money experts believe that a rate of 7½ per cent may be needed to make them sell. This would be a much higher rate than any previous series and would make them attractive in themselves, but even more seriously, would create another massive and expensive roll-over from earlier series.

Premier Bennett has a similar problem with a refunding of his $50,500,000 5½ per cent B.C. Hydro parity bonds due Sept. 1, 1969. It is not known how many of these bonds have already been redeemed, but they are one of a series of five $50,500,000 issues, all of which carry interest at 5½ per cent.

In the past B.C. has kept the interest on all its parity bonds at the same interest level, raisng outstanding issues to the level of the new, and there is no reason to believe this will not be done on this occasion.

The parities on this occasion fall due only five days after the provincial election.

Business Topics

British Newfoundland Corp. earned $881,984 in the six-month period against $786,792 a year ago.

A net loss of $14,939 a year ago was turned into a net profit of $644,311 ($1.25 a share) in the first half of 1969 by Electrohome Limited of Kitchener.

Sales rose to $19,130,246 from $13,086,413, a gain of 46.1 per cent.

President Carl Pollock said a record year was possible but that rise in costs were outpacing productivity and there was danger of pricing themselves out of the domestic and foreign markets.

□

WESTERN PROFIT HIGHER

Higher metal prices and improved metallurgy enabled Western Mines to increase its net earnings for the second quarter of 1969 to $1,141,654 (22.1 cents a share) from $1,010,202 (21.1 cents) in the corresponding quarter a year ago.

Western Mines has its mine-mill operation on Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park.

□

OFFSHORE VENTURE START

Drilling is to start next month on 7,000,000-acre offshore permit in the Hudson Bay region.

Aquitaine Canada is to drill two slim holes to a depth of 4,000 feet near the Ontario coastline off West Pen Island.

They are intended to test local major seismic anomalies.

The block of oil-gas permits is held by the Sogepet-Aquitaine group of companies.

□

GOV'T FIRST HALF

Also showing better results for 1969 were four other companies . . . a meat packer, a newspaper chain, another mining operation, and a maker of entertainment appliances.

Canada Packers net profit for the 13 weeks to June 28 was $2,106,000 (35 cents a share) up from $1,859,000 (31 cents) in the corresponding period of 1968.

Southam Press six-month net income was $4,54,4000 ($1.47 a share), compared with $3,942,000 ($1.31).

Wheat Subsidies Increased

Common Market Retaliates

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The six members of the European Common Market announced Monday they will increase subsidies for wheat exporters who lower prices in retaliation for price cuts announced recently by Canada and the United States.

The new export rebate levels, to make Common Market wheat more competitive on the world market, will be fixed by the market's executive commission and go into effect at the end of July.

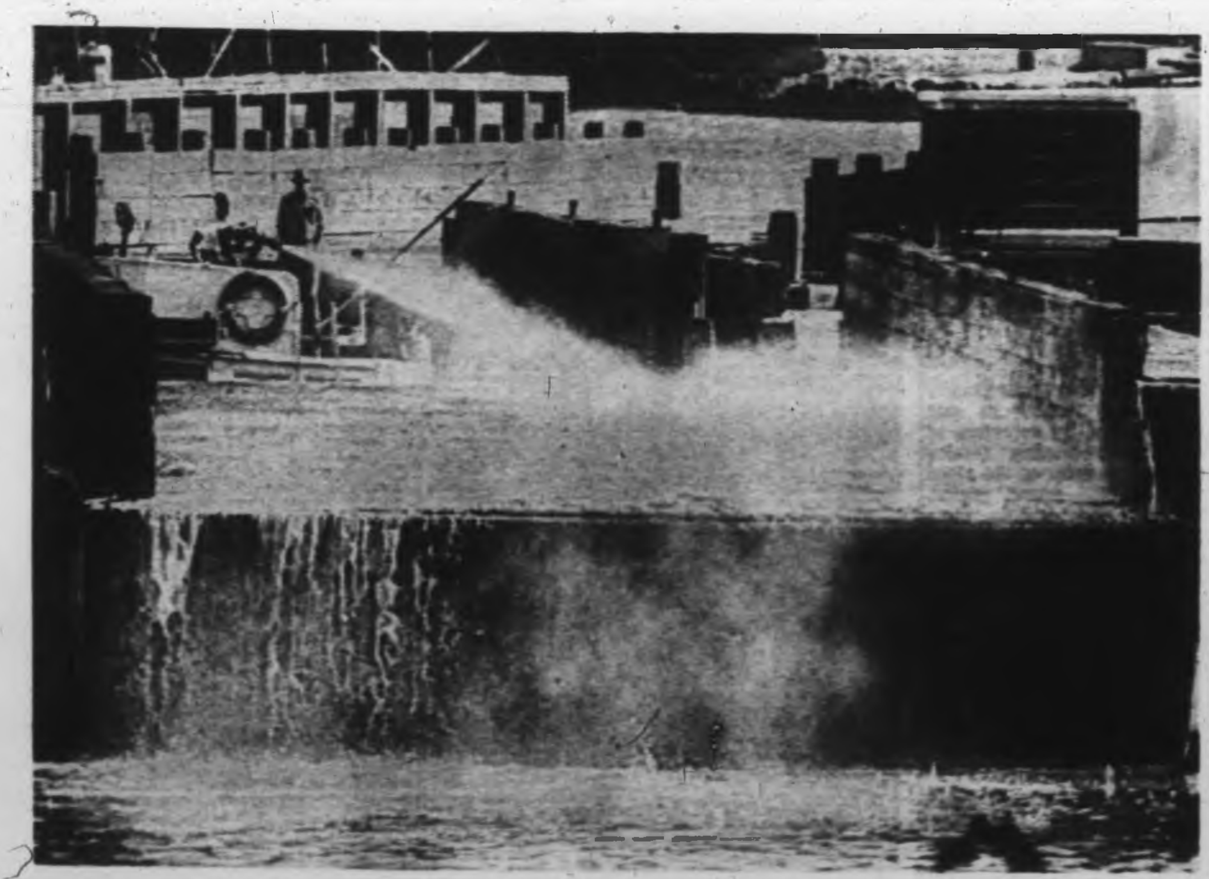
The export rebate is a government subsidy to exporters who buy wheat from producers. Exporters sell the wheat at competitive prices on the world market, using the subsidies to regain their losses.

A communique released during a meeting of Common Market agriculture ministers in the Belgian capital accused Canada and the U.S. of unilaterally breaking the International Grains Arrangement by offering wheat prices below the minimum agreed levels.

But informed sources said the ministers want to avoid "wheat war" and delayed implementation of their decision in the hope that some agreement can be reached at a meeting of wheat exporters from Argentina, Australia, the Common Market, Canada and U.S. opening in London today.

The communique said the Common Market countries remain disposed to co-operate with the IGA and the proposed measures will be applied only as long as other wheat-exporting countries continue to undercut IGA minimum levels.

In Ottawa, an official in Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin's office said there was no immediate comment on the Common Market announcement.



Sluice-Down Tests Hose

Crewmen of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. sluice down barge in Rock Bay, throwing wood chips and sawdust into harbor. H. B. Elworthy, company chairman, said he thought they were just testing hose for pressure. Spokesman for B.C. Pollution Control Board said regulations controlling such activities would be established if industry did not take action itself.

Store Openings Stalled Irate Clerks on March

VANCOUVER (CP) — As a provincial mediator took another look at the meatcutters dispute which has stalled the complete reopening of 103 supermarket outlets, 55 disgruntled clerks marched on their union headquarters Monday demanding an immediate return to their jobs.

They gathered in suburban Burnaby and then walked to the offices of the Retail Clerks Union carrying placards saying "We want our jobs back" and "Retail clerks want action."

PRIVATE MEETING

The marchers met privately with union officers to protest the slowness of a return-to-work move since they voted to accept a new contract and end a lockout by six supermarket chains that began two months ago.

Rudy Krickan, retail clerks business manager, said that all except one of the clerks were Super-Valu employees. Super-Valu has not been able to reopen any of its 30 store with meatcutter picket lines being maintained there.

He said he told the marchers there wasn't much the union could do to speed up the return to work.

Only 13 stores of Lodom, Shop-Easy, High-Low and Food Fair re-opened last week. A dozen of the larger Safeway stores were scheduled to reopen today or Wednesday.

GRADUAL OPENINGS

The reopenings are taking place gradually without meat departments.

Efforts were also being made on two other fronts Monday to settle the major British Columbia labor troubles.

A federal conciliator was carrying on talks to end the B.C. Telephone Co. strike, in its 35th day, and direct union-management talks continued in a bid to avert a strike by longshoremen at Vancouver and other B.C. ports.

In all, about 12,000 workers are involved.

Provincial mediator Clive McKee held talks Friday afternoon with the meatcutters' local of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union. He met again Monday with negotiators for the supermarkets.

LOCKED OUT

The meatcutters dispute, involving 500 union members, has slowed a return to work of 3,200 union retail clerks who were locked out of the stores along with the meatcutters.

Meanwhile, federal conciliator Don Tysoe returned to the bargaining table Monday with B.C. Tel and union officials after 16 hours of talks over the weekend.

Neither the company nor striking Federation of Telephone Workers of B.C. would comment on progress.

The union has demanded a 32-per-cent increase during two years and has rejected a 17-per-cent increase recommended by the conciliation board and accepted by the company.

SERVICE MAINTAINED

B.C. Tel has maintained service with supervisory personnel and other workers since the union went out June 23.

Mr. Tysoe got the two sides together Friday on instructions from Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

Direct talks continued Monday between the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association and the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union.

A conciliation board failed to settle the contract dispute with a recommendation for a 70-cent hourly pay boost over two years on the present longshoremen's rate of $3.88 hourly.

Sniper Loses Battle With Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Suburban Laval police used tear gas Sunday to flush out a man who barricaded himself in his home with his wife and two children and started firing a .30-30 rifle into the street.

A police spokesman said no passersby were injured during the hour long battle but the man's brother was wounded accidentally in the shoulder and a policeman was injured when a tear gas grenade exploded in his face.

Police were questioning the man Sunday night but had not laid any charges.

When police bullets could not force the man out, one of his brothers went into the house to try to coax him out. He was shot in the shoulder when he came out 15 minutes later.

Tear gas thrown down a bathroom ventilator finally flushed the man out.

Soviet Fleet Leaves Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—A seven-ship Soviet fleet sailed at the end of an unprecedented visit aimed at demonstrating solidarity between the Soviet Union and Cuba, the only Communist state in the Western Hemisphere. The one-week visit, the first by Soviet warships to Latin American waters, was at the invitation of the Cuban government.

Sanctions Noose On Rhodesia Remains Slack

LONDON (CP) — A special working party, instructed to find how the economic noose around Rhodesia can be tightened, appears to have slowed down in its search for new suggestions.

The group, which includes diplomatic representatives of Canada, Britain and the Afro-Asian region, was established by the Commonwealth sanctions committee June 27 with orders to report back to the committee as quickly as possible.

At that time, a Commonwealth informant said the committee expected a report in a month or so. But so far the working part has met only once, to decide procedure, with a second meeting scheduled for Tuesday to study various documents.

The Daily Telegraph said in a report Monday that the working party will be told there is substantial evasion of the United Nations sanctions against Rhodesian trade but that there is no simple way of making these sanctions more effective.

A Commonwealth source said it is too early to reach such a conclusion and that in fact there is still strong hope that other UN steps may be taken such as cutting off postal and broadcasting communications with Rhodesia. There is no indication as yet when the working party will be able to report to the sanctions committee.

Spectacular Blaze Contained

VANCOUVER (CP)—Firemen, assisted by a fireboat, Sunday night brought under control a three-alarm blaze in three empty sheds owned by the National Harbors Board on the Vancouver waterfront.

There were no injuries as flames engulfed the building. The fire, of undetermined origin, sent acrid smoke several thousand feet over the downtown section of the city.

A freighter loaded with cars docked nearby pulled away shortly after the blaze started. Capt. Barney Johnson, manager of the Port of Vancouver said the sheds were to be torn down soon.

Seattle-Hawaii Fares Soon at Bargain Rates

SEATTLE (AP) — Continental Air Lines will offer Seattle-Hawaii fares as low as $85 when it begins over its newly authorized route Oct. 1, Robert Six, airline president, said Monday.

The airline will offer daily Pacific Northwest to Honolulu flights in Boeing 707 intercontinentals.

The fares will start at $100 for economy class one-way, except $85 Monday through Thursday. Coach class will be $110 one-way, except $94 Monday through Thursday, and first class fares will be $140 one-way.

Present Seattle-to-Hawaii fares are $140 first-class and $110 coach.

'Paper Gold'

Hurdle Finally Cleared

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Member countries have given the International Monetary Fund formal approval to create a new reserve asset-so-called "paper gold"—it was announced Monday.

The IMF said that it received notification of governmental ratification of the plan, officially known as special drawing rights, from the required number of 67 countries of the 111 IMF member countries.

The 67 countries account for 80 per cent of the voting weight in the IMF.

HURDLE CLEARED

The action, long expected in financial circles, clears away a major international legal hurdle in the creation of the paper gold plan, which has been some four years in the making.

The plan will permit the artificial injection—for the first time in history—of new exchangeable assets into the international monetary system of Western nations alongside gold and dollars, which countries mainly use to settle their international accounts with one another.

The distribution of these "SDRs" would be made on the basis of a country's quota in the IMF.

New Contract Just in Time

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Airlines Employees Association announced ratification of a new 26-month contract with Air Canada, one week before the old contract was due to expire. The new agreement is effective Aug. 1.

Word on Base Closing Delayed Two Weeks

OTTAWA (CP) — The closure of several defence department bases, to be announced within two weeks, will be staggered over a period of years, informed sources said Monday.

In this way the economic impact of the closures, which will affect the livelihood of thousands of Canadians, is expected to be eased. It is anticipated that a minimum one-year notice will be given, with some bases being put on two year's notice and others on three year's notice.

Reports that up to 15 bases will get the chop were discounted last week by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux as an exaggeration. It is understood that about half that number would be closer to the truth.

SIZE REDUCED

In addition, however, a number of bases will be cut down in size. The closures and reductions are part of a government program to cap defence expenditures at the current level of $1,800,000,000 for the next three years.

Cadieux was to have announced the base closures by the end of this week. However, final cabinet approval of plans prepared in the defence department has been delayed. The word Monday was there is a possibility the announcement will come within two weeks.

WRITING ON WALL

One base for which the writing may be on the wall is that at Summerside, P.E.I. Speculation has progressed to the point where an alternative site for the aircraft based at Summerside is said to have been chosen. According to reports the planes will be transferred to Greenwood, N.S.

A Prince Edward Island delegation headed by Premier Alex Campbell met Cadieux here Monday to plead for retention of the Summerside base, which is said to pump $10,000,000 annually into the provincial economy.

Military personnel at Summerside number 1,056; their dependents 3,000. Civilians employed number 258, plus 16 casual laborers. Dependents of the civilian employees probably total a further 650 to 700.

Another base that has figured in advance speculation about the coming closures is the one at Rivers, Man.

Defence department sources say a comprehensive program has been prepared for helping civilian personnel thrown out of work by the closedowns to find alternative employment. This program is to get under way when the closedowns are announced.

Personnel teams will be at the various bases earmarked for liquidation to interview affected personnel about available openings, the sources said.

Armstrong

U.K. Honor Awarded Armstrong

LONDON (AP) — Neil Armstrong, first man to set foot on the moon, Monday joined a select group of explorers honored by Britain's Royal Geographical Society.

As leader of the Apollo 11 mission, Armstrong has been awarded a special gold medal. It was the society's first award for space exploration.

Other gold medallists include Norway's Captain Roald Amundsen, the first to reach the South Pole; American Admiral Robert Edwin Peary, first to reach the North Pole; Briton Sir John Hunt, who led the expedition which conquered Mount Everest, and Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand, first to stand on the world's highest peak.

Module Stirred Dust Cloud But Touchdown Unimpeded

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 11 landing engine kicked up swirling moon dust that cut visibility but did not seriously jeopardize the historic touchdown, the astronauts reported Monday.

Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, who rode the spidery moonship to the lunar surface, told of the billowing dust during the second day of debriefing their eight-day flight.

John McLeaish, a NASA public affairs officer in quarantine with the Apollo crew, said the astronauts mentioned the "visibility degradation" caused by the blowing moon dust but added that this was not unexpected.

"Obviously they landed safely and returned safely," he said when prodded by reporters at the evening briefing session about the severity of the cloud caused by the rocket engine. McLeaish said doctors pronounced Armstrong, Aldrin and command pilot Michael Collins in excellent health. They resume the tape recorded debriefing session today.

McLeaish said Armstrong and Aldrin reported that one-sixth gravity, like that of the moon, is a "a pleasant gravitational field in which to operate" but "could promote muscular laziness."

NO MEDICATION

They have required no medication since their splashdown and recovery Thursday in the Pacific.

They sent compliments to the chef for their meals and moved Monday through the second day of debriefings, describing getting into moon orbit and the prelude to the historic lunar landing.

The emphasis was on spacecraft performance and flight procedures as Collins told of his lonely orbital flight while his colleagues descended to the lunar surface.

IF HEALTHY

The astronauts and 14 quarantine companions will emerge Aug. 11 if they remain healthy and scientists uncover nothing harmful in the rock and dust samples taken from the moon.

The moon crew faced eight more days of debriefing.

Space experts will use the data collected from the flight to help guide Apollo 12 to a second moon landing scheduled for November.

DOCTORS, TOO

Isolated with the Apollo 11 crew are doctors, technical experts, stewards and a cook, all of whom have now been exposed directly or indirectly to the black, powdery moon dust.

Twelve persons were exposed to the dust when a film pack, accidentally dropped on the moon's surface, was opened inside the lunar laboratory. The crew came into contact with moon particles when stowing the spacesuits. A doctor and an engineer were exposed while taking medical swabbings from the space gear.

MICE TESTS

Researchers prepared to mix germ-free mice with moon samples to determine whether lunar organisms exist and, if so, their potential threat to life on earth. The test is scheduled to begin Wednesday.

Should the mice become diseased, the quarantine period would most likely be extended.

Laboratory officials also expressed concern over ripped gloves used to handle moon rocks inside a vacuum chamber.

Scientists Say Moonslides Signalled by Seismometer

HOUSTON (UPI) — The process by which fresh moon craters are transformed to old is believed to have been observed in recent days by scientists. They call them moonslides.

* * *

Space agency officials said Sunday they have recorded 14 "unusual seismic events" on the seismometer left on the moon by Apollo 11. The events have occurred "simultaneously," since July 25, the report said.

"The character of the seismic signals is similar to those which occur on the earth during landslides," said Dr. Garry Latham, head of the moonquake detection experiment for Apollo 11.

* * *

"The seismic events are believed to be the first stages by which fresh new craters are being transformed to old."

Latham said the signals, which he translates as moonslides, are occurring about the same time as the lunar noon, which arrived at Apollo 11's Tranquillity base at 2 a.m. PDT Sunday.

He also reported the seismometer, which has measured the moonslides and previously reported "moonquakes," has a heating problem but he believes it will operate for the next few weeks.

* * *

Latham speculated the heat from the exhaust of the lunar module's blastoff may have caused a change in the chemical composition of the radiator which cools the 25-pound machine. The additional heat has caused a change in the electrical components inside the seismometer, he said.

* * *

Last Wednesday wriggles in a chart detected what Latham believes to have been "moonquakes."

If such moonquakes do occur, they would indicate the moon is an active body somewhat similar to the Earth.

Teacher Papers Honored

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two B.C. Teachers' Federation publications have received awards of excellence from the Educational Press Association of America.

The B.C. Teacher, a monthly magazine put out by the federation, won an award for an article by Bernice McDonough, a teacher at Vancouver City College, and the other award went to the BCTF Commission on Education's 141-page report which won citations for designer Annette Breukelman and photographer Peter Thomas.

Purple Moon Rock Just Joke

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — The purple rock on the moon was apparently all a joke.

Space agency engineer John Hirasaki, who lived with astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins after they splashed down in the Pacific until the time they arrived here Sunday, said the crewmen spent a lot of time joking about the subject on the way home.

"Evidently, Buzz (Aldrin) was looking for a purple rock," Hirasaki said.

"The astronauts thought this would be an extremely scarce kind of rock."

Armstrong and Aldrin talked, apparently seriously, about seeing a purple rock during their moonwalk and scientists took them seriously enough to say they were looking for the rock among the first batch of samples opened Saturday at the space centre.

But Hirasaki said he did not think the astronauts had picked up any such exotic specimen.

"The purple rock was discussed quite a bit and I think at this point it is almost a universal joke among the astronauts," Hirasaki said.

Mafia Boss Nabbed

CHICAGO (AP) — Felix Milwaukee Phil Alderisio was arrested Sunday on charges of conspiring to defraud a bank. FBI director J. Edgar Hoover called the arrest "a blow to the upper-echelon leadership of La Cosa Nostra."

Alderisio, 57, of suburban Riverside, was arrested by FBI agents.

A sealed 21-count indictment handed down by a federal grand jury Friday charged that Alderisio and three other persons, named but not charged, defrauded the Parkway Bank of Harwood Heights of $79,935.

Named in the indictment with Alderisio were Richard Jackowski, 40, of Hickory Hills, Ill., a former loan officer of the bank whom Foran described as the "inside man;" Irwin J. Davis, 44, of Wilmette, Ill.

Young Irish Soldier Atlantic's Conqueror

BANGOR, Ireland (Reuters) — A 26-year-old British soldier strode up to a lighthouse on the west coast of Ireland Sunday and announced he had rowed across the Atlantic by himself.

Trooper Tom McClean told the astonished lighthouse keeper he had set out from St. John's Nfld., 72 days before in a 20-foot boat named Super Silver.

* * *

He told reporters he was nearly drowned Saturday night when the boat ran on the rocks at Blacksod Bay near here. "But I managed to shove it off again and eventually landed on a small sandy beach," McClean said.

"The place was deserted and I just walked up to the lighthouse keeper's house."

McClean had little previous experience in rowing. He is a member of Britain's crack Special Air Service unit.

* * *

He used to be in the same unit as Captain John Ridgeway and Sgt. C. Blyth who rowed the Atlantic together three years ago from Cape Cod, Mass., to Ireland in 91 days. He said their feat inspired him to make the attempt.

McClean said his trip took eight days fewer than he expected. "I had stormy weather all the way but the winds were behind me, blowing me towards Ireland."

His arrival came nine days after another British lone oarsman, John Fairfax, arrived in Florida six months after setting out from the Canary Islands.

In contrast to McClean's unnoticed arrival Sunday, Fairfax received a gala welcome on the Florida shore.

McClean said he had no sickness apart from salt sores.

"I had a bad moment on July 17," he said. "I woke up and found the boat full of water and only kept afloat by the buoyancy tanks.

* * *

"I found the sea anchors had broken away from the bow and pulled one side of the boat under water. It took me hours to bail it out."

McClean was born in Dublin and was orphaned at the age of three.

Changed Orbit Baffles

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A commercial communications satellite, missing in space for more than two days, was found Monday just where officials were afraid it would be—in the wrong orbit.

Launched late Friday, the 632-pound Intelsat III was found by ground-based radar to be circling earth in an orbit ranging from 173 to 2,963 miles high. It was aimed for a lofty path that would carry it 22,300 miles over the Atlantic Ocean, but was flung into the wrong path when the upper stage of its Delta rocket misfired.

The space agency said the rocket problem "is as yet undetermined."

The satellite is operated by the International Telecommunications consortium. Canada is represented in the consortium by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp.

Hospital Protest Shattering

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — An attendant at Fairview State Hospital for the Mentally Retarded — where fire killed three patients Saturday night — broke over 100 windows and glass doors in the state capitol building Sunday in protest of conditions at the hospital.

Judith Keith, 21, a former state hospital patient now employed at Fairview as a psychiatric aide, was arrested on a charge of destroying public property.

Oregon state policeman Harold Kirby said the woman told him she blamed "the politicians in the capitol for the penny-pinching that kept Fairview understaffed and caused the loss of life when fire broke out."

Dance Title Won By Gail Bamford

KRISTIN DANN of Victoria Visitors Bureau welcomes Seattle Pipe Band member Sid Kent to city as 240 competitors gathered in MacDonald Park for Highland Games. Seattle band was one of several in competition.

Gail Bamford of Victoria won the Western North America Highland Games professional championship at the annual games festival Saturday in Macdonald Park.

Miss Bamford, a winner the past two years, also was first in the professional classes in the highland fling, strathspey and seann truibhas and won the senior championship.

A total of 240 people from across Canada and the northwestern United States were entered in the games.

SURREY WINNER

Terry Lee of Surrey won the strathspey, seann truibhas and sailors hornpipe divisions of the under 13 class.

Julie Rhydderck of Vancouver took the 18 and over championship. Junior championships went to Cheryl Rafter of Coquitlam, 12 and under, and to Debbie Clark of Richmond, 15 and under.

A complete list of winners includes:

Novice under 10—Highland fling, Paula Tremaine of Vancouver; sword dance, Laurel Curtis of Victoria.

Novice over 10—Highland fling, Ruth Tremaine of Vancouver; sword dance, Tracey Hepburn of Victoria.

Under 7—Highland fling, Laurie Rafter of Coquitlam; sword dance, Laurie Rafter; Irish jig, Michele Christie of Vancouver.

Under 9—Highland fling, Brenda Brown of Vancouver; sword dance, Gaeryn McGregor of Winnipeg; Irish jig, Janet Kyle of Duncan.

Under 11—Highland fling, Michael Gras of Burnaby; seann truibhas, Kathleen McKenzie of Edmonton; Irish jig, Mary Macintyre of Victoria.

Under 13—Highland fling, Cheryl Rafter of Coquitlam; strathspey, Terry Lee of Surrey; seann truibhas, Terry Lee; sailors hornpipe, Terry Lee.

Under 16 — Highland fling, Debbie Clark of Richmond; strathspey, Allison Ramsey of North Surrey; seann truibhas, Glenda Bergner of Winnipeg; sailors hornpipe, Debbie Clark.

Over 16—Highland fling, Laura Parker of Vancouver; strathspey, Marion Barnett of Vancouver; seann truibhas, Marion Barnett; sailors hornpipe, Susan Forsythe of Richmond.

Professional — Highland fling, Gail Bamford of Victoria; strathspey, Gail Bamford; seann truibhas, Gail Bamford; sailors hornpipe, Mary MacMillan of Vancouver.

Junior Championships—12 and under, Cheryl Rafter of Coquitlam; 15 and under, Debbie Clark of Richmond; senior championships, 16 to 18, Gail Bamford; championships, 18 and over, Julie Rhydderck of Vancouver.

Aggregate winners: under 7, Laurie Rafter of Coquitlam and Lorna Weir of Nanaimo; under 9, Brenda Brown of Vancouver and Janet Kyle of Duncan; under 11, Michael Gras of Burnaby and Mary Macintyre of Victoria; under 13, Terry Lee of Surrey and Shannon Woodhorn of Victoria; under 16, Debbie Clark and Allison Ramsey; 16, and Laurie Lewis; over 16, Marion Barnett of Vancouver and Sue Grahame of Victoria; professional, Gail Bamford of Victoria.

Drumming, 16 and under, Mark Greco of Portland; [illegible] piping, juvenile, Malcolm McCaig of Victoria; strathspey piping, Heather Zinck of Victoria; slow airs piping, Malcolm McCaig.

Junior piping—marches, Robert Menzies of North Vancouver; strathspey, Robert Menzies; jigs, Margaret Swanson of Vancouver; aggregate, Robert Menzies.

GAIL BOMFORD of Victoria, one of top dancers in Highland Games past two years, again took professional championship and won professional classes in highland fling, strathspey and seann-truibhas. She accepts trophy from Alex Macintyre, member of Victoria club.

Ex-Victorian Winner In Scotland

A former Victorian has become the first person to take the world championship in Highland dancing out of Scotland.

Angus McKenzie won the title Saturday in Cowrock, Scotland.

The 23-year-old McKenzie lived in Victoria until he moved about a year ago to Edmonton where he now teaches Highland dancing.

Some False Information Released

Clues Still Lacking in Coed's Murder

GUARD DOG watches over biology professor taking break from class work at Eastern Michigan University Ypsilanti. Teacher refused to give her name to photographer. Eastern coed Karen Beineman, whose battered body was found Saturday, was eighth woman found murdered in Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area in two years.—(AP)

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The police chief of this university community Monday night blasted as "100 per cent false and completely without substance" a published report that police had located the site where the seventh victim of an elusive sex killer was murdered.

Police Chief Walter Krasny scoffed at reports that a massive search force had found the spot where petite 18-year-old Karen Sue Beineman was strangled. He said there was "absolutely no proof" to the stories.

The brown-haired Eastern Michigan University freshman coed's body was found stripped and face down in a gully off a dirt road Saturday, three days after she disappeared. But police officials believe that Miss Beineman, like the six others who have been mysteriously slain in the last two years, was killed elsewhere.

* * *

Krasny branded as false a report that officers of the five police agencies investigating the unsolved slayings had cordoned off a rural area near where they believe one of the victims was killed. He also said it was untrue that officers had found a sleeve of a blouse, a wire and other articles at the scene.

Earlier, authorities had admitted they had released some false information in an effort to lure the killer or killers to them.

"There is an awful lot of stuff we just aren't letting out and stuff that may not be quite straight," said one investigating officer. "We've got to beat this guy at his own game."

Miss Beineman, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who had enrolled at EMU in neighboring Ypsilanti just a month before she vanished, had been strangled and beaten so savagely on savagely on the head she could be identified only by fingerprints.

Rumors spread that the chrome-covered motorcycle on which she was seen leaving a wig shop with a curly-haired young man had been found abandoned, and that its driver had been traced.

But police, releasing information only through EMU officials, denied they had the bike or were near an arrest.

At least three dozen suspects have been questioned, police said, but all were released.

"We can always pick them up again later," one detective said.

Washtenaw County undersheriff Harold Owings said none of Miss Beineman's clothes were found near her body and that none had been recovered elsewhere. He added that she had not been wearing the blue jean and turtleneck outfit here roommates said she had on when she disappeared, since these clothes were later found in her closet. She apparently had changed into a sleeveless blouse and culottes when she left to purchase the wig, Owings said.

Police refused to disclose if Miss Beineman was wearing her new medium length hair piece when she was found.

"Here we are, trying to catch a killer, and you guys are trying to sell newspapers," snapped one high-ranking officer to newsmen pressing for details.

A preliminary autopsy failed to disclose whether Miss Beineman, a fragile, 5-foot-1, 96-pound honors graduate from Creston High School in Grand Rapids, had been raped, police said.

While officials awaited a detailed report, they said her killing "would appear to be sexually motivated."

She is to be buried Wednesday near her home.

Her father, Roland Beineman, still was in Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids Monday suffering from shock.

Mrs. Marjorie Beineman, though grief-stricken, said of her daughter's death, "God must have sent her there to find the killer of the other girls . . . That must be the answer."

Six other girls whose sex kilings remained unsolved ranged in age from 13 to 23. Two died of shot wounds, two of stab wounds, one was beaten to death and the other strangled. Five — and perhaps all six — had been choked or slashed across the throat.

In an effort to protect the 540 women housed in campus dormitories during the summer session, EMU officials Sunday instituted a mandatory sign-out procedure.

Coeds must give a definite destination and an estimated time of return whenever they leave their halls day or night.

Officials alo were considering a curfew for upper class women, who now have no hours and have keys to their dormitories.

The youth's father is president of Fording Coal Ltd., a Cominco subsidiary.

The youth did not return home after doing some errands. He was last seen here in the early evening of June 26 by a friend of the family.

A $5,000 reward was offered by the boy's father for his safe return but repeated appeals by police for public information have brought no results.

More than two dozen police officers have been working on the case out of here and police across Western Canada are on the lookout for the youth.

Shooting Suspect in Court While Policeman Mends

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Raymond Bradley, 23, of Medicine Hat, was charged Monday in magistrate's court with causing bodily harm with intent to endanger the life of constable Roy Funk of Medicine Hat police department during a fierce gun battle early Saturday morning at a city shopping centre.

Bradley also was charged with breaking, entering and theft after an attempted robbery at the shopping centre grocery, where the gunfight erupted. No plea or election was entered and the case was remanded to Aug. 6.

ONE KILLED

Victor Roeder, 25, also of Medicine Hat, was killed by police during the gun battle and funeral services will be held Tuesday.

Condition of Constable Funk, shot twice while being held hostage by two gunmen, was described Monday as satisfactory Constable Funk, one of 11 persons, including five policemen, held hostage by the gunmen, was wounded in the neck and in the arm after he had been disarmed.

Witnesses say Constable Funk was first shot "for no apparent reason." The wounded policeman lay on the boulevard in front of the grocery store for two hours; during this time he was wounded again in the arm.

Constable Pat Flynn, called to the Aberdeen Shopping Centre to investigate a break-in, was taken hostage by the two gunmen and disarmed. As more police arrived they were disarmed and made hostages.

CHIEF HOSTAGE

Police Chief Sam Drader, one of the 11 hostages, said: "They were unable to use force without endangering their mates."

The police were forced by the gunmen to carry a safe to their car and the robbers then flagged down passing cars and took the occupants hostage.

Bill Jussilas, a civilian hostage, said the two men held "guns on us all the time . . . and said they just wanted to shoot some policemen.

RCMP HELP

More city police and RCMP arrived and the civilian hostages were released as one robber started to run, shooting at the police. He was fatally wounded.

Chief Drader, exchanging himself as hostage to get the other police hostages released, offered to drive the getaway car.

He eluded the gunman about 20 minutes later and the man surrendered to police.

Ski Poles Hide Drug

NEW YORK (AP) — A New Jersey hairdresser has been arrested and accused of smuggling into the United States $2,500,000 in heroin hidden in the hollowed shafts of ski poles, federal authorities announced today.

The man was identified as French - born George Roupinian, 41, a naturalized U.S. citizen from Middlesex, N.J.

Reupinian was reported under guard at an unspecified hospital after complaining of chest pains after his arrest here Saturday.

A followup investigation turned up 200 West German-made ski poles filled with heroin, a federal official said. The poles, still in crates in Roupinian's apartment, had been flown in from France about 10 days before, the official added.

Aaron Bests Snead in Playoff Forced by Record Last Round

MONTREAL — Tommy Aaron, who forced it Sunday with a record 64 in the last round, Monday won a playoff with Sam Snead to win the Canadian Open golf championship.

Victory was the first of the 32-year-old Aaron's professional career but because the Canadian Open didn't receive U.S. Professional Golf Association sanction this year, Aaron cannot count the $25,000, first prize, or the approximate $4,500 extra for the play off, as official USPGA tournament winnings.

EXTRA BONUS

However, Aaron, Snead and Billy Casper and Takaaki Kono of Japan will be exempt from qualifying for the upcoming $250,000 Westchester Classic as the first four finishers.

Aaron shot a two-under-par 70 and Snead matched Pinegrove's par in the playoff, but there was never more than one stroke separating the pair until Aaron closed out with an eagle on the last hole.

Snead had twice come from behind to take the lead, before Aaron squared the playoff on the 14th hole with a par and went ahead to stay with a birdie duece on the 15th.

THE SWING

Aaron drew even when Snead hit a trap on the par-four, 400-yard 14th and blasted over the green to wind up with a bogey. Aaron then put his tee shot on the 150-yard 15th only five feet from the cup and ran down the putt to go ahead when Snead needed two putts from 20 feet.

Aaron saved his lead with a fine recovery on the 16th. After hooking into trees with his approach, he put his third shot within four feet to get his par.

He missed a five-foot putt for a birdie three on the 17th and Snead two-putted from 30 feet.

BOTH AFTER EAGLES

Then came the final drama on the par-five, 466-yard last hole, considered the easiest birdie hole of the 7031-yard layout.

Both had good drives. Snead put his second shot 30 feet from the cup just below the second level of the putting surface while Aaron wound up about 25 feet away on the upper level.

Snead's putt clipped the edge of the cup and rolled four feet past before Aaron made it certain by ramming his putt home.

It was the third playoff in the event for Snead, who was trying for his fourth victory.

WON FIRST TWO

He got his first victory in 1938 in a playoff with Henry Casper which went 27 holes. Officials decreed a second playoff of nine holes after the pair was still tied at the end of 18, and Snead won by five strokes.

Snead then beat Jug McSpaden in an 18-hole playoff in 1940, won his third Canadian Open the next year in the regulation 72 holes.

His fourth championship seemed almost certain Sunday until the last nine holes.

Snead, playing just behind of Aaron, started the final round with a five-stroke lead over Kono and a six-stroke margin over Aaron and seemed to have it won after a magnificent start.

SPRINT START

The 57-year-old veteran birdied the first, second, fourth and fifth holes and missed having a streak of five straight birdies because a putt rimmed the cup.

Meanwhile, Aaron was off slowly, parring the first two holes but bogeying the fourth after a birdie three on the third.

He got started with an eagle three on the fifth, birdied the sixth and eighth. And while Snead took a bogey on the eighth, Aaron had cut the lead by only one stroke despite his four-under 32 on the front nine.

COMAE UP FAST

And the margin was still four strokes after the first three holes of the back nine, Snead parring them and Aaron getting a birdie on the 11th.

But that was where Snead started to slip while Aaron kept coming. Snead had a bogey six on the 13th to put Aaron three strokes away. The margin became two strokes when Aaron birdied the 14th, one stroke when Snead bogied the 15th and disappeared when Aaron birdied the 16th.

Both had par fours on the 17th and both closed out gallantly with birdie fours on the 72nd hole.

JUST BIRDIES

Aaron missed a 40-foot putt for an eagle by five inches and was among the spectators with his 275 when Snead came to the green needing to make a 35-footer for an eagle which would have won.

Snead, who changed his putting stance for the tournament and made the change a success, missed by about a foot.

Payoffs Were Acceptable

Neither of them were close to the big money when the Canadian Open Golf tournament ended Sunday in Montreal but Victoria pros Vaughan Trapp and Bill Wakeham both had more-than-acceptable paydays.

Trapp, an early sensation with opening rounds of 69 and 70 before slumping to 75-74 for the last 36 holes, picked up $1,562.50 for the par 288 which left him in a 17th-place tie.

Wakeham, who had two 70s in his 291, won $701.55.

Trapp was the fourth best of the Canadian pros, beaten only by Al Balding, George Knudson and Ken Fulton.

England by 230 Runs

LONDON (Reuters) — Derek Underwood led England to a comfortable 230-run victory over New Zealand with a brilliant bowling display on Monday, fourth day of the first of the three-match test cricket series.

It was a remarkable comeback for England, scuttled for only 190 runs in the first innings.

Underwood, a slow left-armer, finished with seven wickets for 32 runs as New Zealand slumped for the second time against the potent English attack and was out for 131 runs.

Losers managed only 169 runs in their first innings and couldn't stop the English batsmen in the second innings before yielding 340 runs.

Another Title Near For Cowichan Club

Cowichan took a huge step toward its seventh straight Colonist Cup championship in the Victoria and District Cricket Association by defeating second-place Albions by eight wickets Sunday at Shawnigan Lake School.

Cowichan now lead by six points with four matches to play.

Veteran Tom Brierley scored 75 runs to lead the defending champions to 133 for two wickets with just two minutes left to play. Albions were dismissed for 132 runs, 42 by Mal Shanks.

In the other match, last-place Alcos picked up their second win of the season, a six-wicket decision over Incogs.

Pat Ely scored 44 runs for Incogs' 89. George Payne, who took four wickets for 21 runs, scored 35 runs and John Moss added 26 not out for the winners.

Hulme Leads Cup Series

EDMONTON (UPI) — Denis Hulme continued the McLaren-Hulme domination of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series Sunday when he won the Klondike 200 Can-Am Race for the second straight year.

Hulme, in a McLaren M8 B, finished eight seconds ahead of Chris Amon who drove a V-12 Ferrari 612. Only seven of the 18 starters finished the tough, 80-lap race.

George Eaton of Toronto was third in a McLaren Mark 12. Bruce McLaren, Hulme' teammate and designer of the cars that bear his name, had to drop out of the race on the 36th lap when his car developed a severe oil leak.

Winning time for the race was one hour, 56 minutes, with Hulme's average speed clocked at 104 mph. The win was worth $10,000 to the New Zealander, and left him in first place in Can-Am point standings with four of the 11 races completed.

Hulme leads runner-up McLaren, 70 to 55, with Eaton tied with Chuck Parsons for third place with 28. Chris Amon is fifth with 27.

Amon won $7,000 for his second place showing, and Eaton's prize was $5,500. John Surtees, in a Chaparral, was fourth, Tom Dutton fifth in a Lola 3B, Kris Harrison sixth in a McLaren MK 3, and Leonard Janke finished seventh in a Lola T160.

‘Safe’ Never Really Safe If Mothers Are Around

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (UPI) — When umpire Don Burgess made a "safe" call during an American Legion baseball game here Sunday, he certainly wasn't referring to himself.

Burgess began to feel a bit unsafe shortly after he had ruled that Harold Muckleroy of the home team was safe at first base after hitting a ground ball to shortstop Wade Cahney.

Cahney threw his glove down and had a few words with Burgess, who threw Cahney out of the game and, just to make sure, escorted him to the dugout.

Burgess then resumed his umpiring position and was suddenly in violent evasive action as Cahney's mother rushed out on the diamond with a bat and took a couple of lusty swings at his posterior.

Burgess was finally saved when the woman's husband showed up to escort his angry mate off the field.

Educational Experience For Carrier

MONTREAL (CP) — Gordie MacNeil, Jr., 20, of Montreal, made his tuition fees for next year in one week of caddying for Tommy Aaron, who won the $125,000 Canadian Open golf championship Monday by beating Sam Snead in an 18-hole playoff.

"He gave me $700 in U.S. funds," MacNeil said, beaming a smile as he met reporters after Monday's round. "That takes care of next year's tuition fees. I made it all in one week."

Luckies Take 2-0 Lead

PORT ALBERNI — Nanaimo Luckies trounced Port Alberni Barclays, 28-6, Monday for a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five semi-final series in the Vancouver Island Senior Lacrosse League.

Luckies, who won the opening game 24-8, can wrap up the series Wednesday in Nanaimo.

Don Stephenson scored five goals for Luckies, who outshot their hosts, 83-45.

Bill Russell added four goals. Dave Ranger and Gerry Shires each scored three goals while Gary Thompson, Jim Kipp, Larry Clarkson, Bill Clark and Steve Bishop each scored twice. Murray Thomas, Ray Brennan and Don Morelli were the other scorers.

Brian Van Horne, with three goals, Bob Jones, Ted Steel and Brian Baylon scored for Barklays.

Hampton Ousts Triangle In Little League Playoff

Three teams are left in the running at Hampton Park for the Victoria district championship in Little League Baseball.

Triangle became the first team to drop out of the round-robin, double-loss playdowns Monday when Hampton scored the first eight runs of the game on the way to an 8-3 victory.

Both team lost their first-round games. Hampton will play Lake Hill, which meets Nationals tonight at 6:30, on Wednesday at the time time.

Run-scoring singles by Dale Brouard and Glen Ormiston and a double by Mike Schemalt accounted for Hampton's runs in the three-run second inning.

Hampton added four unearned runs in the third inning when Triangle committed three of the six errors.

Randy Standlund, who opened the inning with a single, scored on an overthrow by the catcher. Glen Ormiston forced in a run when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded and the other two runs came in when David Blower reached base safely on an eror.

Frank Mosses pitched a three-hitter to gain the victory, losing his shutout to unearned runs.

Next game: Tonight—Transport Workers vs. Greaves Movers, 7 p.m., Royal Athletic Park.

George Brice stopped Gorge Hotel's last-inning rally Monday to give Independents a 5-4 victory in Senior Amateur Baseball League action at Royal Athletic Park.

Brice took over for starter Bob Stuart in the bottom of the seventh inning with one man out, a run in and two men on base. He got Bob Lumley to force a runner, walked Tony Cosier after Lumley stole second, then struck out George Holt with the bases loaded.

Tony Gage had a home run for the winners and Craig Lawrence drove in two runs.

In Sunday action, Independents downed the Lakers 18-3 and Greaves Movers followed with a 7-1 victory at Lake Cowichan.

Transport Workers and Gorge split a doubleheader, Gorge winning the first, 8-5, before losing 4-3, in 14 innings.

Durocher Under Fire For Deserting Dugout

Chicago Cubs added to their lead Monday but manager Leo Durocher is going to have to explain the matter of his weekend absence to owner Phil Wrigley.

Durocher left the Chicago dugout Saturday as the Cubs were playing Los Angeles Dodgers because of a reported stomach disorder.

ADMITS NOTHING

He wasn't back for the game on Sunday, which was his 63rd birthday. He won't admit his age, much less what he was doing away from the scene of action.

"This is a private matter and I won't discuss my private life with anyone," fumed the recently-married Durocher. "If I have something to say, I'll say it to Mr. Wrigley."

He'll get that chance today as Wrigley gets the answers to his questions about the report that his manager was absent for other reasons than illness.

PLAYING HOOKEY?

A Chicago newspaper reported that Durocher spent Saturday night at Camp Ojibwa, near Eagle River, Wis., attending a reception in honor of parents' weekend with his bride, who has two sons enrolled there.

The newspaper also quoted Wrigley as saying from his Lake Geneva, Wis., summer home as saying that "I was told Leo was sick. I had no idea he wasn't confined to his home, in view of the all-out effort everybody in the organization is making trying to win the pennant. I feel Leo owes an apology to management and all the players and coaches."

Wrigley said Monday that "Leo can do anything he wants but the way he did it, he left everything hanging.

"If he had told the club what it was all about, everything would have been fine. The players are busting a boiler to win. I don't like to see such upsetting things happen."

Cubs lost, 2-6, Sunday to the Dodgers but came back Monday for a 10-inning, 4-3, win over San Francisco Giants with Durocher calling the shots.

JUST MADE IT

Giants tied it at 2-2 in the eighth inning when Willie McCovey hits his 31st home run, went ahead in the top of the 10th when Bobby Bonds, Ron Hunt and Willie Mays hit successive singles.

The Cubs came back with two out. Juan Marichal started it by walking pinch-hitter Willie Smith. Don Kessinger, Glen Beckert and Billy Williams then followed with successive singles for the tying and winning runs.

Victory boosted the Chicago margin over New York's idle Mets to five games.

CARDS ALSO WIN

In the only other game played in the major baseball leagues Monday, St. Louis Cardinals remained 10 games away from the Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division.

The nipped San Diego Padres, 2-1, when Vada Pinson doubled home the winning run in the sixth inning to extend his hitting streak through 19 games.

Easy Victory For Vicettes Opens Playoff

Victoria Molsons Vicettes defeated Tillicums, 16-1, in the first game of the best-of-three Senior Women's Softball League semi-final series Monday at Central Park.

Dodie Skaife limited Tillicums to two hits while Vicettes were collecting 12 hits.

Casey's Juniors and Carlings begin their semi-final series tonight at Bullen Park starting at 6:30 p.m. and the Vicettes-Tillicum series continues Thursday at Central Park, starting at the same time.

Three City Bowlers In Canadian Finals

WEST VANCOUVER — John Green of the host club and the Burnside pairing of Andy Dickie and John McMillan will participate in the Canadian Lawn Bowling Championships at Oak Bay, Aug. 25-27.

Green won the singles championship and the Burnside team the doubles title Sunday in the B.C. championships with 6-0 records in the round-robin competition.

Victoria rinks skipped by Alec Donald of Burnside and Frank Hilliard of Oak Bay missed out when T. J. Jarvis of Stanley Park led his team to the title.

Next game: Tonight—Century Inn vs. CFB Combos, Heywood Avenue Park, 6:45 p.m.

Denford Electric hopes of winning the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League championship received a rude jolt Monday night when Hall Rams scored a 4-2 upset at Heywood Avenue Park.

Defeat, brought about by a four-run rally in the sixth inning, left Electricians two games in arrears with only two games left on their schedule.

They are both against leading Lake Cowichan, but the Lakers also have two games left against the Rams and need only one victory against Denford or two against Rams to win.

Trailing, 0-2, Rams got started when Moe Turner led off with a single. He was forced by Bill Weldon but John Devlin singled, Bob Brown drew a base on balls, Bill Wilson doubled and Bud Taylor singled.

Fred Nelson, who gave up seven hits but was tough when it mattered, was scored on only in the third and fifth innings.

Lake Cowichan took two games from Sooke Hotel Sunday, 3-2 and 10-2, at Lake Cowichan Park. B. C. Telephone downed CFB Combos, 9-4, and Century Inn beat Hall Rams, 7-4, in Sunday action at Heywood Avenue Park.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — An earthquake centred in southern China's Kwangtun province ripped through the nearby colonies of Hong Kong and Macao for 10 seconds, tumbling people out of beds, breaking pots and pans but causing no casualties or severe damage.

Sledge

Sledge, Martin Among Cuts As Lions Name 1969 Team

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions released nine players Monday to cut their Canadian Football League roster to 18 Canadians and 15 import players.

They will have to cut their import quota by an additional player before noon today to get down to the CFL maximum. The possibility exists that they may make it by putting guard John McDowell, who has a sprained ankle, on the injured list.

Among those cut were halfback Leroy Sledge and veteran Mike Martin, a member of the Grey Cup champions in 1965 as a defensive end.

Martin, converted to a middle-linebacker last year, lost his job to Dave Tobey, one-time member of Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League.

Also released Monday were Canadian-centres Ken Ferguson and Pete Travis and rookie-fullback Brad Johnson, tackle Mike St. Louis, halfback Donny Moore, defence-back Pokey Allen and linebacker Jim Schmidt.

Pending a decision on the extra import still with the club, the cuts leave the Lions with 11 newcomers.

Import newcomers in addition to Tobey are halfback Jim Nicholson, flanker Jake Scott, guard Don Hayes and Grant Huntsperger, a lineman who can play both offence and defence.

Rookie Canadians added to the team are receiver Ted Warkentin, quarterback Hank Grenda, guard Dave Golinsky, tackle Jim Heighton, linebacker Dave Wray and defence-back Dave Easley.

THE STAYERS

Import holdovers are quarterback Paul Brothers, fullback Jim Evenson, halfback Dale Brady, tackles Ken Sugarman and Max Huber, defence-ends E. A. Sims and Bob Brown and defence-backs Jerry Bradley and Craig Murray.

Canadian holdovers are receivers Jim Young, Lefty Hendrickson and Lach Heron, quarterback Pete Ohler, guard Trev Ekdahl, centre Bob Howes, defence-tackles Dick Fouts and Wayne Dennis, linebacker Greg Findlay and defence-backs Ted Gerela, Len Sparks and Bill Lasseter.

Lions play their league opener here against Calgary Stampeders on Wednesday, and coach Jim Champion has said he will start Brothers at quarterback.

Evenson, Scott, Brady and Nicholson loom as the starting backfield behind Brothers if Nicholson has recovered from a slight injury. The offence line figures to have Hendrickson at tight end, Young at split end, Huber and Sugarman at tackle, Ekdahl and Hayes or McDowell at guard and Howes at centre.

On defence, Fouts and Dennis will probably start at tackle with Sims and Brown at the ends, Tobey in the middle and Findlay and Wray on the corners. Bradley, Murray and three of the four Canadians will be in the backfield.

Angels Score Polo Victory

Two goals each by Tony Yonge and Basil Parker led Blue Angels to a 5-2 victory over Red Devils in a Victoria Polo Club match Saturday at the club grounds.

Eoin Ruthven completed the winner's scoring with one goal while Andy Barrie and Lt. David Harris scored for Red Devils.

League Honors to Bates Weekend Sweep Clincher

It took Bate Construction only two seasons to gain the Major Men's Softball League championship.

Fourth-place team last year in their initial season after graduating from junior ranks, Bates clinched the title with wins Sunday and Monday at Central Park.

They defeated Luckies, 6-4, Monday after stopping Red Lion Inn, 7-0, Sunday while second-place Molsons were defeating Langford Drywall, 10-2, to retain their slim chance.

Bates now lead by six games and both the top two teams have only five games to play.

Harvey Stevenson drove in four runs against Luckies with a single and two-run homer to help Gord Huston, who gave up home runs to Stu Mitchell and Gord Jones, remain undefeated.

Brian Pearce gained his shutout Sunday with a three-hitter against Red Lions.

Larry Jay of Molsons also had a three-hitter for his victory.

Floyd Romps In With Record 269

AKRON (AP)—Ray Floyd, 26 years old and brash and confident, gave the 7180-yard Firestone Country Club course its worst-ever beating when he shot a last-round 65 Sunday to win the $125,000 American Golf Classic.

That left him with a record 268 for the 72 holes, 12 under par and wiping from the record books the 275 which won for Ken Venturi in 1964.

SECOND WIN

It was the second USPGA win of the year for Floyd, who won the Jacksonville Open.

Bobby Nichols, host-club pro, vaulted past Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Mitchell, who had started the last round tied with Floyd, by shooting a 67 for a 272.

Tom Weiskoof, who finished with 66, was third at 274. Mitchell skidded to a 73 to share fourth place with Gene Littler (68) at 274. Nicklaus, who had one stretch in which he shot six bogeys in eight holes, had a 75 and finished at 278, tied with Al Geiberger (63).

Floyd birdied the second, sixth and eighth holes and had a bogey on the fifth to take a two-stroke lead after the first nine holes. He clinched matters with birdies on the 13th, 14th and 16th.

Betsy Takes Title

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y.—Betsy Rawls became the oldest person to win the U.S. Ladies Professional Golf Association championship when she shot a last-round 71 Sunday to record a 72-hole score of 293.

The 41-year-old [illegible] won by four strokes over Carol Mann and Susie Berning, who shot 70 and 75 respectively, on the last round.

* * *

Marlene Hagge, who shared the lead with Miss Mann after 54 holes, slipped to a 79 for a 298 which left her in fourth place.

Marie Lindstrom was fifth with 299 after a closing 75 and Donna Caponi and Kathy Whitworth, the year's leading money-winner, were at 300.

Sandra Post, the Canadian who won the tournament last year, finished with a 76 for 305 which left her tied for 10th place.

Weicker in Meet Sweep Anne Langdale Wins 200

It was back to business as usual Monday for Victoria Track Club performer Dave Weicker after the most memorable weekend in the young athlete's career.

Not expected to win either event in the Canadian age-class track and field championships over the weekend in Calgary, Weicker won the junior 800 metres Sunday to score a double victory.

He won the 1500 metres Saturday.

TWO SURPRISES

"I was pretty surprised when I won the 1500," Weicker said. "And I didn't expect to take the 800."

The shorter race was won in 1:51.8; two and one-half seconds better than Weicker's previous best time.

"The first lap was very fast, 55 or 56 seconds," the Oak Bay High School graduate said. "I took over the lead going into the back straight and just kept on fighting."

"It was much tougher than the Saturday run even though the heat and altitude were a bother in the 1500. I was about four seconds above my best time in that."

Capping off the performance was a fine leg in the record-setting win by the "B.C. International team in the 1600 metres relay.

"I had my best ever 400," Weicker said. "One person said I had 49.2 seconds and another 48.5. I think the first was a little closer."

Sunday was a much more satisfying day for Anne Langdale of Victoria Mercuries, who was upset in the 400 metres the previous day by Gayle Olinek of Toronto.

Miss Langdale won the 200-metre race in 24.2 seconds, four-tenths of a second better than her previous best and helped B.C. Internationals to a 48.5-second win in the 400-metre relay.

Miss Langdale's 200-metre time was three-tenths of a second better than the winning junior time posted by Debbie Miller of Brantford, Ont.

Sunday was another disappointing day for Penny May of VTC, who again placed second in a hurdle event. Peggy Busch of Vancouver, co-holder of the Canadian record with Miss May, won the 200-metre event in 28.2 seconds.

EAST DOMINATES

Jill Pelland of Victoria was the other Vancouver Island medal winner on the last day, finishing third in the juvenile women's 200 hurdles. Cathy Hunter of Scarborough, Ont., won in 28.3 seconds.

Eastern athletes won 38 of the 67 events and gained six of the nine records set.

Brentwood Wins Title

Noreen Sluggett drove in her sister Marilyn, with a single in the last inning to give Brentwood the Vancouver Island juvenile girls softball championship with a 7-6 win over View Royal Saturday at View Royal Park.

View Royal, which suffered its first loss of the double-knockout tournament Saturday to the undefeated champions, 10-19, reached the final with a 6-5 win over Sproat Lake earlier in the day.

Sproat Lake eliminated Nanaimo Sunday with a 17-12 victory.

Cancer Ends 38-Year Career

Great Songwriter Dies

Loesser

NEW YORK (UPI) — Composer Frank Loesser died Monday after a 38-year career in which he gave America many of its most beloved melodies and most famous Broadway shows.

Loesser, 59, was a victim of lung cancer.

He wrote Guys and Dolls, Most Happy Fella, and the Pulitzer prize-winning How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying.

* * *

Although he always said his singing sounded "like an auctioneer, and he could not read music, Loesser wrote the music for more than 1,500 songs. Baby It's Cold Outside won the academy award in 1949 and Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition kept a war-geared country singing during the Second World War.

Loesser was born in New York City in 1910, and after flunking out of the City College of New York by failing everything but English and gym, became a newspaper reporter.

After a varied career which ranged from the editorship of a small trade publication to a job screwing tops on insecticide bottles, Loesser went into the songwriting business in Hollywood in 1931.

* * *

In 1936 he married Lynn Garland and the couple had two children. They were divorced later and in 1959 he married an actress-singer, Elizabeth Josephine, whose stage name was Jo Sullivan. They also had two children.

During the Second World War, he was known as the army's one-man hit parade. In addition to Praise the Lord, he wrote the Ballad of Roger Young, First Class Private Mary Brown, and What Do They Do in the Infantry.

His film scores included, Destry Rides Again, Kiss the Boys Goodbye, Let's Dance, Thank Your Lucky Stars, and Variety Girl.

* * *

Loesser's chief collaborators were Hoagy Carmichael, Jimmy McHugh, Burton Lane, Jule Styne and Arthur Schwartz.

Among Loessers's most noted songs: Standing on the Corner, I Believe in You, Anywhere I Wander, Thumbelina, Luck Be a Lady, No Two People, Once in Love With Amy, If I Were a Bell, I've Never Been in Love Before, My Darling, My Darling, On a Slow Boat to China, A Bushel and a Peck, I Wish I Didn't Love You So, I Don't Want to Walk Without You, Heart and Soul, Two Sleepy People, Moments Like This, Hey Good Lookin, I Hear Music, Jingle Jangle Jingle, They're Either Too Young or Too Old, and Spring will be a Little Late This Year.

A family spokesman said Loesser's body would be cremated and the ashes scattered over the Atlantic Ocean.

WINDSOR, Ont. — Last Thursday, the Ludington, Mich., Daily News received a letter from Forest Lathers asking that his subscription to the paper be sent to him in care of general delivery at Windsor.

When Lathers came to the post office to pick up his paper, he was arrested by RCMP officers.

Police said Lathers, 37, escaped June 14 from Traverse City State Hospital, where he had been confined since 1967 after he was found guilty of slaying his wife.

☐

TORBAY, England—Princess Anne tried a tot of rum with sailors when she toured a British battleship. On the quarter-deck the 18-year-old princess watched the morning rum issue and was persuaded to try a tot. She took a small sip and liked the taste, but said she didn't think she could manage the whole glass.

Bill Pritchard, 50 years after

Historic Words Live Long After Tragedy

By DON COLLINS

"..... and in my own mind I rest assured that the historian of the future will drive the knife of critical research into the very bowels of this bogey that has been conjured forth out of the imagination of certain legal luminaries of this city."

More than one historian is about to do precisely that today, says William Pritchard, the man who uttered these words during a historic two-day address to a jury in Winnipeg beginning on March 23, 1920.

"Bill" Pritchard, one of eight men tried in connection with the famous Winnipeg general strike of 1919, is visiting Victoria in connection with the event's 50th anniversary.

* * *

At 81, he is still an alert man with a quick command of the English language, and remains very much the old-time socialist and trade unionist, with little use for the moderate views offered today.

He has lived in Los Angeles for 31 years, where he continues to write music reviews for a twice-weekly newspaper and beats the drums for the World Socialist Party of the U.S.

Mr. Pritchard considers Russia a place of state capitalism.

He only knows the NDP by what he has read, but considers it a party promoting "free-for-all enterprise."

He spent many years in Vancouver as a trade unionist after moving to Canada from his native Manchester, and was invited to Victoria this week by Larry Tickner, general secretary of the Socialist Party of Canada.

He took a short turn at Speakers' Corner in Beacon Hill Park at 3 p.m. Sunday. On Friday, he was given a reception by the Victoria Labor Council.

Mr. Pritchard went to the Winnipeg strike as a speaker and remained seven days. He did not become involved in the bloodshed that occurred when strikers were met in the streets with gunfire.

* * *

The strike, which brought all services to a halt in Winnipeg, has often been cited as the turning point for Canadian labor.

Mr. Pritchard said he found it interesting that he was denied permission to quote from the Encyclopedia Britannica during his two-day address to the jury, but that the crown was allowed to quote from the Bible.

"I wanted to quote parts pertaining to Marx, but the trial judge felt the contributors to the encyclopedia were possibly too sympathetic to their subjects," he said.

His long address was published in a 200-page paperback version later by the original strike committee. He said scholars today are offering as much as $18 a copy.

"Maybe I should have insisted on royalties at the time," he says with a knowing wink.

Despite the eloquence of an address that filled the courts with lawyers, Bill Pritchard was jailed 12 months with several others. One man was sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

The address, he said, brought him immediate offers, including one from A. J. Andrews, the man who prosecuted him.

* * *

"He said he would try to get me out early and get me started studying law," Mr. Pritchard said.

He declined the offer and went to jail, where his fondest memories are of teaching an Italian prisoner to read and write and of producing a Gilbert and Sllivan musical.

Today he spends much of his time with other memories. But not entirely. There is still time for writing poetry and dropping such little thoughts in conversationas:

"There has to be something wrong with things as they are now, because everyone is always complaining about them.

"And by the time one wrong is cured they find the cure has laid the grounds for a dozen other ills."

Youth, 20, Gets Year For Stealing Car

"One can only be saddened to see a young man like you learn nothing from his past experience," Magistrate William Ostler told a 20-year-old man Monday in Central Magistrate's Court.

Jonas D. Bellrose of 959 Balmoral pleaded guilty to a charge of theft over $50 and was sentenced to one year in jail.

Court was told that Bellrose stole a car and tried to drive to Dawson Creek, where his parents live. He was arrested when he lost his way in Saanich.

A police officer told court that the accused said at the time he wanted to steal cars along the way.

Bellrose was released from jail June 2 after serving a sentence for theft.

"One would expect you to turn the other way when you see a car, but instead you learn nothing from your experience," Magistrate Ostler said.

"You had a chance to get job training when you came out of prison. That would have given you the opportunity to get a job and wait until you can afford to buy your own car."

□

A 19-year-old youth was sentenced to 14 days in jail and fined $150 after pleading guilty to driving under suspension and wilful damage.

Court was told that James A. van Welten, of no fixed address, drove his car while his driver's licence was suspended.

The accused also damaged the lawn and several shrubs in an Esquimalt park when he lost control of his car and drove across the grass.

□

Albert J. Vanalstine, residing at the Old Mill Motel, was fined $650 after he pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and dangerous driving.

Court was told that the accused was travelling east on Goldstream when he lost control of the car. He sideswiped one utility pole and crashed into a second one before his car flipped over and landed on its roof.

The accident happened June 15, and court was told the accused suffered a broken leg and ankle. A passenger in Vanalstine's car also had a broken leg.

Magistrate Ostler recommended that the accused's licence be suspended for six months.

□

William M. Blau, 22, of no fixed address, was remanded until Aug. 10 after pleading guilty to possessing narcotics.

Court was told that Blau had come to Victoria from the United States about two months ago. Bail was set at $500.

□

Robert P. Coffman, 22, of San Francisco, was sentenced to three months in jail after pleading guilty earlier to a charge of possessing narcotics.

A pre-sentence report on the accused said that Coffman had been using marijuana for the past five years.

"This is a very negative report," Magistrate Ostler said.

"I don't think so—not too negative," Coffman replied.

Sooke Takes World Titles

HAYWARD, Wis. (AP)—Jubiel Wickheim, 35, of Sooke, regained the world log-birling championship Sunday by defeating defending titlist Phillip Scott, 20, of Barrington, N.S.

Mervin Lintz of Crestwell, Ore., was named all-around lumberjack for the third straight year.

Wickheim now has won the log-birling title 10 times. He lost to his brother Ardiel in 1967 and to Scott last year.

Brian Herlihy of Sooke won the underhand chopping and standing chopping titles.

B.C. Fires Down Thanks to Rain

Rain over most of the province on the weekend kept the number of new forest fire outbreaks down to 43, many of which, were caused by people, according to the B.C. Forest Service.

Seven of the 10 new outbreaks in the Vancouver district, four of the six in Prince George, and the three in Prince Rupert were caused by campers, smokers and others. Lightning started two fires in the Nelson district and the Kamloops district had 22 fires blamed on miscellaneous causes.

The hazard is high in the Vancouver and Okanagan districts at present, and ranges from moderate to high in the Kamloops district and low to high in the Nelson and Prince Rupert districts.

On Monday 125 fires were burning in the province, fought by 532 men using 32 bulldozers.

We'd hate to think what you'd pay if somebody else built it.

Let's face it, you'd pay considerably more than the price tag on the new Toyota Mark II. And even then you might not have as great a car.

What makes the Toyota Mark II such a great car?

Well, first of all it's a Toyota, which means it comes to you with a long standing reputation for durability, performance and fine craftmanship.

Secondly, and for that same price tag, The Toyota Mark II comes fully equipped. No extras to sneak the price up. For example, the Mark II has an oversquare, overhead camshaft, five bearing, four cylinder engine developing 108 h.p. Enough to cruise at any legal highway speeds, very comfortably and very quietly. The transmission is a console mounted four speed all synchromesh or, you can choose an optional three speed automatic if you prefer not to shift for yourself. When you build a car that can top 105 m.p.h. it better have brakes. So we gave the Toyota Mark II the best. Power assisted discs on the front and self adjusting drums on the rear.

To make sure it would handle like the thoroughbred it is, we built it with coil spring front suspension, a torsion bar stabilizer and double acting shock absorbers.

Then we took all this rugged performance and wrapped it in a beautiful, luxurious package.

Fully reclining, fully adjustable, contoured bucket seats. Wall to wall deep pile carpeting. "Fresh Flow" fan boosted ventilation. Ignition/steering lock. Heavy duty three speed heater/defroster. Whitewall tires.

Plus all the safety features. Three point front and two point rear seat belts. Impact absorbing body. Dual headlights. Collapsible steering column. Rear window defogger. Padded dash. Padded visors. Padded interior walls and roof liner. Padded steering hub. We put all the padding in the car not the price.

In fact we can't think of an extra the Toyota Mark II doesn't have. And you get the whole beautiful package for one low price.

Think about it. Can you imagine what you'd pay if somebody else built it?
Four door sedan $2699.*
Two door hardtop. $2884.*

Toyota Mark II $2884.

*Suggested list price, P.O.E. Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal. Provincial and local taxes extra.
The Toyota line of fine automobiles is sold and serviced by over 130 dealers across Canada.

Capture, Crippled Engine, Ripped Mainsail

Ocean Trip Trouble-Filled

By DON GAIN

A Nanoose Bay couple, seized earlier this year in their yacht off Hong Kong by Communist Chinese, are back on Vancouver Island after two months spent on a Pacific crossing with a crippled engine and a ripped mainsail.

Arne Larsen, 54, and his wife Evelyn, 45, were expected in Victoria today aboard their yacht Simulous.

The couple spent the weekend in Port Renfrew after encountering engine trouble at sea. Only partial repairs were made and the couple left shortly after noon Monday under sail.

They were the guests in Port Renfrew of George Phillips, a diesel mechanic, and his wife.

When the Simulous was towed into port Saturday by a fishboat, Mr. Phillips tried to make repairs but found the engine was irreparable, he told The Daily Colonist Monday.

The yacht's mainsail ripped several weeks ago. Mrs. Larsen sewed it up over the weekend.

The Larsens were held prisoner by Communist Chinese for 12 days last January on Wanshow Island.

Mr. Larsen, a former commerical fisherman who fished off the Queen Charlotte Islands, retired last year.

He and his wife went to Hong Kong and ordered a custom-built 40-foot yacht. They had taken delivery of it and were sailing it home when they were hit by a typhoon between Hong Kong and Taiwan on Jan. 5.

The mainmast snapped in the typhoon but the yacht was still seaworthy and the Larsens headed back to Hong Kong.

* * *

They did not know their compass had been damaged, Mr. Larsen said at the time, and they sailed into Communist waters without knowing it.

They were about 30 miles from the mouth of Hong Kong harbor when an armed Chinese patrol junk captured them and towed them to Wanshow Island.

For 12 days they were held prisoner. They were subjected to intensive questioning, interspersed with lectures on the thoughts of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

When they were released on Jan. 20, they again set out for Hong Kong. As they approached the harbor, they were accosted by another armed Communist Chinese junk.

The Larsens twice were successful in evading capture by dodging the junk. On the third try, a Japanese freighter captain, who heard their cries for help, swerved his ship to cut between the Simulous and the junk.

The Vancouver Island couple finally made Hong Kong harbor and put in for repairs.

* * *

They later spent 2½ months waiting for repairs and two weeks in Japan. They left for home May 25, and their engine broke down after four days at sea.

They hoisted sail to continue their homeward voyage, but the mainsail ripped several weeks ago.

NDP Rookie Tackles Grit Fort

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

A 28-year-old radio technician was chosen Monday night by the New Democratic Party to cut his political teeth on the party's weakest constituency—Oak Bay.

—William Boucher

McKenzie points to riding he seeks to win

Boulter

Jack McKenzie, a former DEW-line worker, took an undisclosed majority of the 10 votes cast to beat retired United Church minister Rev. Harold Allen, and get a chance at bettering the NDP's standing in a Liberal party stronghold.

In the 1968 byelection in Oak Bay, Mr. McKenzie's nominator, secretary Mira Yarwood, polled only 976 votes or 5 per cent of the votes cast, the NDP's worst showing in B.C. The seat was taken by former Oak Bay reeve Allan Cox, who succeeded Liberal barrister Alan Macfarlane.

Mr. McKenzie will face Mr. Cox and Oak Bay Ald. Dr. Scott Wallace of the Social Credit party.

EXPECTS GAINS

Asked how he thought he would do in the Aug. 27 election, Mr. McKenzie said, "We expect to make gains — make that 'appreciable' gains."

Campaign manager Lloyd Brereton told the nomination meeting it would be "unwise and unrealistic" to stage a campaign in Oak Bay similar to the one the NDP intends to put on in Victoria.

Only $2,000 of the $8,000 in campaign funds — of which $1,100 has been raised — expected to be used for both ridings will go toward Oak Bay, he said.

32 VOLUNTEERS

The meeting was told the NDP had about 32 volunteer canvassers in Oak Bay, about one per polling division.

Mr. McKenzie said he felt the issue in the election was "control of our environment," a phrase almost identical to that given by Premier Bennett as the No. 1 priority of the Social Credit administration.

Mr. McKenzie said pollution control should be paid for out of the provincial treasury from general revenue, and that pollution control standards should be set on a national, or better, an international basis.

The candidate said the NDP did not believe all industries should be nationalized, but he said public utilities — including B.C. Tel — should be taken over by government.

MAXIMUM FREEDOM

The required economic situation would be "maximum amount of freedom within a controlled economic environment," Mr. McKenzie said. The NDP has "changed away from nationalization," he said.

Mr. McKenzie lives at 1421 Taunton, is married and has "three and a half" children.

In other election news, Fred Boulter, a shipwright and former school trustee, announced his intention to seek the Liberal nomination in Esquimalt for the forthcoming election.

FINISH FRIDAY

All Socred and NDP candidates, in Greater Victoria have been nominated. The Liberal nominations begin tonight in Oak Bay and finish Friday in Victoria.

On the Lower Mainland, former football coach Annis Stukus was chosen by the Socreds to contest the North Vancouver - Seymour riding, last held by Liberal Barry Clark.

City Gallery

Art Grant One Of Highest

The highest Canada Council grant for a gallery of its size has been awarded to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Gallery director Colin Graham said he was both "pleased and appreciative" that, with the exception of the five or six major galleries in Canada, Victoria received the highest grant.

Part of the $14,500 will be used to stage an environmental sculpture exhibition involving electronic media.

GROUP OF SEVEN

The show of works by the Vancouver Intermedia Group opens Oct. 14, and will be followed by a Group of Seven exhibition beginning about Nov. 4. Other shows being planned include a major sculpture exhibition in the spring.

The remainder of the grant will be used for cataloguing and conditioning the permanent collection, special lectures, reference library purchases and staff salaries.

Girl Finds Wedding Pictures

Eight "fabulous" color wedding pictures, complete with negatives, were found near the Central Park swings Monday by nine-year-old Joanne Podgorenko of 2619 Graham.

"I'm sure whoever lost those pictures must be going mad looking for them," said her mother, Mr. Kay Podgorenko. Her telephone number is 385-1185.

Brentwood Student Shares High Honors

William Holmes, a student at Brentwood College, Mill Bay, shared top honors in 1969 high school scholarship exam results announced Monday.

He and Per Ake Suneby of Trail scored an average 99 per cent to claim equal right to the Governor-General's silver medal.

* * *

A Duncan student, Steven Joseph Gergel of 6092 Alington Road, scored an average of 98 per cent to tie for third place with a Vancouver Student. Other Island students to score 95 per cent or higher:

- Terrence Warren Gunderson, Campbell River, who attended Georges Vanier senior high school in Courtenay. He scored an average 97 per cent.
- Melvin Donald Klassen, 1464 Stroud, a student at Victoria High, 95.5 per cent.
- John Charles Sobkowiez, 1420 Simon, a student at Mount Douglas high, 95.5 per cent.
- Heather Jill Brock, 3360 Woodburn, a student at Norfolk House school for girls, 95 per cent.

* * *

Students who write for government scholarships are judged on their two best marks achieved in the examinations.

Those with a first-class standing of 80 per cent or higher receive three-quarters of their university tuition fees during the subsequent year.

* * *

Second-class marks of 70 to 79 per cent earn varying amounts of money. A top group of students receives one-half of tuition fees while the remainder are granted one-third of their fees.

The education department announced 3,746 students in Grade 12 and 13 wrote scholarship exams. A total of 1,199 earned first-class marks and 970 received second-class marks.

Three Safe After Sea Drift

A Saanich man, his small son and another boy were rescued early Sunday in Juan de Fuca Strait after drifting for hours aboard a disabled 16-foot boat.

Arne Klaassen, 35, of 1031 Fenn, and the two boys were rescued 20 miles southeast of Victoria by the Coast Guard cutter Racer at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The three had set out for home from James Bay at 2:30 p.m. Saturday but lost power in their inboard engine at about 5 p.m.

Saanich School Board

Study of Disturbed Hurdles Objections

By BILL STAVDAL

An experimental study involving emotionally disturbed children was approved Monday by Saanich school board, despite misgivings about a proposed isolation cubicle which will be part of the program.

The cubicle, estimated at two feet wide by six feet long, was described as a "time-out booth" by superintendent Robert Price, but was attacked by several trustees.

FORMER MAJOR

One recalled the days when he was locked in a cupboard, and another, former army major Charles MacNeill, said the practice was used by North Koreans to break the wills of prisoners.

The research program will be carried out at McTavish Road elementary school this fall by Victoria child psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney.

Dr. Ney also works at the provincial mental health clinic. His work at McTavish school will be supported by grant funds.

NATURE OF STUDY

Nature of the study was not disclosed at the school board meeting. Trustees were told that the same application by Dr. Ney had been turned down by the Greater Victoria school board.

Dr. Donald Shorting, chairman of the Greater Victoria board's education committee, confirmed that the board rejected the application last month during a closed meeting because of disagreement with Dr. Ney over his isolation cubicle.

"The Koreans did this to gain ascendancy over a prisoner," commented Mr. MacNeill after superintendent Price outlined the "time-out booth."

STRONG SUPPORT

Mr. Price said the idea was to isolate a child disrupting the class until he decided to stop being anti-social. The superintendent was strongly supported by board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, a former teacher of disturbed children.

"The children are not put in these rooms for hours and hours," said Mrs. Parrott. "It's not a cell."

Trustee John Armstrong countered:

"I object to the words educators use to gloss things over. his isn't a time-out booth; it's a closet."

HOCKEY GAMES

Mrs. Parrott replied:

"You have time-out booths in hockey games. You are removing him (the player) for a period of time until he learns to play the game."

After further assurance from superintendent Price that the matter of the isolation cubicle would be reviewed with Dr. Ney, trustees approved the program, all but Mr. MacNeill.

The board also voted $250 to build a booth, which may be fitted with a one-way window.

RCMP Promotes G.C. Cunningham

Gordon C. Cunningham, 51, has been appointed assistant commissioner and head of the Victoria RCMP division, it was announced Monday.

Mr. Cunningham joined the force in 1940 and has been commanding officer of the division since his arrival from Ottawa at the end of June.

He succeeds A. C. Engel, who retired recently as assistant commissioner.

Identical Bids Invite Probe

The results of Oak Bay council's call for tenders for 20 street light fixtures will be sent to the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission in Ottawa for possible investigation, council decided Monday.

Each of the five competing firms submitted an identical bid of $77.50 per fixture.

"One gets suspicious when year after year, similar bids are received," said Ald. John Watts. "Let's just send our information to the combines commission and let them look at it. That's their job."

Ald. Frances Elford noted it had been the practice to spread the contracts around in past cases when identical bids were submitted.

Oak Bay Adds Vote On Sunday Sports

Oak Bay Monday became the third Greater Victoria municipality to decide to put the question of Sunday sports to its voters at the annual December election.

In approving the motion, council noted the issue was not of major importance to the municipality as Oak Bay has only one commercial enterprise—a movie theatre—that might be affected.

A public meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 to discuss the proposed rezoning of the area at 2086 Granite to allow for construction of apartments by Tudor Estates Ltd.

Campsite Death

Man Faces Trial In Murder Case

Lawrence Ernest Munning, 41, was committed in Central Magistrate's Court Monday for trial in a higher court on a charge of non-capital murder.

The charge arose from the death June 2 of his wife, Catherine Josephine Munning, 35. She was believed to have died of carbon monoxide poisoning at Goldstream campsite.

The committal wound up the preliminary hearing during which more than a dozen witnesses testified on behalf of the Crown and some 25 items were filed as exhibits.

Dr. J. S. P. Lane told court Monday that, "there was the slightest doubt" in his mind that Mrs. Munning was dead when he examined her June 2 at about 5:15 p.m. in front of the Colwood RCMP offices.

Dr. Lane said he called a second doctor to examine Mrs. Munning. "I had not much doubt that she was dead, but there was a small doubt in my mind that there might be some life left in her."

HIT WITH FIST

Another witness told court he had seen Mrs. Munning hit the accused with her fist several days before her death.

"She had asked me to come over. She seemed pretty upset and repeatedly screamed and yelled at her husband. Then she hit him a couple of times in the face with her fist," said Edwin Lalonde, 1997 Colwood Crescent.

He told court Munning made no effort to defend himself. "He was very quiet."

Posters Called Danger

A B.C. Tel official said Monday, election posters mounted on telephone poles present a hazard to workmen and are contrary to Workmen's Compensation Board safety regulations.

Safety administrator H. N. Maclean appealed to political parties to keep their signs and posters off the telephone poles.

"Election posters on poles endanger workmen," Mr. Maclean said. "A resulting fall could cause serious injury or death. We request the assistance of all campaigners in making our employees safe on the job."

Condition Good

Mrs. Eva Chaplin, 75, of 2100 Richmond, was in good condition Monday in Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a car Saturday evening at Richmond and Denman.

Driver of the car was identified as Joachim Hennevurg, 1966 Denman.

Mrs. Chaplin suffered a broken pelvis and knee injuries.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother died two months ago. His widow has asked me for advice and I don't know what to tell her. The question is in regard to her 19-year-old son. He wants to get married.

The boy is 4-F so he is not worried about the Army. He has been kicked out of two colleges so he is not worried about his education. (He can't get in any place.) He works in his grandfather's business (when he works) so he is not worried about a job. Here is the question: The boy wants his mother to advance him $3,000 against his inheritance so he can get married and take his bride to Honolulu on a honeymoon. His father left him $20,000 but the will states the first payment of $5,000 is to be made on the boy's 21st birthday. The second payment comes due in 1974. Subsequent payments of $2,000 are to be made at two-year intervals.

Boy Keeps Badgering

The boy keeps badgering his mother and repeating. "I don't want a gift, all I want is an advance on what is legally mine. I will pay you the $3,000 in 1971 when I get the $5,000."

What should she tell him? She's leaving it up to me. Keeper of the Keys.

Dear Keeper: She should tell him no. Her husband knew what he was doing when he wrote his will in such a way that his son would not come into any money until he was 21. All she needs say is "Sorry, we're going to leave things as dad wanted them."

Dear Ann Landers: I have a neighbor who thinks I have the most beautiful garden in town. She can hardly wait until the flowers are in full bloom so she can ask permission to "pick a few."

This woman insists she cannot grow flowers because her children need a place to play. You should have seen the look she gave me yesterday when I refused to allow her to pick a bouquet for her company table. Her face was so full of hate it ruined my day.

Flowers Need People

It takes a great deal of patience, weeding, spraying, watering and luck to grow beautiful flowers. Am I selfish because I want to enjoy them as long as possible?

There must be countless readers in your audience who have this same problem. Will you kindly give us a word or two? Wilted Friendship.

Dear Friend: Some people make a living selling flowers. They are called florists. Their phone numbers are listed in the telephone directory. Enough said.

☐

Dear Ann Landers: No lectures, please. I know right from wrong. Just tell me if a married woman can put the real father's name on the child's birth certificate instead of the name of her legal husband. The real father is married and has several daughters. He wants a son to carry on his name. Our baby will be born next month and I am almost certain I'm going to have a boy.

This is sort of a mess and I need the answer. Skylark.

Dear Sky: Don't make the mess any messier by putting your lover's name on the baby's birth certificate. According to law your husband is the father of the child.

'He'd Blow His Cool'

Kennedy Rules Out White House Try

WASHINGTON (Reuters) —Deeply depressed by the accident which claimed the life of pretty Mary Jo Kopechne, Senator Edward Kennedy has virtually ruled out seeking the United States presidency in 1972, congressional sources said Monday.

* * *

The Massachusetts Democrat, who remained in seclusion at his Cape Cod home at Hyannis Port, Mass., probably will remain in political life, although he has not made an announcement yet. But sources said he now feels strongly inclined to limit himself to the Senate.

Kennedy press aide Richard Drayne said Kennedy's chief concern is 1970, when he is up for re-election to the Senate.

* * *

As the 37-year-old Kennedy still pondered reaction to his broadcast Friday on his involvement in the July 18 crash in which 28-year-old Miss Kopechne was drowned off an island near Cape Cod, telegrams continued flooding into the Western Union office at Hyannis Port.

Kennedy aides said Massachusetts voters gave him strong backing. More than 40,000 telegrams and letters have come in so far.

But across the U.S. the picture was not so clear.

Questions continued to be raised about the circumstances surrounding the tragedy on Chappaquiddick Island in which the Washington secretary was drowned when the car Kennedy was driving ran off a bridge into a tidal pond.

* * *

Pundits questioned the way Kennedy handled himself during a 10-hour period before reporting the accident to the police.

"Kennedy met a crisis and could not cope with it," worte the Washington columnist of The Baltimore Sun, Ernest B. Furgurson.

A Washington Post analyst put it more bluntly.

* * *

Quoting Kennedy's explanation, panic, confusion and shock, columnist, Nicholas von Hoffman said:

"Fear, panic and confusion aren't the best personality traits when you have a finger on the oblivion button," in the White House.

"Assuming Teddy's account is factually accurate, he's told us he's a guy who may blow his cool," said von Hoffman.

Guilty Plea Cancels Licence for Year

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI)—Sen. Edward Kennedy, (D—Mass.), has lost his driver's licence for a year because of his plea of guilty to leaving the scene of an accident. Richard McLaughlin, Massachusetts registrar of motor vehicles, said the one-year suspension was mandatory under state law after a guilty plea.

Apollo Cone Earrings

Jacquie at 40

ATHENS (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis celebrated her 40th birthday Monday with a party aboard her husband Aristotle's yacht Christina, anchored off Scorpios Island.

Her husband was reported to have given her as her principal birthday presents a 40-carat diamond and jewelled golden earrings shaped like Apollo space cones. It was her first husband, the late president John Kennedy, who advocated the space effort that led to the initial lunar landing.

Her children, John Kennedy, Jr., 8, and Caroline, 11, attended the birday party.

Topless Bride, Erotica Bring Gasps in Paris

PARIS (AP) — A topless bridal gown and fashions inspired by the Apollo moon landing brought gasps from the audience at the showing of Mia and Vicky, the rebel designers backed by actress Elizabeth Taylor.

Erotic symbolism was the keynote of the collection shown by Mia Fonaaaeeeeu wife of Paris couturier Louis Feraud, and her English partner, Vicky Teal. The two girls designed clothes for Miss Taylor and last year opened a Paris boutique with the star's financial backing.

They are not members of the exclusive syndicate of Paris fashion designers, and stole the jump on the official winter collection showings by staging a widely publicized opening 24 hours before the first of the official displays.

* * *

They produced a startling display of models in way-out clothes dancing their way along the rostrum to the beat of African jungle drums.

The bride stole the show. Wrapped demurely in a floating white crepe mantle, she opened it to reveal a completely bare bosom over a miniskirt supported by a jewelled halter.

The bridegroom wore a diamond necklace in the form of a Maltese cross, said to be worth $300,000.

Other styles raising whistles and eyebrows included jumpsuits or "unitards; featuring different-colored sections outlining the bosom and derriere and often with a chastity belt effect.

* * *

The most photographed model other than the bride wore a topless outfit in brown leather fringes—a takeoff on the popular Hiawathas seen around town, but worn with a simple hood and cellophane sun mask. Thigh-high cellophane top boots were a frequent feature.

The jumpsuits and unitards were done in various weights of jersey, wool, viscose and velvet. Mia and Vicky said their inspiration for the collection came from the Apollo 11 moon landing.

Some of the more deliberately erotic items included multi-colored hrocheted tunics on jumpsuits in a stitch recalling grandma's sofa throw, but featuring large hands placed on the wearer's derriere and bosom.

One blue and orange unitard had two large, presumably masculine arms climbing all the way down on each side.

A beautiful black girl wore a gold silk panne velvet bare-backed evening pyjama, with a gold scallop shell concealing each breast.

The girls' escorts were fully covered, dressed like knights in a Renaissance mood, leaving the moon age to the girls.

'Gloomy Souls' Debunked

U.S. Family Changing But Still Flourishing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. family has changed, but remains a flourishing national institution, a research organization says.

The population Reference Bureau, a private study group, said the near-record 2,100,000 marriages during 1968 raised the number of American families to an all-time high of 50,000,000 and debunked "those gloomy souls who predict the imminent collapse of family life in the United States."

* * *

The 1968 marriage total was surpassed only once before — in 1946 when Second World War veterans had come home — and the 4,000,000 newlyweds of last year, were the products of that stampede to the altar.

Supporting its thesis, the bureau said that more than 92 per cent of Americans lived in family groups in 1967, and that while divorces exceeded 1,000,000 for the first time since 1946, the rate of remarriages of boh divorced men and women also went up.

* * *

While noting that there has been a sharp increase in broken marriages involving children, the bureau said "these divorce statistics can hardly be taken as good news, but they do not indicate a crisis in the U.S. family as an institution."

"A more reasonable explanation is that American couples have become increasingly disinclined to suffer marriages that are unhappy," it said. "The decision to dissolve a specific marriage that has not worked in order to try marriage again hardly constitutes a rejection of the family institution as such."

Judge Orders Sex Barrier

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Short skirts worn by women in the witness chair have brought a change in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Taylor Phillips. He ordered a panel installed in front of the witness chair.

Canadian Births Show Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — There were 30,453 births recorded in Canada during June, an increase from 28,459 in June last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics says.

The births brought the number for the first six months of 1969 to 183,172, an increase of 1.1 per cent from the same period last year.

There were 16,156 marriages registered in June, compared with 14,395 in June last year. The cumulative total this year was 66,154, four per cent higher.

Death registrations numbered 12,340 in June, compared with 11,674 in June last year. The total for the first six months of 1969 was 78,002, compared with 79,304 last year.

Fine Eyebrows Take Time

By MARY SUE MILLER

A girl writes: Please tell me how to have pretty eyebrows. Mine are very thin and light in color. I find an eyebrow pencil difficult to use and have it look natural. I would appreciate help.

The Answer: To improve the appearance of pale, skimpy eyebrows, any cosmetic used must be a very soft, lightish brown. Sooty shades can never be made to look natural.

There are several effective cosmetic types. An expert beautician is able to dye the brows, strand by strand. The process must be repeated in due course, like any other dye job.

For home use, pressed-powder brush-on brows give a good effect. As for application method:

- Groom and shape brows with a conventional eyebrow brush.
- Begin coloring at the inner corners and color each strand in turn from root to tip. A tiny eyebrow comb would help to separate and lift strands. A wedge-shaped brush is the required applicator.
- Groom the brows again. This time with comb.
- Your brows seem thicker if you pencil the underlying skin before coloring. Make your strokes very short on an upward and outward slant; blend the smudge with a cotton swab. More width comes from grooming the brows straight up and then trimming the top line crosswise.

It's a painstaking job, but worth effort.

New Tests Blame Smoking for Diseases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Public Health Service said Monday new evidence has been uncovered linking cigarette smoking to heart attacks, cancer of the throat, emphysema, non-cancerous mouth disorders and pregnancy troubles.

* * *

Releasing the third report in a series the service is required by law to submit to Congress each year, Welfare Secretary Robert Finch commended the American tobacco industry for volunteering last week to end all broadcast advertising by next year.

"The department has long felt, and I personally have shared the opinion, that television and radio advertising of cigarettes has a special impact upon young people," Finch said in a letter accompanying the report to Congress.

"Cigarette smoking continues to be confirmed as a serious health hazard to the people of this country, one which is the cause of much unnecessary disease and death."

* * *

Besides citing new links with disease the report summarized previous findings that linked cigarette smoking to a wide range of maladies including numerous forms of cancer and coronary and cardio-vascular troubles and said "no substantial negative evidence has appeared which refutes these judgments."

* * *

The report is a summary of more than 600 seperate studies by physicians and scientists all over the world.

As in previous reports, cigarettes got most of the blame with cigars and pipes generally being absolved.

Two exceptions, however, involve throat cancer and a non-cancerous ulcerated condition of the month called stomatitis nicotina which was noted in some pipe smokers.

The report cited one study that found 93 of 94 cigar and pipe smokers had unusual changes in the cells of the larynx although cancer actually had developed in only four.

* * *

The same study found similar changes in all smokers studied who consumed a pack of 20 cigarettes a day.

In a chapter on respiratory disease, the report said new evidence indicates "cigarette smoking is the most important agent in the development of pulmonary emphysema in man."

* * *

Emphysema occurs when the lungs lose their elasticity, making it difficult to exhale. The disease attacks middle-aged and elderly people and frequently is fatal. It can be arrested in its early stages but not cured.

The report cited a study which found early-warning signs of possible emphysema present in 97 of 100 cigarette-smoking men and in six of 10 ex-smokers.

In the chapter on heart disease, the report said studies during the last year confirmed "the judgment that cigarette smoking is a significant risk factor that contributes to the development of coronary heart disease, apparently by promoting myocardial infarct and cardiac arrhythmias."

* * *

Miocardial infarct involves irreversible damage to muscle and tissue of the heart. Cardiac arrhythmias are eruptions in the heart beats that can be fatal.

New studies suggest also that cigarette smoking is associated with a significant increase in hardening of the artery walls and in deposits of fatty material that eventually can close an artery, the report said.

* * *

On the subject of pregnancy, the report said new evidence has been uncovered indicating that smoking during pregnancy is associated with low birthweights in infants.

"It appears that maternal smoking during pregnancy may be associated with increase incidence of spontaneous abortion, stillbirth and neo-natal death," the report added.

Housewife Tells Journey Story:

I Talked, I Screamed

California housewife Sharon Adams, 39, Friday completed the longest solo voyage ever attempted by a woman and became the first woman to sail alone across the Pacific. She did it in her 31-foot ketch Sea Sharp II and here tells the story.

By SHARON SITES ADAMS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—I talked. I talked to the boat. To the gooney birds. To the moon and all the time to my tape recorder—it became my best friend. I said hello to a lovely star every night. I screamed. But I didn't have hallucinations.

On my first solo trip—to Hawaii, four years ago—I came pretty close. That boat had such a small cabin and I didn't have any books or tape recorder or sewing—anything to occupy my mind.

* * *

So this trip was a great deal different—twice as long but not half as hard mentally. And Sea Sharp II is a travelling small apartment with all the comforts.

And I'd had an appendectomy last Feb. 10, at my doctor's suggestion, so I wouldn't worry about appendicits. A great deal of thought and preparation from a great many people go into a thing like this.

* * *

How does it feel with only thousands of miles of ocean around you? The visibilty on a clear day is maybe 15 miles and on a foggy day just to the bow of the boat. Your world is still only what you can see.

You just set a new life for yourself and you change your life very quickly. You are divorced from life as you know it on land and you have to set up your new life out there.

You can't let loneliness get hold and defeat you.

* * *

This is a mental thing, something that you have to be, well, stubborn enough that you overcome it.

I went through seven gales and was becalmed twice—for seven days and three days. Being becalmed is almost as bad as having too much wind.

* * *

Then I had one period of 13 days of solid rain and fog. Every time you go outside you get more moisture in the boat. I had a great deal of trouble with condensation and mildew and mould.

The one thing I kept thinking about was a cheese sandwich. When my husband's boat came alongside Tuesday off the California coast they made me a cheese sandwich with lettuce and mayonnaise and passed it over to me.

* * *

I haven't weighed myself yet, but I think I'm about 106 or 108 pounds, instead of my normal 115. It was very hard to get started eating and set up this new life.

I was seasick just one day, right at the beginning. It's just a matter of getting your sealegs. I think a lot of it is fear.

* * *

The most frightening moment was the gale of June 7. I took a knockdown in that—the boat lay over on its side, but came back up by herself. I did a great deal of praying out there.

Deep depression for no reason will flash over you at times, even when things are going great. You just take hold and try to change what you're doing and thinking.

* * *

My 39th birthday was May 29. I made a chocolate cake and had three candles on it. My husband had sent me three little giftwrapped packages and told me to open them whenever I needed to. So I opened the first one on my birthday—it was a ring. Psycholigically, wondering what's there is more fun than knowing.

* * *

I had a tank of 40 gallons of water and had water left in it when I arrived here. Besides that, I had 15 gallons in plastic jugs in the bilge. I tried to ration myself to two quarts of water a day.

I read books and worked crossword puzzles. It sort of ran in cycles. I just did what I felt like doing.

People ask why my motivation was in doing this, what I expect to get out of it. I think I've already got it. I've proved that I could do it and I'm a very proud woman.

Golden Date Marked

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Heinesen of 328 Beckley celebrated their 50th wedding anniversay Saturday night with family and friends.

The couple came to Canada from the Faeroe Islands in 1927. They farmed in Saskatchewan and fished in Nova Scotia before coming to Victoria in 1950. Mr. Heinesen had his own trawler and fished off the coast until last year, when he retired at 72.

* * *

The couple has five daughters — Mrs. Betty Martin of Stockton, Calif., Mrs. Patsy Grant of Vancouver, Mrs. Val Lubin of Victoria, Mrs. Annie Mason of Victoria and Mrs. Alice Marlkinger of Nanaimo—and 14 grandchildren. A niece, Herdis Isfelt of the Faeroe Islands, also attended the anniversary celebration.

ERMA BOMBECK Takes Comfort

Parents Hold Ace in the Hole

If your kids are spelling out words in front of you now, the chances are they have been exposed to a sex education course.

There's been a lot of static about it. Parents complain their children regard them as celibates. When one mother clumsily tried to show her son the lingerie section of a mail-order catalogue (it worked with the first five) he offered to tutor her.

The big controversy is not only who should teach it, but how much and at what age. One mother wrote me that her five-year-old was asked in kindergarten class to explain pregnancy. He said, "It's like having your fanny on backwards."

* * *

The teacher wrote home and said, "Your son is immature in his knowledge of sex education." The mother wrote back, "If you can't be immature at five years old, when can you be immature?"

My observation of the whole mess is that home-taught sex education was probably the last frontier of the teaching parent. Month by month, year by year I have watched the system absorb what little skills I had to impress my children. Somehow the world slowed down and someone shoved me off.

I can't teach them math anymore. I count on my fingers and I giggle at exponents.

I don't know anything about English. I move my lips when I read and I comprehend only words and not ideas. I talk back to the language records and accuse them of dirty talk.

I can't find St. Christopher in the religion books or Lativa on any of the maps. I don't know the component parts of liquid rocket fuel and all the poetry I know rhymes at the end of the second and fourth lines.

* * *

This hurts. But in my heart I kept knowing. "I've still got those lousy birds and bees stories that will hold 'em spellbound wondering what I'm talking about. After all, human bodies are like Volkswagen bodies. They don't change from year to year."

Maybe they don't, but kids do. Or maybe we were kidding ourselves with the health books and the Disney movies. To be honest with you, I find it a relief. It doesn't bug me that a skilled teacher will put labels on things and supply the terminology.

It doesn't upset me that the real sex education will undoubtedly still come from whispers and giggles and confidences shared by a best friend or a schoolmate big for his or her age.

* * *

Parents hold the ace in the hole. They always have. The home will always bear the burden and responsibility for morality and set the example of sex. The home determines whether sex is a dirty joke; a smutty movie or an act of love and respect.

Orange Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than $5,000 has been given to charities by the Ladies Orange Benevolent Association, it was reported here at the 47th annual meeting of the organization.

Mayor Easy On Students

PENTICTON (CP) — Mayor Doug Stuart says the city will not press charges against young people involved in acts of vandalism during graduation week. The mayor said he would like to see the students make restitution for the "Grad 69" signs painted on public buildings, which cost the city $600 to repair.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

AbouTV

PEOPLE AND PROGRAMS: First Apollo ratings, for the launch but not for the moonwalk, give NBC 29 per cent of the audience, CBS 25 per cent and ABC 11 per cent. Which means 35 per cent was not watching at all . . . The networks say no one will ever know how many people saw the moonwalk, but estimates range up to 600,000,000 around the world.

I rarely mention prospective TV series because so many of them never get anywhere. But it's worth noting that Dean Martin's producer, Greg Garrison, is working on a TV version of the old Road movies, with the Bing and Bob roles in the hands of Steve Lawrence and Dom De Luise . . . Arthur Godfrey, once king of TV, has signed as host of the College Talent syndicated show . . . Ron Moody, who stole the show in Oliver, will play Uriah Heep in the new all-star movie version of David Copperfield.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's standard answer—The last of the weird phrases linked to occupations were black gang, forepeak and transom, seamen; steady state and big bang, astronomy, and probie, ECG and submarine, hospital life. A nice place to visit, but . . .

Today's question harkens back to recent Canadian history. In the winter of 1964-65, Canada had a series of government "scandals" loosely titled the Rivard affair. The key to the Rivard case was an alleged offer. Explain the "offer" and who made it to whom? The answers Wednesday, I hope.

Tuesday Highlights

NOTE: Mariner 6 may pass Mars this evening. If so, all networks will interrupt regular shows for, they hope, a first look at Mars. Probable time is 6:30 p.m.

● 7:00 p.m.—Laurel and Hardy in Come Clean—2.

7:30—The latest in the Saga of Western Man series, which isn't bad, is The Happeners. No info—8.

● 9:00—NET Festival repeats the excellent program in which pianists Vladimir Ashkenazy and Daniel Barenboim prepare for and then play Mozart's double concerto in E flat—9.

C-10:00—An hour about birdman Audubon—2, 6.

C-10:00—The latest report on the Nixon trip to Southeast Asia is due from Bangkok—7, 12.

Tuesday Movies

C-10:00 a.m.—Sea Wife (poor 1957 adventure), Richard Burton, Joan Collins, Basil Sydney—4.

C-12:45 noon—Everything But the Truth (unfunny 1956 comedy), Maureen O'Hara, John Forsythe—6, 8.

2:00 p.m.—Deputy Marshal (awful 1950 western). Only for Jon Hall-Frances Langford fans—13.

C-4:00—Raw Edge (1956 zilch), Rory Calhoun, Yvonne DeCarlo. Now there's talent!—7.

5:30—Brasher Doubloon (1942, how not to make a Philip Marlowe movie), George Montgomery—12.

C-9:00—Invitation to a Gunfighter (rotten 1964 western), Yul Brynner, George Segal. Freud rides again—5.

9:00—Guest in the House (poorish 1944 drama), Anne Baxter, Ralph Bellamy. Too much ham—13.

11:30—Star of Texas (1953 westernothing)—7.

11:30—Sitting Bull (1954 disgrace to the redman), J. Carrol Naish, Dale Robertson. Ugh—12.

12:15—Bridge to the Sun (fairish 1961 white-Japanese love), Carroll Baker, James Shigeta. Not much—2.

C-1:05 a.m.—Target: Sea of China (1945 serial). By now, you know this isn't movie night—5.

1:30—Woman in Hiding (1950 suspense without much of it), Ida Lupino, Howard Duff—7.

1:30—Goose Steps Out (hopelessly dated 1942 English war comedy), Will Hay. Eons ago—13.

Tuesday Radio

7:10 p.m.—Bright Lights: Songwriter Johnny Green—CBU (690).

8:05—Gala Performance this time has music by Haydn, Mozart and Debussy—CFMS (98.5).

8:08—Aaron Copland conducts the Stratford Festival orchestra in music by Mozart, Purcell, Ives and Copland—CBU.

9:30—Irene Worth stars in a Turgenev drama entitled The Live Relic—CBU.

●—Recommended: C—Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

This deal was reported by John Lowenthal, the Pittsburgh bridge teacher and writer, in Bridge World magazine. One is left in doubt as to whether it was by accident or design, but there is no doubt whatever that Lowenthal produced a very effective defensive play with the West cards.

It happened at the A.C.B.L. Nationals and the declarer was Omar Sharif. Against Omar's contract of three spades, Lowenthal led a small heart, East winning the ace.

East was astute enough to realize that if he returned a heart, Omar would merely sluff a losing club, and thereafter would be in control. So East returned a club.

Omar elected to put on the ace and Lowenthal dropped the king from the West hand. In his Bridge World report, Lowenthal, out of modesty no doubt, explains that he pulled the wrong card. The fact remains that the play of the king was absolutely essential to beat the contract.

South continued with a spade to the ace and another spade to West's king. West was now able to exit with a small club to East's queen, and when East returned another club the declarer was ruined.

His only hope was to ruff and hope for a 3-3 trump break. When this did not materialize he drew two more trumps, but East then won the diamond king and West the king of hearts.

BEACHCOMBER AT HEART: You could spend a lifetime dreaming of finding such a unique jewel of a Gulf Island. Warm swimming or bask in the sun and picnic from a white shell beach. Reminiscent of a tropic isle — stroll barefoot along around a mile of pebble beaches and fascinating sand stone formations and pools. Knarled by the sea over the ages and covered with the winter harvest of logs. Beachcomb your own lumber and intriguing driftwood pieces shaped by nature's winter gales.

The low bank above the beach is unique in the Gulf Islands together with the lush growth of fern, Oregon grape, alder, arbutus and more stately Douglas fir and hemlock. Bountiful harvest of oysters, clams and excellent fishing and crabbing in nearby waters.

The 2-bedroom home has full plumbing and electricity by power plant — living room with stone fireplace and superb seaviews.

Fir Decrease Follows Overcutting

By DIANE JANOWSKI

Future annual cuts of Douglas fir will continue to decrease because of past overcutting, the research branch of the B.C. labor department has predicted.

In its study of the logging labor force in the coastal region, which includes Vancouver Island, the department also said the demand for B.C. lumber would increase by at least 20 per cent by 1975, with the region supplying almost 50 per cent of the total production.

Other predictions:

● Coastal veneer and plywood production will retain its dominance in the province and will continue to expand, but not as quickly as in the Interior.

● Pulp production on the Coast will decline from its present figure of 85 per cent of the provincial total to 65 per cent, as total production increases by 90 per cent.

● The region's total annual harvest must increase by 22 per cent in the next six years, but the size of the woods labor force is expected to remain the same as present.

● A large number of the present woods labor force will probably not need specific job training to remain in the industry during the next 10 years.

Referring to the declining size of the Douglas fir cut, the report said: "The species composition of annual cuts has not been in accordance with the species composition of the forest inventory."

HEAVILY CUT

"Douglas fir, the species upon which the industry has relied for its development, has been heavily cut. Results of this are revealed in the declining proportion that this species represents in annual cuts."

The species, which represents only 12.48 per cent of the region's total available sound wood when rough utilization is employed, and 9.61 per cent at close utilization, now makes up 21.53 per cent of the total annual cut. It was 42.70 per cent of the total in 1950.

"Future annual cuts are likely to contain lower amounts of this high-value species," predicted the report.

It said larger cuts of balsam, hemlock and spruce might cause difficulties for the industry.

"When the decrease in average log size is taken into consideration, these factors may present problems to some logging operations in adjusting to the changing nature of the forest resources."

Productivity is expected to increase about 10 cubic feet per worker per hour to 44 by 1975, so the size of the labor force will remain approximately the same. It would have to increase if the productivity did not rise as expected, said the report.

Occupational trends indicate that the greatest changes will occur in the production group of workers.

"The precentage that this category represents is expected to further decline as the trend toward fewer workers in the woods continues," said the report. "More specifically, alterations will occur in the subdivisions of this group: falling and bucking, yarding, skidding, loading, hauling, unloading and booming."

Factors contributing to the group's declining numbers are lessening the need for direct supervision in the woods, greater use of grapple yarding and tractor skidding, implementation of grapples and power tongs in place of hand set tongs, consolidation of log dumps, widespread use of the dozer boat, reduction in the number and size of camps and a trend toward more and heavier equipment for road building and maintenance.

Technical occupations and those concerned with equipment maintenance and servicing had been increasing and would probably continue, it was stated.

Coroner Orders Inquest

Duncan coroner Thomas Lines has ordered an inquest into the death of Damas Frederick La Fleur, 26, of Chemainus, killed Sunday when his car left the old Chemainus highway north of Chemainus, struck a telephone pole and tumbled down a 75-foot embankment.

Police said Mr. La Fleur, a logger, was the only occupant of the car. They said they were notified of the accident by a passing motorist.

A woman who died Saturday when the car in which she was riding left the highway about 16 miles north of Nanaimo and sheared off a power pole has been identified by police as Verna Catherine Hughes, 48, of 2070 Cook, Comox.

'FAIRLY GOOD'

A man in the car who was injured has been identified as Raymond Austin Miller, Qualicum, about 60. He is reported in fairly good condition in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital.

Near Regina Sunday night, a 16-year-old Courtenay girl died from injuries.

Police said Janice Lynn Davis was apparently sleeping along the Trans-Canada highway when a semi-trailer truck hit a suitcase, striking her on the head.

The truck did not stop, and police said the driver may not be aware of the mishap.

The girl and her brother, Steve Gary Davis, were hitchhiking to Ontario, police said. He was not injured.

Liberals Nominate Candidates For Comox, Alberni

Liberal candidates were nominated for the Alberni and Comox ridings Monday evening.

In Campbell River, Mrs. Henrietta (Cookie) Chown of Courtenay was nominated for the Comox riding.

She beat James Standeven of Campbell River.

Mrs. Chown, who is in her 30s, is married with four children. She is senior high school teacher. Her husband Bob is also a high school teacher.

Mrs. Chown has been a Liberal party worker for some time and in last year's federal election helped to campaign for Richard Durante.

She was proposed by Don Elmore of Campbell River and seconded by Mrs. Robert McPhee of Courtenay. Mr. Standeven was proposed by John Brett and seconded by Richard Thomas, both of Campbell Rivwr.

About 60 people attended the nomination meeting, held at Discovery Inn.

Incumbent member is Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Veterans' First Finishes

COWICHAN BAY—More than 60 entries were attracted by the first Vancouver Island veterans' tournament which was sponsored by South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club and held at Cowichan Bay at the weekend.

Results were: women's singles, Mrs. Claire Lovett, Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club; women's doubles, Mrs. Lovett and Mrs. Jean Bardsley, Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club; senior men's singles, Jim Bardsley, Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club; mixed, Mr. and Mrs. Bardsley; senior men's doubles, Ted Smythe and Charlie Miller, Victoria; junior men's singles, Ron Mitchell, Nanaimo; junior men's doubles, Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Smythe.

Foxy Didn't Return

Foxy the kelpie, who came here from Australia last summer, jumped out of his owner's car in downtown Victoria Monday and has not returned home. Rare breed is cross between collie and wild dingo. Auburn-colored dog has curly tail and name Foxy on collar. Owner is Charles Nelles, former Saanich councillor, of 1999 Lansdowne.

Only Three Tyee Recorded

Prince Button Winners Announced for June

To win a King Fisherman Prince Button for fish caught in June it took an 8.4-pound steelhead, a 2.7-pound river cutthroat or brown trout, a 4.4-pound trout from a lake, a 3-pound bass, a 32-pound spring (chinook) salmon, a 7.12-opund coho, and any tyee salmon.

Only three tyee were recorded during June, all caught by Americans in Campbell River waters.

Prince buttons are awarded each month for the 25 heaviest salmon in each of the spring (chinook), coho and tyee salmon categories and 15 in each of the lake trout, river trout and bass categories, with five of the river trout, including one gold button, reserved for river trout other than steelhead or rainbow trout.

GOLD FOR BIGGEST

A gold-plated button is awarded for the heaviest fish in each category, each month. No person may win two buttons in any one category in any one year, except for the gold buttons.

Here are the winners:

Governors Told Housing Next

SEATTLE (LAT) — Two Nixon administration cabinet members said Monday the nation should shift its attention from space achievements to pressing domestic problems.

"The American public knows they have a lot of problems right here in River City and they want them solved," said secretary of health, education and welfare Robert Finch.

"NASA," said Finch .... "Will have to be held to many more budgetary constraints than they were in the past."

Finch and George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, sounded similar themes in appearances at the western governors' conference, which opened here Monday.

Romney contrasted the country's expenditures on space with a growing need for funds for public housing.

The nation, he said, in 10 years will need 26,000,000 new homes to replace deteriorating housing.

The Reason Why

I've had quite a few letters coming in this summer asking for a few pointers on the care of gladiolus through the midsummer season. I could, of course, lay down specific instructions saying "do this" and "do that," but it seems to me that gardening is a lot more satisfying and much more fun if you understand WHY you do this or that.

To understand the needs of the gladiolus, it is well to keep in mind the rather unusual root formation of this plant, for this has a decided bearing on the treatment it should have.

At planting time, if you have ever taken a good look at the base of a gladiolus bulb, you will see a lot of little pustules or swellings around the outer edge of the root scar. These are the embryo roots, and very soon after the bulb is planted, these roots push out into the surrounding soil.

* * *

Actually, the function of these first roots is more of anchorage than of providing food for the top growth, for the plant lives principally through this stage on the nutrients stored in the bulb, just as in the case of the potato and the dahlia.

In the summer, along about the time when you can feel the flower spike beginning to form within the sheath of leaves, a new and quite different root system develops. This time the roots don't come from the bottom of the bulb you planted, but from its top, just where the top growth emerges.

While the first roots were hair-like and fibrous, these new roots are thick and fleshy. They grow at a very rapid rate and are hungry feeders, foraging over quite a wide area for food and plunging deeply for moisture.

* * *

This second set of roots, forming ABOVE the original bulb, performs several different functions. First, they must take over the job of feeding the plant, for the nutrients stored in the original bulb are now exhausted. The second function is to provide additional anchorage at a time when it is very badly needed.

Top growth is tall now, and with the flower spike developing, soon it will be topheavy and in danger of blowing over. Nature meets this need with strong additional anchorage roots.

This is why I always urge that manure, compost or fertilizer be mixed very thoroughly and deeply with the soil when the planting site is prepared in the spring. You want to put a lot of good stuff down for your plants, but you want those anchorage roots to spread widely and plunge deeply for their food. If they pause to exploit any lumps of goodness in the soil, the plants won't get the anchorage they need.

By the same token, any water you give your plants should be enough to penetrate deeply to the lower levels. Glads can use a lot of water in their later stages of growth, but you don't want those anchor roots hanging around just under the surface waiting for their daily driblets.

This is why I always grow my glads in shallow trenches—so they can be flooded with the hose. At flowering time, the trench may be filled in to provide additional support to the tall stems.

* * *

The final function of the secondary roots is to form and feed and plump up the new bulb for next year's planting. They work in partnership with the leaves on this job, so it is important, when cutting your flower spikes, to leave as much foliage on the plants as possible. More about this in a later article.

Don't neglect your plants after the flower spikes have been cut, but keep up the feeding and watering until about two weeks before the bulbs are taken up for the winter.

ART BUCHWALD

For All Marskind

As I watched the two American astronauts on television go through their paces on the moon, I couldn't help thinking:

Suppose two Martians named Neil and Buzz made a space trip to this world, and by accident, Landed in a New York City park.

A cop drives up. "Hey, you guys. Get that piece of junk out of here."

"It's not a piece of junk," says Neil. "It's an earth module."

"Yeh, well I don't care what you call it. You're not supposed to put up nutty sculpture in the park."

* * *

"We're only going to be here two hours and 40 minutes," Buzz says. "It's very important that we get earth samples for our scientists to study."

Cop asks suspiciously, "What kind of samples?"

"Earth samples," Neil says. "You see, I take this little scoop with the plastic bag on the end and dig it into the surface like this, and then I put the bag in the pocket of my space suit."

"You're pushing pot!" the cop yells.

"We don't know what pot is," Buzz says. "But we're supposed to pick up rocks and put them in a box."

"And then," the cop says, "after you put the rocks in the box, you're going to take off in that crazy piece of sculpture?"

"Affirmative," says Neil. "But first we have to put the plaque up."

* * *

"What kind of plaque?" the cop asks as he takes out his notebook.

"It's a plaque which says, 'We came in peace for all marskind.'"

"I get it. You're a bunch of anti-Vietnam peaceniks. Where are the rest of the creeps?"

"There's only Mike, and he's flying around 100 miles above us, waiting for us to come back."

The cop looks up. "Mike is flying around 100 miles up there? Oh, yeh. There he is."

"You can't see him," Buzz says. "He's way out in space."

"Well, Mike ain't the only one. Let me ask you a question, and I wish to precede it with a warning that you may have the services of an attorney and that I am apprising you of your constitutional rights. Are you guys on a trip?"

"Of course we are," says Neil. "Why else would we be here?"

"Wait a minute, wait a minute," the cop says. "What kind of flag is that you're sticking up?"

"It's our national flag."

"No flag flies in this park but the American flag. Now you take down that flag this minute or I'll knock those crazy motorcycle helmets off your heads."

* * *

"But we have to put the flag up or our parliament won't give us any future monies for our space proram."

The cop wipes his face with a handkerchief.

"What are you doing with the camera?"

"We have to take pictures of the earth's surface, so we can pinpoint where we've been."

"Of course," the cop says. "There's no sense taking a trip if you can't remember where you've been. Now listen to me, you blankety blanks. Don't either one of you move until I tell you to. Stay right where you are."

"But we have to set up the sun experiments."

The cop gets out his gun. "I said stay where you are." He picks up the microphone in his car.

* * *

"Hello, gimme the chief . . . Hello, chief. This is Pulanski here. What would you say if I told you I've got two hippies dressed in silver motorcycle suits and goggles with packs on their backs, picking up rocks and dirt in the park and sticking them in their pockets? . . . That's what I thought you'd say . . . No, no, everything's fine . . . It's just a quiet Monday morning . . . Yeh. I'll speak to you later."

"All right, you two weirdos," the cop says, "I'm going to drive around the park and then I'm coming back; and if you and that piece of junky sculpture ain't out of the park when I return you'll be picking up the rest of your rock samples in the yard of a jail."

How, What, Which?

People evidently love to take a test, as long as nobody else scores them on it. In response to many requests, here is another word-test, this time involving the distinctions between words that seem similar:

● How does "riddle" differ from a "conundrum"?

● What is the sharp difference between "contrary" and "contradictory" sets of statements?

● Which is legally worse, "assault" or "battery"?

● In the phrase, "fair to middling," which is higher?

● Would you necessarily find "flotsam" in the same place you might find "Jetsam"?

● When a couple is said to be "billing and cooing," what does the "billing" consist of?

● What is the difference between "alternate" and "alternative"?

● If "enormousness" refers to size, what does "enormity" refer to?

● How does "luxurious" differ from "luxuriant"?

● Would you rather work for a man who was "masterful" or "masterly" in his job?

● If something is "definite," is it therefore "definitive"?

● Is the "protagonist" the hero of a story, as opposed to the "antagonist"?

● If something is "possible," is it necessarily "feasible"?

● If all dilemmmas are difficulties, but not all difficulties are dilemmas, what is the real distinction between the two?

● Is to "anticapiate" an event something different from merely "expecting" it to happen?

● What particular kind of response is a "reaction"?

● How does a "mutual enemy" differ from a "common enemy"?

● If an object is "Immovable," what is a person who cannot be removed from an office or position?

● When would a march be "triumphant" and when "triumphal"?

● Would you rather be "deprecated" or "depreciated" by someone?

● Which word embraces more of the future, "fatal" or "fateful"?

● What is the essential difference between a "confederation" and a "federation" in political use?

● What are the distinctions of meaning among "female," "feminine," "womanly," and "womanish"; and, likewise, among "male," "masculine," "manly," and "mannish"?

Remember When...?

Asks HAL BOYLE

The human mind has two escape hatches, daydreams and memories. Through daydreams, it fleets from today into the future; through memories it flies from the ordeal of today to the consolations of yesterday.

Your own gallery of memories is pretty crowded if you can look back and remember when—

* * *

Life was so innocent that if a stranger smiled and spoke to you, you didn't immediately wonder what he was trying to get from you.

It was hard to drive your car 100 miles in any direction from any town on a rainy day without running the risk of sinking up to hubcaps in mud.

Having a backyard vegetable garden wasn't a hobby in a large family—it was a practical necessity.

The only times of the year most people stayed up until midnight was on New Year's Eve and when someone was ill.

Folks grumbled that the high cost of living was getting out of hand when the classiest restaurant in town added a hat check girl to its staff and you had to leave her a 10-cent tip.

* * *

A woman used more yards of cloth to make herself a single dress than she now has in her whole wardrobe.

A doctor didn't necessarily need a good bedside manner when he made a house call, but it was expected that he'd pause long enough for a friendly cup of coffee in the kitchen on the way back out to his waiting horse and buggy.

The chief sources of air pollution were visitors who insisted on lighting up five-cent cigars in the parlor.

A juvenile delinquent was a kid who pulled the pigtails of the girl who sat in the classroom seat in front of him—and caused her to cry.

If you asked a bartender to mix you a vodka Martini, he'd blink and say, "A what?"

To borrow money from a bank you first had to have something worth mortgaging.

Those were the days! Remember?

Rescue for 79 Miners

Poles Cheat Black Death

WARSAW (Reuters) — Seventy-nine miners who cheated death Monday were reunited with their families after a four-day burial in a Polish coal mine.

The trapped men were brought to the surface Sunday after about 4,000 rescue workers battled through mud, water and sand and rocks to end their ordeal.

Hundreds of fellow workers, wives, mothers and children thronged around the pithead, waiting anxiously for news.

TEARS OF JOY

Tears of sorrow turned to tears of joy as the entombed men stumbled into daylight for the first time in almost 100 hours from the Gen. Aleksander Zawadzki mine at Dabrowa Gornicza near Katowice.

Rescuers opened up a narrow bore hole Sunday morning to pass the trapped men their first food, vitamins and medicine since they were engulfed by floods Thursday from a sediment pond on the surface, the Polish news agency said.

IN DELUGE

Thirty-nine other miners caught in the deluge were freed earlier in the rescue operations in which troops took part.

The 70-year-old colliery is one of the largest in the Upper Silesian basin, hearth of the Polish coal-fields.

Only one man was killed in the accident. His body was found Saturday.

THREE MILES

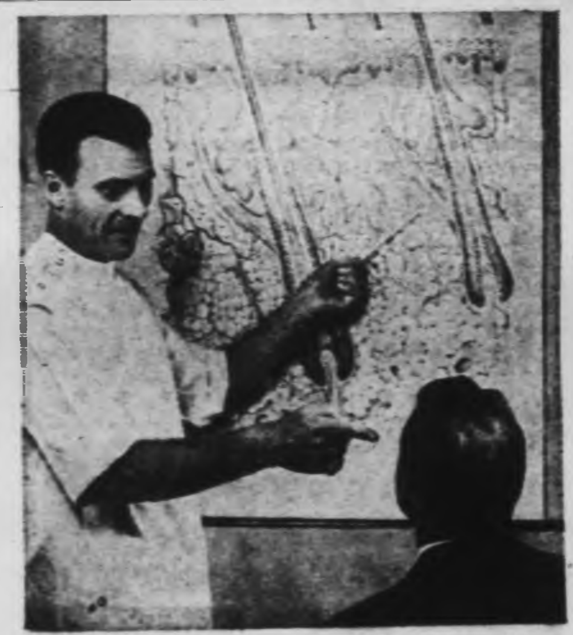
After the rescuers broke through to the trapped men in a gallery about 1,300 feet below the surface, they had to struggle about three miles through mud, coal and stones up a steep passage to the bottom of the escape shaft, only about 500 feet deep.

An official said this was an old shaft which had been closed for reconstruction.

Exceptionally difficult geological conditions slowed the rescue work. A radio commentator described the operation as unparalleled in Polish mining history.

Thief Finds Unusual Loot

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters)—A thief here tried to pilfer a briefcase from a parked car, put his hand inside the case and drew out a five-foot Egyptian cobra. The briefcase belonged to a reptile expert, who was going to use the cobra in a lecture.



"Scalp tension, a sign of the times, is one cause of your hair loss," says trichologist M. D. Harrison to balding man. Harrison directs the famous Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists, whose main office is in Vancouver. They are sending a specialist here to advise men and women how to correct hair troubles by home treatment.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here Wednesday & Thursday

Leonard A. Floyd before and after scalp treatments.

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness — and growing thicker hair — will be demonstrated in Victoria this Wednesday and Thursday, July 30 and 31. This news was released here today by A. B. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In the announcement, Harrison named staff trichologist J. Remy to conduct the Victoria clinic. Remy will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Hotel Century Inn.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no obligation by seeing Mr. Remy," director Harrison said. "Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home Treatment, we will frankly tell you so."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause baldness."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No," said Harrison sincerely. "We cannot help men who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usually, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Don't wait until it's too late!

Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth behind it. Harrison trichologists hold clinics in all major cities across Canada.

"Our biggest problem is not in doing what we claim to do," declared Harrison. But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes difficult. He's usually quite desperate—and baldish by the time he nerves himself to see a Harrison trichologist. He's 'tried everything'. So he starts consoling himself with one of the old superstitions about hair:

That baldness is hereditary: that men naturally lose hair as they get along in years: that nothing can be done to stop hair loss—and a lot of other notions that we know are not true today."

Free Scalp Examination

See Mr. Remy in person. Learn how baldness can be corrected, and new hair grown. The new Harrison method permits you to actually correct your baldness and improve your hair in the privacy of your own home.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk at the Hotel Century Inn, Wednesday or Thursday between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. for Mr. Remy's suite number.

You don't need an appointment. Examinations are given in private.

BC ELECTION 69

Registration Adding 22,000 Names

Last Chance to Sign for Voting

Doors close on voter registration at midnight today with a forecast of approximately 22,000 new voters eligible in the four Greater Victoria ridings for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

The main office at 910 Gordon closes at midnight and the other offices stop registering voters at 9 p.m.

The recent enumeration recorded about 20,000 new voters. Another 2,000 should be added when individuals missed by the enumeration register on their own, area registrar John Smallwood said Monday.

The number of registered voters in the four ridings will be more than 110,000, compared with 92,742 at the 1966 election, he said.

Esquimalt's total will be about 23,500, an increase of approximately 6,000 over the 1966 figure of 17,401 and the highest increase in the area.

Victoria will rise to about 40,000 from 35,598. Saanich and the Islands will have 25,000 eligible, compared with the last count of 20,107. Oak Bay's registered voters will number about 23,500, compared with 19,636 in 1966.

An eligible voter is a Canadian or British Subject, at least 19 years old before Aug. 27, who has lived in Canada for at least the last year and in B.C. for the past six months. The voters' list will include 99 per cent of people entitled to vote.

Victoria riding registration centres are open at

Island Man Missing Wife, Boys Drown

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—The bodies of a Campbell River mother, her son and the son of a neighbor were recovered Monday by RCMP after a boating accident off this Vancouver Island fishing resort.

The search continued for the woman's husband, who was presumed drowned.

Dead are Doreen Jenson, her 10-year-old son Randy and Ronald Brownson, 9. Still missing was F. P. Jenson, 34.

Police said the four left Squirrel Cove, 20 miles east of here, Sunday night for Campbell River and, when they failed to arrive, a search was started Monday morning.

Sentiment Takes Beating

Sentimental favorite Sam Snead, 57, drops putter and leans over in disappointment Monday after missing putt on 17th green during playoff for Canadian open golf title. He and Tommy Aaron, who had never won PGA title, tied Sunday with 275s but Aaron shot two-under-par 70 in playoff and Snead had even par 72. See story, Page 12.

Brothers All Alone

Sommers Walks Out

TRAIL (CP) — Education Minister Donald Brothers was nominated by acclamation in the Rossland-Trail riding Monday night after deposed forest minister Robert Sommers led 50 supporters out of a Social Credit constituency association meeting.

See also Pages 6, 17

"I wanted an honest contest — I didn't get it," said Mr. Sommers, 58, who claimed a ruling by meeting chairman George Driediger left him with no supporters. "If I'd lost this dispute you would not have heard me cry. If I'd won you would not have heard me crow."

Sommers

Brothers

Mr. Sommers, who served almost 2½ years in jail on bribery and conspiracy charges laid while he held the lands and forests portfolio, was not present when nominations opened and Mr. Brothers' name was the only one put forward.

Mr. Sommers said he hasn't decided if he will contest Rossland-Trail as an independent in the Aug. 27 provincial election.

ASSOCIATION CARDS

The dispute involved Sommers supporters who showed up waving $1 constituency association cards they claimed entitled them to vote on the nomination.

Mr. Driediger said the only persons eligible to vote were those possessing $5 membership cards — which apparently most of the Sommers supporters didn't have.

A hot debate ensued. It ended abruptly when a Sommers man suggested to the former cabinet minister that they leave the meeting in protest. Fifty of the 350 persons present followed them out the door.

COST MONEY

"I will not go to the courts," said the former cabinet minister. "I've had a lot of experience in court. They cost an awful lot of money and I haven't got it."

Mr. Brothers, who took over in Rossland-Trail after Mr. Sommers went to jail, did not mention Mr. Sommers' aborted candidacy in his acceptance speech.

However, he said in an interview later he didn't believe Mr. Sommers would run as an independent "and even if he did, he would have a minimal effect."

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Mr. Sommers said he still believes in Social Credit principles "when they are practised," and the Rossland-Trail meeting "in no way reflects on Premier Bennett, because he is a man of integrity."

Earlier in the day, Premier Bennett said in Victoria that Social Credit candidates are selected by "the people in the riding" and the premier doesn't interfere. But he supported Mr. Brothers because he is "a member of the government's inner team."

He said Mr. Sommers had every right to seek the nomination but there was no Rossland-Trail movement to draft him.

'Lustrous Glass' In Moon Dust

● Dust cloud didn't impede touchdown.—Page 10

HOUSTON (AP) — The mysterious black moon dust gathered by the Apollo 11 astronauts contains "wonderfully lustrous" bits of glass that may have rained down on the moon after a meteor impact, a lunar mineralogist reported Monday.

Dr. Cliff Frondell of Harvard University disclosed at a news conference that perhaps one-third or one-fourth of each particle of dust is composed "of minute spheres of glass ranging in size from miscroscopic to a few tenths of a millimetre.

"The color," he said, "ranged from dark brown to yellow to yellow-brown."

"The particles are wonderfully lustrous and reflecting."

Dr. Frondell speculated that the spheres of glass probably resulted from "condensation of a gas or vapor created by the impact of a meteor."

"The gas turned into droplets, condensed and rained down on the lunar surface."

Dr. Frondell also said the dust, which has excited scientists since it arrived at the Manned Spacecraft Centre Lunar Receiving Laboratory Saturday, contained a crystalline compound similar to many rock-forming compounds on earth. He said the dust also was made up of an unnamed opaque material.

Other scientists who have been examining the first box of Apollo 11 rocks in vacuum chambers in the lab, reported some had characteristics of

Peterson Reaction:

No Politics In Crux Case

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Monday denied the claim by lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux that charges brought against him in connection with the Commonwealth affair were politically motivated.

Mr. Crux made the statement during a hearing in Nassau in which Canada is seeking to have him extradited to face trial on a total of 21 theft and fraud charges in B.C. He did not elaborate but said he would argue political motivation later in the hearing.

Mr. Peterson, asked to comment, said: "It's obvious on the face of it that there is no political motivation in this process nor in any other matter involving the administration of justice by me as the chief law enforcement officer for the province.

"Beyond that, I have no comment on a matter before the courts, as the result of many months of investigation. I'm satisfied the court action is in competent hands."

NASSAU (CP) — Magistrate John Baily ruled Monday afternoon that he would hear no witnesses and receive no new exhibits in the extradition hearing of A. G. Duncan Crux of Vancouver.

The magistrate said he would accept submissions and arguments on the five sets of depositions, including some 379 exhibits, forwarded to Nassau from a hearing in Vancouver in June.

NIGHT SESSION

Canada has asked that Crux, former head of the Commonwealth Group of companies, be sent back to British Columbia to face 21 charges of fraud and theft.

The magistrate, who in the absence of any stenographic clerks in Bahamas' courts keeps a running account of the arguments and law citations as the case proceeds, warned that a night session may be needed this week. He has promised to

From UPI, AP

WASHINGTON — A U.S. House armed services subcommittee has unanimously approved a report which puts much of the blame for loss of the spy ship Pueblo not on the crew but on military brass, it was learned Monday.

The special investigating subcommittee reached its verdict after a four-month study of the events before, during and after capture of the U.S. Intelligence ship by North Korean patrol boats and aircraft Jan. 23, 1968.

* * *

Unlike the court of inquiry, the Congressional panel headed by Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) did not take testimony from the crew. Instead, it concentrated on what the military calls the "command and control" aspects of the case.

It zeroed in on the top commanders, such as retired Adm. Ulysses S. Grant Sharp, at the time commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

* * *

According to those who have seen the report, the lawmakers hammered away at what they felt were the poor lines of communication within the military intelligence community and a lack of precautionary steps taken before the lightly armed and unescorted Pueblo sailed on her last mission.

Meanwhile, the defence department announced U.S. spy ships have been ordered to fight back in the future if they are threatened while on electronic intelligence missions. The announcement was made by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Nine Ministers Involved?

Major Cabinet Switch Due

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—As many as seven to nine ministers may be affected in a federal cabinet shuffle predicted for August, and speculation Monday centred on the future of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

It was considered likely Sharp would be shifted to another ministry if he does not leave the government altogether. A possible successor in external affairs is Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

* * *

Such a shift could open up the possibility of a major redistribution of portfolios. Prime Minister Trudeau is said to want to make any changes in time to give shifted ministers a chance to learn their new jobs before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 22.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald is expected to be relieved of his duty as government House leader, especially after the acrimonious windup in the Commons last week, including government imposition of closure to end a rules debate.

The cabinet Monday began an intensive series of meetings designed to reach some major decisions on government policies before present ministers depart for August vacations.

The full cabinet or cabinet committees will be meeting all this week. Some 8 a.m. and evening meetings have been called, fairly rare except during crises.

* * *

Big Early Catch Maintains Lead

COWICHAN BAY — Mrs. Edith Williams of Cowichan station continued to hold top place on the ladder for a second week in the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club derby.

Her catch of a 32.5 pound salmon at the beginning of the contest put her in the lead and no fisherman has topped the catch.

Duncan Attwell of Duncan was awarded $10 for the largest spring salmon of the week.

Fish-off date for the top 50 people on the ladder will be Aug. 24 and the fisherman with the largest salmon during the contest will be awarded the club's silver tray as "Ladder Man 1969".

Regional Services Potentially Wide

DUNCAN — Cowichan Valley Regional Board has a large variety of activities which can be broken down into three categories, says chairman Alex Smith.

The first category, beneficial to all people within the region included hospital services and facilities, he said. Also involved could be library service, recreational programming and regional environment management — which covered planning — and, in some instances, participation in federal-provincial regional programs.

CONTRACT BASIS

In the second classification, which only applied to residents living in a specified area, the regional board may undertake the provision for ambulance service, fire protection, garbage and sewage disposal, water, street lighting, community recreational facilities and programs and community environmental management.

Mr. Smith said: "Lastly, we see the regional board undertaking and providing certain functions for the members on a service or contract basis including issuance and sale of debentures and debt management; engineering and planning servies for member municipalities; provision and maintenance of an equipment pool for data processing, and sub-purchasing, and public works equipment pool."

In the first group, which usually affected the entire region, the board was responsible for financing hospital capital costs which were assumed from the former hospital improvement districts and the municipalities within the region — Duncan, North Cowichan, Lake Cowichan and Ladysmith.

The three hospitals in the region are Cowichan District Hospital, Chemainus General Hospital and Ladysmith General Hospital. They all received the necessary capital funds through the regional board. The hospital tax levy is equal in all parts of the region.

ADDITIONAL EQUIPMENT

Mr. Smith said: "Recently, the regional board approved the provision of funds for additional equipment, including 30 beds in the Cowichan District Hospital for temporary extended care patients. This was due to an emergency situation in connection with the closing of the Mary Moore (Salvation Army) Hospital at Cobble Hill.

"In the meantime, representations are being made to the provincial health minister to get approval for a permanent extended care unit adjacent to the Cowichan District Hospital.

Rezoning Bylaw Dies After Protest

PARKSVILLE — An effort to have a piece of residential property rezoned commercial to permit the establishment of a trailer park failed when aldermen declined to move adoption of the rezoning bylaw proposed.

Dropping of the bylaw came after a large delegation attended a public meeting to review the proposed rezoning. Herbert Welch, chief spokesman for the delegation, presented a petition signed by 60 property owners opposed to the change.

Seeking the change were Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Flynn of 442 Temple Road, who wanted to develop the trailer park on residential property they owned.

Mr. Welch said he and others opposed to the change feared a commercial venture of the type suggested would devalue residential property.

Three readings had been given the bylaw, and it awaited final disposition at the public hearing.

Water Safety Emphasized

GOLD RIVER — Young people in Gold River have been receiving instruction in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

They were given a chance to practise following a film describing water safety and a demonstration of artificial respiration at the town's public safety building recently.

Dave Cornish, public safety officer, said the event formed part of a continuing program of bringing timely material to the public and schools etc.

Recently the B.C. Forest Service provided films and lectures which stressed ways of preventing forest fires.

Mr. Cornish said the water safety films which were shown were from the Red Cross. They had been shown to 130 children who were enrolled in the recreation commission's summer program as well as at the side of the swimming pool at Gold Crest apartments.

Labor Department Report

Douglas Fir Decrease Follows Overcutting

By DIANE JANOWSKI

Future annual cuts of Douglas fir will continue to decrease because of past overcutting, the research branch of the B.C. labor department has predicted.

In its study of the logging labor force in the coastal region, which includes Vancouver Island, the department also said the demand for B.C. lumber would increase by at least 20 per cent by 1975, with the region supplying almost 50 per cent of the total production.

Other predictions:

- Coastal veneer and plywood production will retain its dominance in the province and will continue to expand, but not as quickly as in the Interior.
- Pulp production on the Coast will decline from its present figure of 85 per cent of the provincial total to 65 per cent, as total production increases by 90 per cent.
- The region's total annual harvest must increase by 22 per cent in the next six years, but the size of the woods labor force is expected to remain the same as present.
- A large number of the present woods labor force will probably not need specific job training to remain in the industry during the next 10 years.

Referring to the declining size of the Douglas fir cut, the report said: "The species composition of annual cuts has not been in accordance with the species composition of the forest inventory.

HEAVILY CUT

"Douglas fir, the species upon which the industry has relied for its development, has been heavily cut. Results of this are revealed in the declining proportion that this species represents in annual cuts."

The species, which represents only 12.48 per cent of the region's total available sound wood when rough utilization is employed, and 9.61 per cent at close utilization, now makes up 21.53 per cent of the total annual cut. It was 42.70 per cent of the total in 1950.

"Future annual cuts are likely to contain lower amounts of this high-value species," predicted the report.

LOG SIZE

It said larger cuts of balsam, hemlock and spruce might cause difficulties for the industry.

"When the decrease in average log size is taken into consideration, these factors may present problems to some logging operations in adjusting to the changing nature of the forest resources."

Productivity is expected to increase about 10 cubic feet per worker per hour to 44 by 1975, so the size of the labor force will remain approximately the same. It would have to increase if the productivity did not rise as expected, said the report.

Occupational trends indicate that the greatest changes will occur in the production group of workers.

"The precentage that this category represents is expected to further decline as the trend toward fewer workers in the woods continues," said the report. "More specifically, alterations will occur in the subdivisions of this group: falling and bucking, yarding, skidding, loading, hauling, unloading and booming."

LOG DUMPS

Factors contributing to the group's declining numbers are lessening the need for direct supervision in the woods, greater use of grapple yarding and tractor skidding, implementation of grapples and power tongs in place of hand set tongs, consolidation of log dumps, widespread use of the dozer boat, reduction in the number and size of camps and a trend toward more and heavier equipment for road building and maintenance.

Technical occupations and those concerned with equipment maintenance and servicing had been increasing and would probably continue, it was stated.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

The report noted that much training was still of the "on the job" variety, but industry was showing more support for vocational training in the courses specifically oriented toward the logging industry.

It would probably not be necessary, however, for much of the present woods force to undertake specific job training in the next 10 years to remain in the industry, because of the time lag in introducing new equipment, it said.

Buttle Lake Claim

Methods 'Outdated' In Mine Dumping

BUTTLE LAKE — Mine tailings are being deposited in Myra Creek leading to Buttle Lake and at the foot of Myra Falls, Strathcona Lodge operator Jim Boulding charged Monday.

He blamed "outdated methods" of disposing of tailings by Western Mines for the deposits and said the provincial government had been "remiss" in allowing the mine operation to use the methods.

Mr. Boulding said a settling pond used by the mine for tailings was "the kind of thing for 1809, not 1969 when man can walk on the moon."

DEAD FISH REPORT

Mr. Boulding said the pond leaked periodically, and even when it didn't, the water coming from it, into Myra Creek after settling still contained contaminates which would eventually be harmful to the lake.

He said he did some skindiving at the foot of Myra Falls Sunday, trying to check on reports from a lodge guest that five dead fish had been sighted.

"I didn't find the fish," he said, "but the bottom was just covered with tailing deposits."

'FALSE REPORTS'

Meanwhile, a federal fisheries biologist who visited Buttle Lake said Friday reports that tailings from a broken Western Mines pipeline were leaking into the lake were false.

Charles Lyons went to the lake to investigate the report made by Mr. Boulding.

Mr. Boulding said he was not surprised at the biologist's findings. "He came up a week after I reported the discoloration," he said. If there had been a leaking pipe, it would have been fixed by the time he got there."

New Role Ahead For Tahsis

TAHSIS—J. V. Christensen, Tahsis Co. president, Sunday announced plans to develop the community into a self-governing municipality.

Mr. Christensen said Tahsis had grown up and was going to take its place amongst the villages and municipalities of the province where it belongs.

He said that Tahsis Co. — which provides most of the jobs in this community of 1,300—would try to make the transition from company town to municipality as smooth as possible.

Mr. Christensen told a meeting of 300 people that Tahsis would not be an instant town like Gold River. He said the development plan includes apartments and townhouses, additional recreational facilities, new sewage and water facilities, road access and an airport.

To End 'Sterile Co-Existence'

Councils Form Study Group

DUNCAN — Duncan and North Cowichan councils agreed at a joint meeting Monday night to form a four-man committee which will draw up terms of reference for all aspects of joint service.

This decision ends, as North Cowichan Ald. Denni Hogan put it, "A sterile, static and non-cooperative" co-existence of the two councils.

North Cowichan Ald. Tom Burge urged both councils not to give just LIP service, but "be very honest about it."

The committee will consist of two alderme from each council who will submit proposals to the respective councils, which in turn will make a decision on a joint service study by professionals.

Hogan

Some of the recommendations by experts could include alteration of boundaries or even amalgamation, a large scale water supply system and various other items.

North Cowichan Ald. John Cannon remarked, "We shall have changes on both sides."

Once more, Ald. Cannon suggested the Chemainus River as a possible source for a large scale water supply, but Mayor Jim Quaife suggested the matter should be handled by the regional board.

Ald. Cannon said "we should turn our eyes to something like a Central Vancouver Island water board. The Chemainus River has been kicked around for a number of years."

MEMBERSHIP LIMITED

In reply to a suggestion by North Cowichan Mayor Donald Morton that individuals outside both councils might serve on the committee, Duncan Ald. Dick Benzie said it would be better to limit membership to council members in the initial stages.

In the recreational field both councils agreed in principle to the building of a swimming pool as phase one of a recreation centre.

The respective recreation commissions will be asked to submit preliminary plans to their councils. Earlier, both recreation commission agreed on the swimming pool and the holding of a money bylaw this September was hinted at that time. Tentative cost of the pool is about $400,000. Ald. Cannon suggested a very careful study of the financial aspect.

'Responsibility Abdicated'

Ottawa Declines Share In Bridging Road 'Gap'

The federal government has turned down a B.C. request to share in the cost of building the proposed highway link from Kelsey Bay to Beaver Cove on northern Vancouver Island, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell disclosed Monday.

Mr. Campbell, who is seeking re-election in Comox riding, which includes the north Island, attacked Ottawa for abdicating its responsibility and called for the immediate resignation of federal Public Works Minister Arthur Laing.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's fortunate for the people on the north end of Vancouver Island that this international highway—because that is what is—will be brought up to Trans-Canada Highway standards in spite of the fact that federal help will not be forthcoming," the minister said.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE

Mr. Campbell said the federal action was "another example of the federal government not taking a careful look at presentations made in good faith by the government of this province."

He said Trans-Canada Highway designations had been granted by Ottawa to other stretches of highway in eastern Canada where the geography and road status were similar to that of the north Island highway.

"In his letter, Mr. Laing said simply that Ottawa cannot agree to the requested designation because the Trans-Canada Highway agreement expires in 1970. That really should read, the federal government will not agree to designate this stretch of highway."

NO POLICY

Mr. Campbell added: "This is a complete abdication of responsibility on the part of the federal government, and it means that after 1970, Canada has no national highway policy. Of course, all that is left basically of that policy now is really a cleanup job.

"Therefore, as far as I'm concerned, Mr. Laing, as the minister responsible, should resign immediately."

Premier Bennett announced in Nanaimo earlier this summer that construction on the 39-mile link between the existing terminus at Kelsey Bay and the beginning of public highway at Beaver Cove would begin next year—with or without federal assistance.

Mr. Campbell said again Monday that the provincial government would keep this promise and start the job early next year.

The present Trans-Canada Highway route, on which Ottawa pays 50 per cent of approved costs, runs south from Nanaimo to Victoria.

Coroner Orders Inquest

Duncan coroner Thomas Lines has ordered an inquest into the death of Damas Frederick La Fleur, 26, of Chemainus, killed Sunday when his car left the old Chemainus highway north of Chemainus, struck a telephone pole and tumbled down a 75-foot embankment.

Police said Mr. La Fleur, a logger, was the only occupant of the car. They said they were notified of the accident by a passing motorist.

A woman who died Saturday when the car in which she was riding left the highway about 16 miles north of Nanaimo and sheared off a power pole has been identified by police as Verna Catherine Hughes, 48, of 2070 Cook, Comox.

'FAIRLY GOOD'

A man in the car who was injured has been identified as Raymond Austin Miller, Qualicum, about 60. He is reported in fairly good condition in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital.

Near Regina Sunday night, a 16-year-old Courtenay girl died from injuries.

Police said Janice Lynn Davis was apparently sleeping along the Trans-Canada highway when a semi-trailer truck hit a suitcase, striking her on the head.

The truck did not stop, and police said the driver may not be aware of the mishap.

The girl and her brother, Steve Gary Davis, were hitchhiking to Ontario, police said. He was not injured.

Liberals Nominate Candidates For Comox, Alberni

Liberal candidates were nominated for the Alberni and Comox ridings Monday evening.

In Campbell River, Mrs. Henrietta (Cookie) Chown of Courtenay was nominated for the Comox riding.

She beat James Standeven of Campbell River.

Mrs. Chown, who is in her 30s, is married with four children. She is senior high school teacher. Her husband Bob is also a high school teacher.

Mrs. Chown has been a Liberal party worker for some time and in last year's federal election helped to campaign for Richard Durante.

She was proposed by Don Elmore of Campbell River and seconded by Mrs. Robert McPhee of Courtenay. Mr. Standeven was proposed by John Brett and seconded by Richard Thomas, both of Campbell Rivwr.

About 60 people attended the nomination meeting, held at Discovery Inn.

Incumbent member is Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

In Port Alberni, Liberal candidate is Eugene Romaniuk, 25, founding president of the Alberni Young Liberal Association, and a cost accountant with the Somass division of MacMillan Bloedel in Port Alberni.

Mr. Romaniuk won over Mrs. Marion Robinson, a school teacher. He was born in Victoria, but has lived most of his life in Port Alberni.

The NDP has nominated John Squire. Sitting member for the riding is Dr. Howard McDiarmid of the Social Credit party, who has not yet been nominated.

New Tests Blame Smoking for Diseases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Public Health Service said Monday new evidence has been uncovered linking cigarette smoking to heart attacks, cancer of the throat, emphysema, non-cancerous mouth disorders and pregnancy troubles.

* * *

Releasing the third report in a series the service is required by law to submit to Congress each year, Welfare Secretary Robert Finch commended the American tobacco industry for volunteering last week to end all broadcast advertising by next year.

"The department has long felt, and I personally have shared the opinion, that television and radio advertising of cigarettes has a special impact upon young people," Finch said in a letter accompanying the report to Congress.

"Cigarette smoking continues to be confirmed as a serious health hazard to the people of this country, one which is the cause of much unnecessary disease and death."

* * *

Besides citing new links with disease the report summarized previous findings that linked cigarette smoking to a wide range of maladies including numerous forms of cancer and coronary and cardio-vascular troubles and said "no substantial negative evidence has appeared which refutes these judgments."

* * *

The report is a summary of more than 600 seperate studies by physicians and scientists all over the world.

As in previous reports, cigarettes got most of the blame with cigars and pipes generally being absolved.

Two exceptions, however, involve throat cancer and a non-cancerous ulcerated condition of the mouth called stomatitis nicotina which was noted in some pipe smokers.

The report cited one study that found 93 of 94 cigar and pipe smokers had unusual changes in the cells of the larynx although cancer actually had developed in only four.

* * *

The same study found similar changes in all smokers studied who consumed a pack of 20 cigarettes a day.

In a chapter on respiratory disease, the report said new evidence indicates "cigarette smoking is the most important agent in the development of pulmonary emphysema in man."

* * *

Emphysema occurs when the lungs lose their elasticity, making it difficult to exhale. The disease attacks middle-aged and elderly people and frequently is fatal. It can be arrested in its early stages but not cured.

The report cited a study which found early-warning signs of possible emphysema present in 97 of 100 cigarette-smoking men and in six of 10 ex-smokers.

In the chapter on heart disease, the report said studies during the last year confirmed "the judgment that cigarette smoking is a significant risk factor that contributes to the development of coronary heart disease, apparently by promoting myocardial infarct and cardiac arrhythmias."

* * *

Miocardial infarct involves irreversible damage to muscle and tissue of the heart. Cardiac arrhythmias are eruptions in the heart beats that can be fatal.

New studies suggest also that cigarette smoking is associated with a significant increase in hardening of the artery walls and in deposits of fatty material that eventually can close an artery, the report said.

* * *

On the subject of pregnancy, the report said new evidence has been uncovered indicating that smoking during pregnancy is associated with low birthweights in infants.

"It appears that maternal smoking during pregnancy may be associated with increase incidence of spontaneous abortion, stillbirth and neo-natal death," the report added.

Housewife Tells Journey Story:

I Talked, I Screamed

California housewife Sharon Adams, 39, Friday completed the longest solo voyage ever attempted by a woman and became the first woman to sail alone across the Pacific. She did it in her 31-foot ketch Sea Sharp II and here tells the story.

By SHARON SITES ADAMS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—I talked, I talked to the boat. To the gooney birds. To the moon and all the time to my tape recorder—it became my best friend. I said hello to a lovely star every night. I screamed. But I didn't have hallucinations.

On my first solo trip—to Hawaii, four years ago—I came pretty close. That boat had such a smal cabin and I didn't have any books or tape recorder or sewing—anything to occupy my mind.

* * *

So this trip was a great deal different—twice as long but not half as hard mentally. And Sea SharpII is a travelling small apartment with all the comforts.

And I'd had an appendectomy last Feb. 10, at my doctor's suggestion, so I wouldn't worry about appendicits. A great deal of thought and preparation from a great many people go into a thing like this.

* * *

How does it feel with only thousands of miles of ocean around you? The visibilty on a clear day is maybe p5 miles and on a foggy day just to the bow of the boat. Your world is still only what you can see.

You just set a new life for yourself andy ou change your life very quickly. You are divorced from life as you know it on land and you have to set up your new life out there.

You can't let loneliness get hold and defeat you.

* * *

This is a mental thing, something that you have to be, well, stubborn enoughthat you overcome it.

I went through seven gales and was becalmed twice—for seven days and three days. Being becalmed is almost as bad as having too much wind.

* * *

Then I had one period of 13 days of solid rain and fog. Every time yougo outside you get more moisture in the boat. I had a great deal of trouble with condensation and mildew and mould.

The one thing I kept thinking about was a cheese sandwich. When my husband's boat came alongside Tuesday off the California coast they made me a cheese sandwiche with lettuce and mayonnaise and passed it over to me.

* * *

I haven't weighted myself yet, but I think I'm about 106 or 108 poinds, instead of my normal 115. It was very hard to get started eating and set up this new life.

I was seasick just one day, right at the beginning. It's just amat ter of getting your seale gs. I think a lot of it is fear.

* * *

The most frightening moment was the gwe of June 7. I took a knockdown in that—the boat lay over on its side, but came back up by herself. IDdida great deal of praying out there.

Deep depression for no reason will flash over you at times, even when things are going great. You just take hold and try to change what you're doing and thining.

* * *

My 39th birthday was May 29. I made a chocolate cake and had three candles on it. My husband had sent me three little giftwrapped packagesan d told me to open them whenever I nneded to. So Iopened the first one on my birthday—it was a ring. Psycholigically, wondering what's there is more fun than knowing.

* * *

I had a tank of 40 gallons of water and had water left in it when I ARRIVED HERE. Besides that, I had 15 gallons in plastic jugs in the bilge. I tried to ration myself to two quarts of water a day.

I read books anc worked crossword puzzles. It sort of ran in cycles. I just did what I felt like doing.

People ask whay my motifvation was in doing this, what I expect to get out of it. I think I've already got it. I've proved that I could do it and I'm a very proud woman.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Heinesen of 328 Beckley celebrated their 50th wedding anniversay Saturday night with family and friends.

The couple came to Canada from the Faeroe Islands in 1927. They farmed in Saskatchewan and fished in Nova Scotia before coming to Victoria in 1950. Mr. Heinesen had his own trawler and fished off the coast until last year, when he retired at 72.

* * *

The couple has five daughters — Mrs. Betty Martin of Stockton, Calif., Mrs. Patsy Grant of Vancouver, Mrs. Val Lubin of Victoria, Mrs. Annie Mason of Victoria and Mrs. Alice Marlkinger of Nanaimo—and 14 grandchildren. A niece, Herdis Isfelt of the Faeroe Islands, also attended the anniversary celebration.

ERMA BOMBECK Takes Comfort

Parents Hold Ace in the Hole

If your kids are spelling out words in front of you now, the chances are they have been exposed to a sex education course.

There's been a lot of static about it. Parents complain their children regard them as celibates. When one mother clumsily tried to show her son the lingerie section of a mail-order catalogue (it worked with the first five) he offered to tutor her.

The big controversy is not only who should teach it, but how much and at what age. One mother wrote me that her five-year-old was asked in kindergarten class to explain pregnancy. He said, "It's like having your fanny on backwards."

* * *

The teacher wrote home and said, "Your son is immature in his knowledge of sex education." The mother wrote back, "If you can't be immature at five years old, when can you be immature?"

My observation of the whole mess is that home-taught sex education was probably the last frontier of the teaching parent. Month by month, year by year I have watched the system absorb what little skills I had to impress my children. Somehow the world slowed down and someone shoved me off.

I can't teach them math anymore. I count on my fingers and I giggle at exponents.

I don't know anything about English. I move my lips when I read and I comprehend only words and not ideas. I talk back to the language records and accuse them of dirty talk.

I can't find St. Christopher in the religion books or Lativa on any of the maps. I don't know the component parts of liquid rocket fuel and all the poetry I know rhymes at the end of the second and fourth lines.

* * *

This hurts. But in my heart I kept knowing, "I've still got those lousy birds and bees stories that will hold 'em spellbound wondering what I'm talking about. After all, human bodies are like Volkswagen bodies. They don't change from year to year."

Maybe they don't, but kids do. Or maybe we were kidding ourselves with the health books and the Disney movies. To be honest with you, I find it a relief. It doesn't bug me that a skilled teacher will put labels on things and supply the terminology.

It doesn't upset me that the real sex education will undoubtedly still come from whispers and giggles and confidences shared by a best friend or a schoolmate big for his or her age.

* * *

Parents hold the ace in the hole. They always have. The home will always bear the burden and responsibility for morality and set the example of sex. The home determines whether sex is a dirty joke; a smutty movie or an act of love and respect.

Termite Treat

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Naturalist Adrian Bosher says termites are "extremely nutritious." Personally, said Bosher, who eats them regularly, "I like them roasted in butter or raw."

Mayor Easy On Students

PENTICTON (CP) — Mayor Doug Stuart says the city will not press charges against young people involved in acts of vandalism during graduation week. The mayor said he would like to see the students make restitution for the "Grad 69" signs painted on public buildings, which cost the city $800 to repair.

Orange Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than $5,000 has been given to charities by the Ladies Orange Benevolent Association, it was reported here at the 47th annual meeting of the organization.

When Skin Sags on Face and Neck

Even skin that sags and is no longer smooth, could be made firm and much younger looking. That "older look" usually appears first around the throat, but is comparatively easy to treat by very simple means that require no skill at all.

Get 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength from your drug or dept. store and apply it gently to your throat and face each night before retiring. After just a few days, you will notice your skin becoming firmer again and smoother. That is because the 2nd Debut has revitalized your skin with a new supply of water from the surface clear into the inner skin.

BEACHCOMBER AT HEART?
You could spend a lifetime dreaming of finding such a unique jewel of a Gulf Island. Warm swimming or bask in the sun and picnic from a white shell beach. Reminiscent of a tropic isle — stroll barefoot along almost a mile of pebble beaches and fascinating sand stone formations and pools. Knarled by the sea over the ages and covered with the winter harvest of logs. Beachcomb your own lumber and intriguing driftwood pieces shaped by nature's winter gales.

The low bank above the beach is unique in the Gulf Islands together with the lush growth of fern, Oregon grape, alder, arbutus and more stately Douglas fir and hemlock. Bountiful harvest of oysters, clams and excellent fishing and crabbing in nearby waters.

The 2-bedroom home has full plumbing and electricity by power plant — living room with stone fireplace and superb seaviews.

Other outbuildings for equipment and additional guest space. Price [illegible]. Call R. Fraser Horne, F.R.I., R.I. (B.C.), [illegible]. Fraser Horne Seafront Realtor, Penthouse offices, Executive House, 777 Douglas.

Tisdalle Crushes Lum Challenge

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

John Tisdalle, Social Credit MLA for Saanich since 1953, defeated Saanich Alderman Edward Lum Saturday night to win the party nomination in the Saanich and The Islands provincial riding for the Aug. 27 election.

The vote count was kept secret, but Mr. Tisdalle was announced the winner after the first ballot by the 52 Socreds meeting in Mount View High School. (Other election stories, Page 16.)

Mr. Lum, 40, charged in his nomination speech that the Social Credit government has "lost sight of" municipal problems and the problems of property taxation.

He also called for a "change to younger man with ideas" in the Saanich and The Islands Social Credit association. Mr. Tisdalle is 51.

Following the vote, Mr. Tisdalle delivered a blistering attack on the "spectre of socialism" and accused the New Democratic Party of "attacking people, not policies."

He asked help from his supporters in "spiking the sour jackdaw fuzzy-tail rumors that you get — the mangy fuzzy tales you hear everywhere."

SCREAM HEARD

The announcement of Mr. Tisdalle's victory brought loud cheers from the audience and a high-pitched scream from one woman. Loser Mr. Lum immediately moved that the vote be made unanimous.

"The NDP has no cause," Mr. Tisdalle said. "They attack the people, not the causes. All they know about is attacking people."

He said Premier Bennett was right to "set the die" for an election confrontation between free enterprise and state socialism.

'MARXIST TRACKS'

Mr. Tisdalle said NDP leader Tom Berger was "attempting to cover his Marxist tracks and somehow escalate himself out of socialism."

"There is no such thing in government as free-enterprise socialism . . . it's like atheist-Christians," said Mr. Tisdalle.

Among some 100 people who attended the nomination meeting in Mount View high school's auditorium were Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford and Mines Minister Frank Richter.

FRIENDLY PRAISE

When asked to address the meeting during the counting of votes, Mr. Shelford declined, suggesting the minister should not talk until after the balloting. Both men gave friendly congratulations to Mr. Tisdalle after the meeting.

Mr. Tisdalle said in his speech before the vote he makes "no apologies for offering myself" for the nomination, and said he had support from people "knowing my weaknesses and strengths not only in the house (Legislature) but out of the house."

Mr. Tisdalle was nominated by Sanich Socred president Peter Grootendorst.

Rock Concert Cut Off

Victoria Alderman Cecil Parrott axed a teen rock concert in mid-decibel Friday night, and Saturday the generation gap yawned wide.

As about 3,500 young people listened to The Collectors in Royal Athletic Park at 11:27 p.m., Ald. Parrott ordered light and power turned off on grounds that the concert had run overtime.

★ ★ ★

Ald. Parrott showed up during the concert after complaints by neighbors that the noise was too noisy.

The Collectors, sometimes described as Canada's number one rock group, ran beyond the 11:15 p.m. deadline with what was announced as their last number.

★ ★ ★

Concert promoter Paul Watson, 23, a political science student at the University of Victoria, voiced disappointment at Ald. Parrott's action.

"Well," he said, "I guess older people don't like this kind of thing.

"But I think it's a pity that all year round we cater to the old people of Victoria, and then when something comes along that appeals to a few thousand youngsters, the old people get all stirred up and complain about it."

★ ★ ★

Band manager Keith Lawrence was less diplomatic.

"Who does he think he is?" Mr. Lawrence said. "He's completely out of touch.

"Why, this band is actually famous. We were chosen, from groups all across Canada, to write and play the music for Canada's theme pavilion at the Osaka World's Fair next year.

"We've played in New York, Los Angeles, Washington, Chicago, Detroit, Boston. We've played before 25,000 people at a time, and this is the first time anything like this has happened to us."

Mr. Lawrence said he and his brother Claire had grown up in Victoria, and Claire had studied music at the University of British Columbia.

★ ★ ★

"You know what the music critic of the Los Angeles Times said of us? I'll tell you.

He said: "Canada has exported many talented people including Leonard Cohen, Joni Mitchell, and groups like Guess Who. And The Collectors, are by far the most talented of them all."

Mr. Lawrence brooded for a moment, and then he said:

"Well, it's too bad there are still these bush-league people around. But I don't think Ald. Parrott really represents Victoria.

★ ★ ★

"After all, he was outnumbered last night by about 3,500 to one—and we'll be around longer than he will."

However, Ald. Parrott had the last word. Interviewed after closing down the concert, Ald. Parrott said such a concert would not happen again.

"This is the end," said Ald. Parrott. "Never again will we allow outdoor rock concerts in Victoria. Never!"

Victoria City Float Winner in Seattle

A float entered by the city of Victoria took the prize for the best out-of-state entry at the 20th annual Seafair parade in Seattle Saturday.

The entry, featuring a fairy coach drawn by butterflies, was designed by Ray Garside.

Does Anyone in Victoria Know Verna Gallant?

Does anyone know Verna Gallant?

The Salvation Army is trying to locate acquaintances of a young woman who gave that name after collapsing in partial amnesia at the Victoria bus depot last week.

A Salvation Army spokesman said Saturday Miss Gallant recalls coming to Victoria from Nova Scotia with a friend named Maureen Palmer of Hamilton, Ont. Miss Gallant believes Miss Palmer has relatives in Victoria.

Anyone knowing either woman is asked to contact the Salvation Army at 384-9518.

$1 Given In Claim

Fisher, a Port Alberni welder, Monday was awarded $1 in damages following his B.C. Supreme Court battle with Local 592 of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' Union.

Mr. Fisher claimed breech of duty allegedly failing to fight for him after he was dismissed from his job by Alberni Pulp and Paper Ltd.

Mr. Justice J. A. MacDonald said the union in effect "pleaded him guilty" without Mr. Fisher's consent, then directed argument to the question of penalty.

Regardless of the representations the union might have made in the grievance sessions, Mr. Fisher would not have been re-instated, Mr. Justice MacDonald said.

BC ELECTION 69

Registration Adding 22,000 Names

Last Chance to Sign for Voting

Doors close on voter registration at midnight today with a forecast of approximately 22,000 new voters eligible in the four Greater Victoria ridings for the Aug. 27 provincial election.

The main office at 910 Gordon closes at midnight and the other offices stop registering voters at 9 p.m.

The recent enumeration recorded about 20,000 new voters. Another 2,000 should be added when individuals missed by the enumeration register on their own, area registrar John Smallwood said Monday.

The number of registered voters in the four ridings will be more than 110,000, compared with 92,742 at the 1966 election, he said.

Esquimalt's total will be about 23,500, an increase of approximately 6,000 over the 1966 figure of 17,401 and the highest increase in the area.

Victoria will rise to about 40,000 from 35,598. Saanich and The Islands will have 25,000 eligible, compared with the last count of 20,107. Oak Bay's registered voters will number about 23,500, compared with 19,636 in 1966.

An eligible voter is a Canadian or British Subject, at least 19 years old before Aug. 27, who has lived in Canada for at least the last year and in B.C. for the past six months. The voters' list will include 99 per cent of people entitled to vote.

Victoria riding registration centres are open at

Island Man Missing Wife, Boys Drown

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—The bodies of a Campbell River mother, her son and the son of a neighbor were recovered Monday by RCMP after a boating accident off this Vancouver Island fishing resort.

The search continued for the woman's husband, who was presumed drowned.

Dead are Doreen Jenson, her 10-year-old son Randy and Ronald Brownson, 9. Still missing was F. P. Jenson, 34.

Police said the four left Squirrel Cove, 20 miles east of here, Sunday night for Campbell River and, when they failed to arrive, a search was started Monday morning.

Peterson Reaction:

No Politics In Crux Case

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Monday denied the claim by lawyer-financier A. G. Duncan Crux that charges brought against him in connection with the Commonwealth affair were politically motivated.

Mr. Crux made the statement during a hearing in Nassau in which Canada is seeking to have him extradited to face trial on a total of 21 theft and fraud charges in B.C. He did not elaborate but said he would argue political motivation in the hearing.

Mr. Peterson, asked to comment, said: "It's obvious on the face of it that there is no political motivation in this process nor in any other matter involving the administration of justice by me as the chief law enforcement officer for the province.

"Beyond that, I have no comment on a matter before the courts, as the result of many months of investigation. I'm satisfied the court action is in competent hands."

NASSAU (CP) — Magistrate John Baily ruled Monday afternoon that he would hear no witnesses and receive no new exhibits in the extradition hearing of A. G. Duncan Crux of Vancouver.

The magistrate said he would accept submissions and arguments on the five sets of depositions, including some 379 exhibits, forwarded to Nassau from a hearing in Vancouver in June.

NIGHT SESSION

Canada has asked that Crux, former head of the Commonwealth Group of companies, be sent back to British Columbia to face 21 charges of fraud and theft.

The magistrate, who in the absence of any stenographic clerks in Bahamas' courts keeps a running account of the arguments and law citations as the case proceeds, warned that a night session may be needed this week. He has promised to

MIDLAND, Ont. (CP) — It took a Campbell to sort out the mess when Campbell met Campbell Monday.

A car driven by Richard H. Campbell, 18, collided with one driven by William H. Campbell, 62, and Constable William H. Campbell investigated the accident. None of them was related.

William Campbell's car had $400 damage and Richard's was a total wreck but no one was hurt.

Sentiment Takes Beating

Sentimental favorite Sam Snead, 57, drops putter and leans over in disappointment Monday after missing putt on 17th green during playoff for Canadian open golf title. He and Tommy Aaron, who had never won PGA title, tied Sunday with 275s but Aaron shot two-under-par 70 in playoff and Snead had even par 72. See story, Page 12.

U.S. Subcommittee

Congress Hits at Brass In Pueblo Case Probe

From UPI, AP

WASHINGTON — A U.S. House armed services subcommittee has unanimously approved a report which puts much of the blame for loss of the spy ship Pueblo not on the crew but on military brass, it was learned Monday.

The special investigating subcommittee reached its verdict after a four-month study of the events before, during and after capture of the U.S. intelligence ship by North Korean patrol boats and aircraft Jan. 23, 1968.

* * *

Unlike the court of inquiry, the Congressional panel headed by Rep. Otis Pike (D-N.Y.) did not take testimony from the crew. Instead, it concentrated on what the military calls the "command and control" aspects of the case.

It zeroed in on the top commanders, such as retired Adm. Ulysses S. Grant Sharp, at the time commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, and Gen. Earle Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

* * *

According to those who have seen the report, the lawmakers hammered away at what they felt were the poor lines of communication within the military intelligence community and a lack of precautionary steps taken before the lightly armed and unescorted Pueblo sailed on her last mission.

Meanwhile, the defence department announced U.S. spy ships have been ordered to fight back in the future if they are threatened while on electronic intelligence missions. The announcement was made by Defence Secretary Melvin Laird.

Brothers All Alone

SOMMERS WALKS OUT

TRAIL (CP) — Education Minister Donald Brothers was nominated by acclamation in the Rossland-Trail riding Monday night after deposed forest minister Robert Sommers led 50 supporters out of a Social Credit constituency association meeting.

"I wanted an honest contest — I didn't get it," said Mr. Sommers, 58, who claimed a ruling by meeting chairman George Driediger left him with no supporters. "If I'd lost this dispute you would not have heard me cry. If I'd won you would not have heard me crow."

See also Pages 6, 17, 27

Sommers

Brothers

Mr. Sommers, who served almost 2½ years in jail on bribery and conspiracy charges laid while he held the lands and forests portfolio, was not present when nominations opened and Mr. Brothers' name was the only one put forward.

Mr. Sommers said he hasn't decided if he will contest Rossland-Trail as an independent in the Aug. 27 provincial election.

ASSOCIATION CARDS

The dispute involved Sommers supporters who showed up waving $1 constituency association cards they claimed entitled them to vote on the nomination.

Mr. Driediger said the only persons eligible to vote were those possessing $5 membership cards — which apparently most of the Sommers supporters didn't have.

A hot debate ensued. It ended abruptly when a Sommers man suggested to the former cabinet minister that they leave the meeting in protest. Fifty of the 350 persons present followed them out the door.

COST MONEY

"I will not go to the courts," said the former cabinet minister. "I've had a lot of experience in court. They cost an awful lot of money and I haven't got it."

Mr. Brothers, who took over in Rossland-Trail after Mr. Sommers went to jail, did not mention Mr. Sommers' aborted candidacy in his acceptance speech.

However, he said in an interview later he didn't believe Mr. Sommers would run as an independent "and even if he did, he would have a minimal effect."

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Mr. Sommers said he still believes in Social Credit principles "when they are practised," and the Rossland-Trail meeting "in no way reflects on Premier Bennett, because he is a man of integrity."

Earlier in the day, Premier Bennett said in Victoria that Social Credit candidates are selected by "the people in the riding" and the premier doesn't interfere. But he supported Mr. Brothers because he is "a member of the government's inner team."

He said Mr. Sommers had every right to seek the nomination but there was no Rossland-Trail movement to draft him.

'Lustrous Glass' In Moon Dust

● Dust cloud didn't impede touchdown.—Page 10

HOUSTON (AP) — The mysterious black moon dust gathered by the Apollo 11 astronauts contains "wonderfully lustrous" bits of glass that may have rained down on the moon after a meteor impact, a lunar mineralogist reported Monday.

Dr. Cliff Frondell of Harvard University disclosed at a news conference that perhaps one-third or one-fourth of each particle of dust is composed "of minute spheres of glass ranging in size from microscopic to a few tenths of a millimetre.

"The color," he said, "ranged from dark brown to yellow to yellow-brown."

"The particles are wonderfully lustrous and reflecting."

Dr. Frondell speculated that the spheres of glass probably resulted from "condensation of a gas or vapor created by the impact of a meteor."

"The gas turned into droplets, condensed and rained down on the lunar surface."

Dr. Frondell also said the dust, which has excited scientists since it arrived at the Manned Spacecraft Centre Lunar Receiving Laboratory Saturday, contained a crystalline compound similar to many rock-forming compounds on Earth. He said the dust also was made up of an unnamed opaque material.

Other scientists who have been examining the first box of Apollo 11 rocks in vacuum chambers in the lab, reported some had characteristics of

Sharp

Nine Ministers Involved?

Major Cabinet Switch Due

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—As many as seven to nine ministers may be affected in a federal cabinet shuffle predicted for August, and speculation Monday centred on the future of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

It was considered likely Sharp would be shifted to another ministry if he does not leave the government altogether. A possible successor in external affairs is Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

* * *

Such a shift could open up the possibility of a major redistribution of portfolios. Prime Minister Trudeau is said to want to make any changes in time to give shifted ministers a chance to learn their new jobs before Parliament reconvenes Oct. 22.

Privy Council President Donald Macdonald is expected to be relieved of his duty as government House leader, especially after the acrimonious windup in the Commons last week, including government imposition of closure to end a rules debate.

The cabinet Monday began an intensive series of meetings designed to reach some major decisions on government policies before present ministers depart for August vacations.

The full cabinet or cabinet committees will be meeting all this week. Some 8 a.m. and evening meetings have been called, fairly rare except during crises.

Decisions facing the cabinet include tax reform, wheat prices, further expenditure cuts, and the contents of a government white paper on tax reform to be presented this fall.

Capture, Crippled Engine, Ripped Mainsail

Ocean Trip Trouble-Filled

By DON GAIN

A Nanoose Bay couple, seized earlier this year in their yacht off Hong Kong by Communist Chinese, are back on Vancouver Island after two months spent on a Pacific crossing with a crippled engine and a ripped mainsail.

Arne Larsen, 54, and his wife Evelyn, 45, were expected in Victoria today aboard their yacht Simulous.

The couple spent the weekend in Port Renfrew after encountering engine trouble at sea. Only partial repairs were made and the couple left shortly after noon Monday under sail.

They were the guests in Port Renfrew of George Phillips, a diesel mechanic, and his wife.

When the Simulous was towed into port Saturday by a fishboat, Mr. Phillips tried to make repairs but found the engine was irreparable, he told The Daily Colonist Monday.

The yacht's mainsail ripped several weeks ago. Mrs. Larsen sewed it up over the weekend.

The Larsens were held prisoner by Communist Chinese for 12 days last January on Wanshow Island.

Mr. Larsen, a former commerical fisherman who fished off the Queen Charlotte Islands, retired last year.

He and his wife went to Hong Kong and ordered a custom-built 40-foot yacht. They had taken delivery of it and were sailing it home when they were hit by a typhoon between Hong Kong and Taiwan on Jan. 5.

The mainmast snapped in the typhoon but the yacht was still seaworthy and the Larsens headed back to Hong Kong.

They did not know their compass had been damaged, Mr. Larsen said at the time, and they sailed into Communist waters without knowing it.

They were about 30 miles from the mouth of Hong Kong harbor when an armed Chinese patrol junk captured them and towed them to Wanshow Island.

For 12 days they were held prisoner. They were subjected to intensive questioning, interspersed with lectures on the thoughts of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

When they were released on Jan. 20, they again set out for Hong Kong. As they approached the harbor, they were accosted by another armed Communist Chinese junk.

The Larsens twice were successful in evading capture by dodging the junk. On the third try, a Japanese freighter captain, who heard their cries for help, swerved his ship to cut between the Simulous and the junk.

The Vancouver Island couple finally made Hong Kong harbor and put in for repairs.

They later spent 2½ months waiting for repairs and two weeks in Japan. They left for home May 25, and their engine broke down after four days at sea.

They hoisted sail to continue their homeward voyage, but the mainsail ripped several weeks ago.

NDP Rookie Tackles Grit Fort

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

A 28-year-old radio technician was chosen Monday night by the New Democratic Party to cut his political teeth on the party's weakest constituency—Oak Bay.

Boulter

Jack McKenzie, a former DEW-line worker, took an undisclosed majority of the 10 votes cast to beat retired United Church minister Rev. Harold Allen, and get a chance at bettering the NDP's standing in a Liberal party stronghold.

In the 1968 byelection in Oak Bay, Mr. McKenzie's nominator, secretary Mira Yarwood, polled only 976 votes or 5 per cent of the votes cast, the NDP's worst showing in B.C. The seat was taken by former Oak Bay reeve Allan Cox, who succeeded Liberal barrister Alan Macfarlane.

Mr. McKenzie will face Mr. Cox and Oak Bay Ald. Dr. Scott Wallace of the Social Credit party.

EXPECTS GAINS

Asked how he thought he would do in the Aug. 27 election, Mr. McKenzie said, "We expect to make gains — make that 'appreciable' gains."

Campaign manager Lloyd Brereton told the nomination meeting it would be "unwise and unrealistic" to stage a campaign in Oak Bay similar to the one the NDP intends to put on in Victoria.

Only $2,000 of the $8,000 in campaign funds — of which $1,100 has been raised — expected to be used for both ridings will go toward Oak Bay, he said.

32 VOLUNTEERS

The meeting was told the NDP had about 32 volunteer canvassers in Oak Bay, about one per polling division.

Mr. McKenzie said he felt the issue in the election was "control of our environment," a phrase almost identical to that given by Premier Bennett as the No. 1 priority of the Social Credit administration.

Mr. McKenzie said pollution control should be paid for out of the provincial treasury from general revenue, and that pollution control standards should be set on a national, or better, an international basis.

The candidate said the NDP did not believe all industries should be nationalized, but he said public utilities — including B.C. Tel — should be taken over by government.

MAXIMUM FREEDOM

The required economic situation would be "maximum amount of freedom within a controlled economic environment," Mr. McKenzie said. The NDP has "changed away from nationalization," he said.

Mr. McKenzie lives at 1421 Taunton, is married and has "three and a half" children.

In other election news, Fred Boulter, a shipwright and former school trustee, announced his intention to seek the Liberal nomination in Esquimalt for the forthcoming election.

FINISH FRIDAY

All Socred and NDP candidates in Greater Victoria have been nominated. The Liberal nominations begin tonight in Oak Bay and finish Friday in Victoria.

On the Lower Mainland, former football coach Annis Stukus was chosen by the Socreds to contest the North Vancouver - Seymour riding, last held by Liberal Barry Clark.

City Gallery

Art Grant One Of Highest

The highest Canada Council grant for a gallery of its size has been awarded to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Gallery director Colin Graham said he was both "pleased and appreciative" that, with the exception of the five or six major galleries in Canada, Victoria received the highest grant.

Part of the $14,500 will be used to stage an environmental sculpture exhibition involving electronic media.

GROUP OF SEVEN

The show of works by the Vancouver Intermedia Group opens Oct. 14, and will be followed by a Group of Seven exhibition beginning about Nov. 4. Other shows being planned include a major sculpture exhibition in the spring.

The remainder of the grant will be used for cataloguing and conditioning the permanent collection, special lectures, reference library purchases and staff salaries.

Girl Finds Wedding Pictures

Eight "fabulous" color wedding pictures, complete with negatives, were found near the Central Park swings Monday by nine-year-old Joanne Podgorenko of 2619 Graham.

"I'm sure whoever lost those pictures must be going mad looking for them," said her mother, Mr. Kay Podgorenko. Her telephone number is 385-1185.

Brentwood Student Shares High Honors

William Holmes, a student at Brentwood College, Mill Bay, shared top honors in 1969 high school scholarship exam results announced Monday.

He and Per Ake Suneby of Trail scored an average 99 per cent to claim equal right to the Governor-General's silver medal.

* * *

A Duncan student, Steven Joseph Gergel of 6092 Alington Road, scored an average of 98 per cent to tie for third place with a Vancouver Student. Other Island students to score 95 per cent or higher:

- Terrence Warren Gunderson, Campbell River, who attended Georges Vanier senior high school in Courtenay. He scored an average 97 per cent.
- Melvin Donald Klassen, 1464 Stroud, a student at Victoria High, 95.5 per cent.
- John Charles Sobkowicz, 1420 Simon, a student at Mount Douglas high, 95.5 per cent.
- Heather Jill Brock, 3360 Woodburn, a student at Norfolk House school for girls, 95 per cent.

* * *

Students who write for government scholarships are judged on their two best marks achieved in the examinations.

Those with a first-class standing of 80 per cent or higher receive three-quarters of their university tuition fees during the subsequent year.

* * *

Second-class marks of 70 to 79 per cent earn varying amounts of money. A top group of students receives one-half of tuition fees while the remainder are granted one-third of their fees.

The education department announced 3,746 students in Grade 12 and 13 wrote scholarship exams. A total of 1,199 earned first-class marks and 970 received second-class marks.

Three Safe After Sea Drift

A Saanich man, his small son and another boy were rescued early Sunday in Juan de Fuca Strait after drifting for hours aboard a disabled 16-foot boat.

Arne Klausen, 35, of 1031 Fenn, and the two boys were rescued 20 miles southeast of Victoria by the Coast Guard cutter Racer at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

The three had set out for home from James Bay at 2:30 p.m. Saturday but lost power in their inboard engine at about 5 p.m.

Saanich School Board

Study of Disturbed Hurdles Objections

By BILL STAVDAL

An experimental study involving emotionally disturbed children was approved Monday by Saanich school board, despite misgivings about a proposed isolation cubicle which will be part of the program.

The cubicle, estimated at two feet wide by six feet long, was described as a "time-out booth" by superintendent Robert Price, but was attacked by several trustees.

FORMER MAJOR

One recalled the days when he was locked in a cupboard, and another, former army major Charles MacNeill, said the practice was used by North Koreans to break the wills of prisoners.

The research program will be carried out at McTavish Road elementary school this fall by Victoria child psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney.

Dr. Ney also works at the provincial mental health clinic. His work at McTavish school will be supported by grant funds.

NATURE OF STUDY

Nature of the study was not disclosed at the school board meeting. Trustees were told that the same application by Dr. Ney had been turned down by the Greater Victoria school board.

Dr. Donald Shorting, chairman of the Greater Victoria board's education committee, confirmed that the board rejected the application last month during a closed meeting because of disagreement with Dr. Ney over his isolation cubicle.

"The Koreans did this to gain ascendancy over a prisoner," commented Mr. MacNeill after superintendent Price outlined the "time-out booth."

STRONG SUPPORT

Mr. Price said the idea was to isolate a child disrupting the class until he decided to stop being anti-social. The superintendent was strongly supported by board chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, a former teacher of disturbed children.

"The children are not put in these rooms for hours and hours," said Mrs. Parrott. "It's not a cell."

Trustee John Armstrong countered:

"I object to the words educators use to gloss things over. This isn't a time-out booth; it's a closet."

HOCKEY GAMES

Mrs. Parrott replied:

"You have time-out booths in hockey games. You are removing him (the player) for a period of time until he learns to play the game."

After further assurance from superintendent Price that the matter of the isolation cubicle would be reviewed with Dr. Ney, trustees approved the program, all but Mr. MacNeill.

The board also voted $250 to build a booth, which may be fitted with a one-way window.

RCMP Promotes G.C.Cunningham

Gordon C. Cunningham, 51, has been appointed assistant commissioner and head of the Victoria RCMP division, it was announced Monday.

Mr. Cunningham joined the force in 1940 and has been commanding officer of the division since his arrival from Ottawa at the end of June.

He succeeds A. C. Engel, who retired recently as assistant commissioner.

Identical Bids Invite Probe

The results of Oak Bay council's call for tenders for 20 street light fixtures will be sent to the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission in Ottawa for possible investigation, council decided Monday.

Each of the five competing firms submitted an identical bid of $77.50 per fixture.

"One gets suspicious when year after year, similar bids are received," said Ald. John Watts. "Let's just send our information to the combines commission and let them look at it. That's their job."

Ald. Frances Elford noted it had been the practice to spread the contracts around in past cases when identical bids were submitted.

Oak Bay Adds Vote On Sunday Sports

Oak Bay Monday became the third Greater Victoria municipality to decide to put the question of Sunday sports to its voters at the annual December election.

In approving the motion, council noted the issue was not of major importance to the municipality as Oak Bay has only one commercial enterprise—a movie theatre—that might be affected.

A public meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 to discuss the proposed rezoning of the area at 2086 Granite to allow for construction of apartments by Tudor Estates Ltd.

Campsite Death

Man Faces Trial In Murder Case

Lawrence Ernest Munning, 41, was committed in Central Magistrate's Court Monday for trial in a higher court on a charge of non-capital murder.

The charge arose from the death June 2 of his wife, Catherine Josephine Munning, 35. She was believed to have died of carbon monoxide poisoning at Goldstream campsite.

The committal wound up the preliminary hearing during which more than a dozen witnesses testified on behalf of the Crown and some 25 items were filed as exhibits.

Dr. J. S. P. Lane told court Monday that "there was the slightest doubt" in his mind that Mrs. Munning was dead when he examined her June 2 at about 5:15 p.m. in front of the Colwood RCMP offices.

Dr. Lane said he called a second doctor to examine Mrs. Munning. "I had not much doubt that she was dead, but there was a small doubt in my mind that there might be some life left in her."

HIT WITH FIST

Another witness told court he had seen Mrs. Munning hit the accused with her fist several days before her death.

"She had asked me to come over. She seemed pretty upset and repeatedly screamed and yelled at her husband. Then she hit him a couple of times in the face with her fist," said Edwin Lalonde, 1997 Colwood Crescent.

He told court Munning made no effort to defend himself. "He was very quiet."

Posters Called Danger

A B.C. Tel official said Monday, election posters mounted on telephone poles present a hazard to workmen and are contrary to Workmen's Compensation Board safety regulations.

Safety administrator H. N. Maclean appealed to political parties to keep their signs and posters off the telephone poles.

"Election posters on poles endanger workmen," Mr. Maclean said. "A resulting fall could cause serious injury or death. We request the assistance of all campaigners in making our employees safe on the job."

Condition Good

Mrs. Eva Chaplin, 75, of 2180 Richmond, was in good condition Monday in Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a car Saturday evening at Richmond and Denman.

Driver of the car was identified as Joachim Hennevurg, 1766 Denman.

Mrs. Chaplin suffered a broken pelvis and knee injuries.
